

MARCUS DALY DEAD

The Famous Anaconda Copper King.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE CAUSED DEATH

His Mining Career in Montana and His Controversy with W. A. Clark.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Marcus Daly, one of the leading miners of the world, died in his apartment at the Hotel Netherlands at 1 o'clock this morning, aged 60 years.

His illness dated back several years. He had suffered severely during the last two months, but the end was painless. While he was suffering by members of his family his life went out so peacefully that only the physicians in attendance knew that he had found rest.

Breathing fumes of arsenic in smelters where copper ore from his mines were treated and living in the high altitudes of Montana weakened his heart. He realized that his constitution had broken, but did not soon enough give himself opportunity to recuperate. He at last came to New York and consulted three eminent specialists in disease of the heart. They all made the same diagnosis and advised him to forsake active business life.

Only a little while more, only a little more, and then peace would be his words to Mrs. Daly when she went to him. With Mr. Daly at the moment of his death were his wife, his three daughters, Mary, Margaret and Helen, his son, Marcus Daly, Jr., his brother, Patrick, his attorney, William Scallon; Dr. W. H. Thompson, Dr. Dillon Brown and Rev. Father M. J. Laville.

Plans for the funeral are not yet complete. The body has been removed to the family residence, 725 Fifth avenue. The funeral services will include a solemn high mass of requiem at St. Ignace's Cathedral at 11 o'clock Thursday morning.

MARCUS DALY'S CAREER.

How He Made His Money in Montana—His Fight With Clark.

Marcus Daly was born in Ireland in 1842. He came to the United States early in life, and since 1876 had been a citizen of Montana. He became general manager of the Alice or mine, and later came to control the Anaconda copper mine. At the time of his death he was president of the Amalgamated Copper Company. He was a member of the Montana constitutional convention in 1884. In politics he was a Democrat.

The differences between Mr. Daly and W. A. Clark have attracted much attention. The trouble started years ago over some land titles which Mr. Daly and Clark purchased together. In 1888 Montana was a territory. It had a Democratic majority. Mr. Clark was a candidate on the Democratic ticket for congressional delegate. Ordinarily he would have won, but Daly threw his enormous influence to the Republicans, and his daily newspaper bitterly fought the one owned by Clark. The election resulted in the choice of Thomas H. Carter, Clark's Republican opponent. Montana became a state in 1889. Daly defeated Clark in 1892.

In the legislature the Democrats had 25 votes, the Populists and the Republicans 33. The Daily Democrats, numbering 30, went solidly for ex-Congressman W. W. Dixon, and there was a deadlock for the entire vote. The next day Clark and Daly were on the location of the State Capital, Helena, Missouri. Hozenan and Anaconda were in the fight. Daly advocated the last-named place. Clark backed first favored Butte, but finally changed to Helena, and that city was chosen. The Senatorship again became the bone of contention between the two mill owners. The election was held in Montana in the election was freely charged on both sides, though it was claimed that the expenditures were legitimate expenses only. The contest resulted in the Senate voting that Clark had won the election by the Montana Legislature. This year Clark made a fight for the election of members of the Legislature in his interest, and his return to the Senate next January.

No mining property has achieved greater fame as a producer of dividends than the famous Anaconda. Originally bought as a silver mine, it became famous for its copper, and it to both Daly and Clark largely owe their vast fortunes. Back in the '70s two miners named Hickey, from St. Lawrence County, New York, went to Montana. They selected a hill overlooking the little mining camp of Butte, and began to sink their shaft. They struck a fair vein of silver, but lack of funds made them stop work and offer to sell. Marcus Daly bought the property for $25,000. He acted, it is said, as agent for J. B. Haggis, of California, who had sent him to Butte to buy him some good mining property.

As the new owners panned their shaft down, they opened one of the world's greatest copper mines, with silver enough to pay all expenses, and leaving the copper as clear profit. Daly was superintendent and part owner of the great mine. He bought the adjacent properties. He founded the town of Anaconda, a valley 35 miles distant, and located where there is an exhaustless supply of water and a great deal of wood—two indispensable for the smelting and reduction of silver. At the place he erected the greatest copper plant in the world.

Daly had a passion for horses of blood and speed. He owned the $40,000 colt Hamburg, Tennessee, Montana, Senator Grady, Gwendoline, O'Brien, and other famous winners. He tried to buy the winner of the Derby and Ascot races of 1897, Galtee Moor, but his offer of $125,000 was not accepted.

COMPLEXION OF THE NEW CONGRESS.

The political complexion of both houses of the New Congress is shown in the following tables. For greater clearness in making comparisons several Populists, Fusionists and Silverites are grouped with the Democrats, because they are likely to be in opposition to the Republicans on political measures. The forecast of Senators to be elected is based on the political complexion of the several Legislatures:

Lord Roberts' return and no immediate legislation.

A large number of technical questions, including the cavalry equipment, transport and other details will be raised and the system of training soldiers will be altered. These matters do not require legislation, but are purely administrative.

One change has already been made almost without observation. The British soldiers in South Africa know nothing about intrenching. At Colenso and Mafeking they did not use the spade, and when they tried to dig on the summit of Spion Kop they made very bad trenches. An army officer says that in recent maneuvers in various parts of the United Kingdom the soldiers have been drilled in the use of the spade, and taught the art of intrenching. This has been the purpose of a campaign which will be taken to heart in the future training of the British Army.

Legislation will probably be restricted to money grants for the improvement of the artillery equipment, the fortifications, training stations and sea ports and for the strengthening of the fleet.

One other point will not be lost sight of: This is the co-ordination of the resources of the colonies and the mother state in a comprehensive scheme of imperial defense. Arrangements will probably be made with the aid of Mr. Chamberlain for an imperial council of some kind in which Canada, Australia, and other self-governing colonies will be represented for the purpose of a joint consultation respecting a complete and effective system of defense.

THE COPPELAND MEDICAL FILES.

COST OF SKILLED TREATMENT UNDER THE COPPELAND SYSTEM. Chronic Sufferers Properly Cared For at Actually Less Than One-Fifth the Usual Outlay—Superior Efficiency of the System Now Quite Generally Conceded.

The Copeland physicians, in their conscientious effort to provide for the proper care and treatment of chronic diseases, generally, at fees which are less than one-fifth of those usually exacted, have not been unmindful of the following points:

First, that the people of the great main body of society stood in deep and urgent need of some such reformatory measure; that the awful frequency with which chronic invalids sink hopelessly and helplessly down to death from sheer inability to secure the attentive and continuous help of those physicians who make a study and a specialty of chronic infirmities, was in itself an appeal to the humanity of the medical profession which could not be overlooked without a sense of responsibility for wholly unnecessary loss of human life.

Second, the Copeland physicians bore in mind that the true public good lies in the establishment of a court of arbitration, and the proclamation of the necessity of a special Spanish-American court to deal with all questions of arbitration between Spain and South America. This tribunal, it affirms, ought to be permanent and obligatory. The report also protests against any tendency to arbitration court any political supremacy. It recommends the creation of peace societies like those existing in North America, and demands that fresh Spanish-American assemblies meet three years hence in order to strengthen the bonds between Spain and Latin-America.

These people speak from personal experience. Tortured by rheumatism, entirely cured by the Copeland physicians.

Mr. W. L. Farrell, Farrell's Addition, Portland.

THESE PEOPLE SPEAK FROM PERSONAL EXPERIENCE.

TORTURED BY RHEUMATISM, ENTIRELY CURED BY THE COPPELAND PHYSICIANS.

Mr. W. L. Farrell, Farrell's Addition, Woodlawn, in speaking of his trouble, said: "I have always enjoyed fairly good health up to within five or six months ago, when I was attacked by that terrible disease, RHEUMATISM, which almost finished me. The tortures and suffering that I endured for a short time I cannot find words to express. I was confined to my bed for almost a week and to the house without exceeding pain, and so great was my suffering that I could get but little rest and had no appetite to eat. In this condition I rapidly lost strength and my general condition was very feeble. My wife had been treated by the Copeland physicians. In fact, many of our relatives had been under their care, and it was in this way I decided to entrust my case to them. The results have been most gratifying. They soon had the disease under control, and I am now entirely free from it. I am always glad to recommend the Copeland physicians. I like their way of conducting their business and their arrangement of charging a monthly fee, which includes all medicines, and as many visits to their office as are necessary. It is certainly a blessing to those who work on a salary and have a family to take care of."

"Is your nose stopped up?" "Do you sleep with mouth wide open?" "Is there pain in front of head?" "Is your throat dry or sore?" "Have you a bad taste in the morning?" "Do you cough?" "Do you cough worse at night?" "Is your tongue coated?" "Is your appetite falling?" "Is there pain after eating?" "Are you light-headed?" "When you get up suddenly are you dizzy?" "Do you have hot flashes?" "Do you have liver market?" "Do your kidneys trouble you?" "Do you have pain in back or under shoulder blades?" "Do you wake up tired and out of sorts?" "Are you losing flesh?" "Is your strength falling?"

WHAT OTHER DOCTORS SAID. WHAT HIS PARENTS SAY NOW.

MR. and MRS. C. F. KNOWLES. P. S.—We had consulted several doctors regarding Irving's condition, who pronounced his case incurable and said they could do nothing for him, but when we found the right doctors he got well.
