Creek on the Humptulips, where they have commenced a 10 years' job of cutting 100,000,000 feet of the Blodgett timber. They will put in about 10,000,000 feet each year until the contract is completed.

Unless plans now well under way come to naught, an early date will see the reopening of the big sawmill at Fort Discovery, which for the past 10 years has been idle, a subsidiary branch of the Pacific Savings Bank, of Seattle, the consolidation of the mill was effected by the Moore & Smith Lumber Company, and many years ago was placed under a heavy mortgage. The commission from the combining of the company and the operation of the interest, and recently the British bank holding the mortgage foreclosed it. The mill property, together with much valuable timberland, was sold, and the purchasers, unknown at the time, now appear to be the Chemainus Company, the largest lumber concern in British Columbia. It is the intention, so rumor has it, for the company and the operation of the mill, and already experts and machinists have been over to estimate the repairs necessary.

After months of litigation, involving much money, the taxpayers of Jefferson County, Ore., Commissioners were ordered by Superior Judge McCullough to add last week five mills to the assessment to satisfy the claims of the State Savings Bank, of Seattle, which sued on numerous old warrants issued during the days of the boom. The bank people protested against losing their money and sued the county. The court decided in their favor and the action taken. The supreme tribunal sustained the Superior Court, but still the Commissioners made no move to provide for the payment of the warrants. The action decided last week was a mandamus to compel the Commissioners to make the levy, amounting to about $50,000, and the court granted the petition. Over a year's additional interest has accrued since the case was first decided, and it is believed now that the Commissioners will shut off the growing expense by complying with the order of the court.

ORIGIN OF PANCAKES ON SHROVE TUESDAY. When the Danes conquered England and reached the village around Sherwood Forest, all the Saxon men ran off into the forest and the Danes took the Saxon women to keep house for them.

on Shrove Tuesday. This was done as a sort of pledge, and that the massacre of the Danes did take place on Ash Wednesday is a historical fact. It was a much greater undertaking to fry pancakes in these days than it is now for with the H-O Co.'s "ready to use" packages of Buckwheat and Pancake Flour at every grocery store.

It is as easy as boiling water. Pancakes were never liked so well until the introduction of the H-O Co.'s Pancake Flour.
