day's interview that he expected others to cut up the pie. He practically admitted the gist of his published speech Saturday night, but repeated the Senatorship question, saying:

"I believe that all contests among the Republicans should be settled in the primary election, and I believe that the long-nosed, slow-chinned mump is entitled to the same consideration that is due the guerrilla in time of war. I am for party regularity and the fundamental principles of the Republican party, that the majority shall rule."

"In my conversation I made no reference whatever to my future candidacy. The selection of a United States Senator is some distance in the future, and many things may arise. What I shall do in that respect can be determined only when we reach the field of action. Whatever I may do in a political way, I trust that it will aid my home city and the state of my adoption, and I trust I shall be able to contribute in a modest and according way to the strengthening and upbuilding of the Republican party, to the principles of which I am devotedly attached."

OREGON CITY, Or., Nov. 12.—The entire day in the Circuit Court was taken up with the arguments of the counsel in the case of Hertzka, the Portland Christian Science healer. Attorney Stoddard, of Portland, the principal counsel for Hertzka, spoke to the jury for over three hours this afternoon, about half of the time being devoted to a Christian Science sermon. This jury was so completely won over that the Judge adjourned court until tomorrow morning to give the jurors time to deliberate.

Stoddard claimed that the prosecution of Hertzka was persecution, pushed by his chance of acquittal. Should Hertzka be found guilty by the jury, the case will probably be appealed to the Supreme Court.
