DIRECT WIRES TO HIS HOME

McKinley Accepted the Favorable Reports Without Comment—Result Known Early

EXECUTIVE MANSION, CANTON, O., Nov. 6.—President McKinley received the election returns tonight at his home, surrounded by a large number of his friends and neighbors, including many ladies, who came as the guests of Mrs. McKinley, to share with her the interest and excitement of this culminating event of the campaign.

The responsible leaders made no early claims, although their dispatches told of gains at many points, and greeted the news with a calmness that was characteristic of the President.

At midnight, Canton was in a frenzy of enthusiasm, which knew no bounds. The crowds which had been burning red fire down town, marched to the McKinley residence with bands playing, rockets smoking and torches waving in the air.

At 9 o'clock the President received a dispatch from an enthusiastic individual stating that New York, and Illinois carried the day for McKinley and that he was re-elected.

INTEREST IN ENGLAND.

Comment of London Press on the American Election. LONDON, Nov. 6.—The weakness of American securities on the stock exchange yesterday was a reflection of the strong interest taken here in the American elections, and recognition that, although the success of Mr. McKinley was regarded as almost certain, the contest presented all kinds of possibilities.

QUIET DAY IN NEW YORK

NO MORE THAN THE USUAL NUMBER OF ARRIVALS

Roosevelt's Threat to Remove Van Wyck Had a Beneficial Effect on the Police.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Election day in Greater New York dawned into an ideal autumn morning. The sky was radiantly clear, the air invigorating.

The election machinery of the municipal party began moving in the five boroughs promptly at 6 o'clock. The election officials were more prompt than the voters.

In the over-populated districts in the upper West Side the apprehension that there were more voters than there were minutes in the day to receive their votes, caused a great rush about 9 o'clock.

As many as 50 men were in line at many places when the election officials arrived. Chief Devery arrived at police headquarters at 5 o'clock. He went at once to his office and had all the streets called up by telephone. Promptly at 6 o'clock the Chief summoned the newspaper men to his office.

The polls are open and the election is on, he said. "The opening of the polls has been effected without disorder. There will be no trouble during the day if this department can help it. I will be here all day with my carriage on duty. There will be reserves handy to dispatch to the scene of an outbreak."

"I have nothing to say about McCullagh and his indictment. Sheriff Greer was here early this morning because of a communication of some authority. Was it Governor Roosevelt? I don't care to say. Let the Sheriff tell you what he knows about it. I was called by Chief Devery and he said that the McCullagh case has not interfered with the polls plan already formulated. They stand as they were first formulated. Nothing has transpired within the last 24 hours that would modify our business as to be prepared to serve order at the polls and afford the election officials protection in the discharge of their duties."

Within the limits of Greater New York there are 1,000,000 registered voters. Under normal conditions about 50 per cent of the vote is generally cast in a Presidential year.

The indictment of Chief of Police Devery and his indictment of Sheriff Greer by State Superintendent of Elections McCullagh, the notice of Governor Roosevelt to Mayor Van Wyck, telling him he would be held responsible for any violations of the objectionable order by his subordinates, as they were before Sunday last, when Chief Devery was called by McCullagh officials that the McCullagh deputies must not be allowed to interfere with men who were willing to swear in their votes. The McCullagh claim is that the deputies should present the casting of any and all votes which in their judgment are illegal.

The courts, after the election, will undoubtedly be called upon to settle the differences of opinion between the police and the McCullagh officials. The McCullagh claim is that the deputies should present the casting of any and all votes which in their judgment are illegal.

The Standard says: "There can be no reasonable doubt that President McKinley has been elected. Isolated cases of tumult should serve only to emphasize the admirable spirit and common citizenship with which the people of the Republic play their part in the onerous struggle for mastery. It is significant that radical animosity was the cause of the worst conflict."

The Standard goes on to express the frankest satisfaction over the success of McKinley, adding: "This success insures the continuance of the stability in foreign matters and no change in the foreign policy of the United States. The triumph of Mr. Bryan would have been felt everywhere as heralding a sharp reversal of a policy which has made the United States a powerful and energetic member of the great family of nations. The continuity of control at Washington is a guarantee of peace, and in the sense of Republican victory, would be welcomed by every European state."

The Daily Telegraph says: "Englishmen have never had, since Lincoln's time, deeper interest in the issue of a Presidential election than in the election of Mr. Bryan with Gladstone, declaring the former's policy of humanitarian intentions would entail an American Mahatma. It declares that the British people are most anxious to see Mr. Bryan's apparently assured success."

The Daily Graphic observes: "We cannot regret that there is little prospect that Bryanism has been finally smashed."

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Russia is to place orders with American shipbuilders for five new battle-ships during the next year. Secrecy seems to be the order with these ships, and the fact that they are built in this country, but the bare fact that in prosecuting her naval construction programme Russia will favor American builders comes from an authentic source, according to Joseph Spencer Kennard, one of the managers from this country to the Paris Exposition, who has arrived here on the steamship Touraine.

Contracts for five battle-ships will involve more than $20,000,000, and the fact that Russia contemplates placing these orders here is regarded as a recognition of the merits of the American-built shipyard, which, designed to make a record of 22 knots, showed herself capable in her speed trials of maintaining a speed of 34.5 knots. Now being pushed to completion by the Cramps, who built the Varieg, the battle-ship Batavia, the first battle-ship built here for a foreign country. She was launched October 23. Beyond the information that the order was to be placed here, Mr. Kennard said that he could say nothing, and that he could not with propriety make known the name of his informant.
