The Limon, Colo., Murderer Burned at the Stake.

ON THE SPOT OF HIS FIENDISH CRIME

The Pather of Louise Frost, the Murdered School Girl, Applied the Match.

LIMON, Colo., Nov. 16.-Chained to a railroad rail, set firmly in the ground, on the exact spot where his flendish crime was committed. Preston Porter, Jr., or, as he was familiarly known, John Porter, match to the fuel which had been plied around the negro, and 20 minutes later a last convulsive shudder told that life was extinct. What agony the doomed boy suffered while the flames shriveled up his flesh could only be guessed by the terrible contortions of his face.

ing all the preparations, as well as throughout the sufferings of the negro, hardly an unnecessary word was spoken. Grimly they stood in a circle about the fire until the body was entirely consumed and then quietly they took their way back to Limon, from whence they departed for their homes shortly afterward.

Preston Porter did not seem to realize the awful punishment that he was destined to undergo. As he had exhibited indifference to the enormity of his crime, so he seemed to lack all understanding of its terrible consequences. For more than an hour, while preparations for his execution were in progress, he stood muts and sulfien among the avengers. When everything was ready he walked to the stake with a firm step, pausing as he reached the circle of broken boards to kneel in prayer. He was allowed to take his time. He arose and placed his back to the iron stake, and half a dozen men wound chains about his body and limbs. wound chains about his body and limbs.

The Match Applied.

Kerosene oil was applied to the wood, and after a brief pause, Richard W. Frost, the father of little Louise Frost, whose cruelly mutlated body was found one week ago on that very spot, took his matchsafe out, extracted a match, lit it and touched the fiames to the oil. For a moment but a flickering fiame

For a moment but a flickering fiame arose, then the oil blazed up, sparks flew into the air and the wood began to crackle. Almost instantly the negro's trousers caught fire. Even though the flesh must have been scorched, he did not utter a sound. The flames crept slowly upward on his clothing, the sparks flew up in a cloud of pale smoke. Porter turned his head and a frightful expression changed his face. With a sudden sion changed his face. With a suiden convulsive tugging he stretched his head as far as possible from the rapidly in-creasing flames and uttered a cry of pain.

"Oh, my God! Let me go, men; I've something more to tell you. Please let me go. Oh, my God! My God!"

In terrible screeches these words, the first he had uttered aloud, came from the negro. A terrible tugging at the chains, a succession of awful groans and succession, the negro's awful agony was at last breaking down his sullen composure. Not an oath escaped him, but he begged and pleaded to be shot. Suddenly, the rope holding his hands burned through. Then the arms, head and shoulders slipped through the chain. For an instant the body stood erect, the arms were raised in supplication, while burning dropped from them. ody then fell away from the fire, the head lower than the feet, which were still fastened to the rall. This was not expected, and for a few minutes those stolld men were discon-certed. They feared that the only remaining chain would give away. It this had occurred, the partly burned human being would have dashed among them with burning garments. Not many would have cared to capture him again. But the chain held fast. The body was then in such a position that only the legs were in the fire. The cries of the wretch were redoubled, and he again begged to be shot. Some wanted to throw him over into the fire, others tried to throw oil upon him. Boards were carried and a large pile made over the prostrate body. They were soon ignited, and the terrible heat and lack of air quickly rendered the victim ameousclous, bringing death a few moments later. This terrible ceremony out upon the rolling prairie concluded the second tragedy upon the spot, the terrible avengeance of the first. upon him. Boards were carried and a ble avengeance of the first.

Through the entire affair but little was said. As they had calmly prepared for the avengeance, so they carried out their plans coolly and deliberately. There was not a litch in the entire proceedings.

Not a weapon was drawn. There was no angry discussion. After the fire burned low the told each other good-night and went home. They did not stop to discuss the affair.

Given Up Without Resistance. The train bearing the negro in custody of Sheriff Freeman and his deputies from Denver arrived in Limon at 3:45 P. M.
The cara were crowded with newspaper reporters, telegraph operators with instruments, and people who were curious to see the negro executed. R. W. Frost, the murdered girl's father, was one of the When the train stopped, 16 men, who had been selected by the vigilance com-mittee, entered the train and demanded the prisoner from the Sheriff. Their every act was marked by calmness and deery act was marked by calminess and de-termination. The officer protested in the name of the law, and asked the men to allow him to take his prisoner to the County Jail at Hugo, but his protests were diaregarded. One man carried a rope, in which had been formed a hang-man's noose. This was slipped over the negro's neck.

negro's neck. It was at first announced that the ne-gro was to be executed by hanging. Many, including the father of the negro's victim, protested that such a death would be too easy, and it was finally decided to leave the method of death to the out-raged father. He decided upon burning Suggestions of mutiliation before burning were made, but Mr. Frost declared against it. Wagons were de-spatched for wood, and upon their return a score of men assisted in preparing it for the fire.

a score of men assisted in preparing it for the fire.

When at last preparations were completed, there was a delay, because it was known that many were en route from Hugo and other parts of the country to take part in the affair. It had been announced that 5:30 o'clock should be the nearly an hour later when the word was finally given.

A strange feature of the affair was that of souvenirs. The negro had since his confession been devoting every moment of daylight to the perusal of a Bible given him by the Denver jadier. Even while waiting for his execution he sat by a bonfire reading from the gospel of St. Luke. Just before he was tied to the stake, upon request for souvenirs, the boy tore the leaves from the Bible and distributed them among his executioners. Also the Past.

The Governor Refused to Talk. DENVER, Nov. 16.—When asked his opinion regarding the burning of the negro rapist and murderer, Preston Por-ter, at Limon tonight, Governor Thomas declined to make any statement what-ever. Early in the week in an interview, the Governor was quoted as say-ing that he had nothing to do with the matter.

Sheriff Freeman, of Lincoln County, after the prisoner was taken from him, remained on the train and presumably went to his home at Hugo. He was around the negro, and 20 minutes later a last convulsive shudder told that life was extinct. What agony the doomed boy suffered while the flames shriveled up his fiesh could only be guessed by the terrible contortions of his face and the cries he gave from time to time.

The executioners, who numbered about 300 citizens of Limon County, had not the least semblance of the ordinary mob. Their every act was deliberate, and during all the preparations, as well as throughout the sufferings of the negro, hardly an unnecessary word was spoken. Counties, and declaring that if they do not go they will be escorted across the border. Officials of the Union Pacific and the Rock Island Railroads have also been patitioned to remove from these counties all the imported colored section men. This action is taken in pursuance of resolutions adopted at the mass meeting of citizens, at which an organization was effected for the purpose of lynching Forter. It was unanimously agreed by the meeting that Porter should be hanged, with all the decorum of a legal execution.

A Mild Attack. LONDON, Nov. II.—It is contrary to the etiquette of the Russian court to publish bulietins, but, as by marriage Em-peror Nicholas is a grandson of Queen Victoria, this etiquette is relaxed. Nothing, however, later than the bulletin is sued yesterday morning has been allowed to become public. This shows that the disease is following the normal course of a mild attack; and in the event of there being no reispae or complications, the fever should subside by the end of the month. But even then the greatest care must be exercised for another musth. The advices received at Copenhagen and the other European courts are generally of a favorable character. The Grand Dukes of Russia are remaining in France, and the Dowager Czarina remains at Constantinople. Interest in Washington. WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The Russian smbassy has received no advices as to the condition of the Czar, but the press bulletins bearing the signatures of the im-perial physicians are accepted as accu-rate, and are followed with great inter-est and concern. The belief, however, is that the latest indications are favorable, and the present location of the Char in Russia is said to be an additional reason for expecting an early recovery. In French, British and other foreign quarters here the same anxiety is shown as to the condition of the Czar, and the ex-pression is general that an unfavorable turn would be a calamity to the world at large, particularly in view of the present delicate condition of affairs in China. The Grand Duke Michael is next in sucession to the Cuar, and the latter's three children, all daughters, are not considered in the succession until the male line is exhausted to the remotest degree of rela-tionship. In the event of the birth of a ous child, should it be a male, the Grand Duke Michael will govern as Regent until the child becomes of age, when it will succeed to the throne.

Campbell-Bannerman's Invitation to ex-Leader to Take Charge of the Party Alarms Conservatives.

GLASGOW, Nov. 16.—Lord Rosebery was installed as lord rector of Glasgow University today. His rectoral address on the subject of "The British Empire" was a stirring appeal to the race to realise its responsibilities and to prepare to fight for its existence. Never, said His Lord-

This morning, the Dully Chronicle announces that the invitation which Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman, in his speech at Dundee Thursday, extended to Lord Rosebery to resume the leadership of the whole party, was made with the concurrence of is principal members. "It may be taken for granted," says the Daily Chronicle, "that this will be put in a shape still more formal and deliberate before the February session of Parliament, if not immediately, by the summoning of a meeting of the party for this purpose, and that he will receive an invitation from a party practically unanimous."

That the advent of such a virile person ality to the leadership of the Liberala will not be welcome to the Conservatives, who recognize that they have a difficult task

GRIGGS WILL LEAVE THE CABINET.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL JOHN W. GRIGGS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.-At the Cabinet meeting today, Attorney-General Griggs in formed the President and his colleagues that after mature deliberation be had concluded that it would be impossible for him to remain a member of the Cabinet during the next four years. This was the first definite response from any member to the President's wishes expressed at the last Cabinet meeting that all of the pertfolior should remain in the same hands during the coming Administration. The resignation of the Attorney-General will not take effect until Marsh a next, and it is thought at present that all the other members with the possible exception of the Secretary of War, will retain their present positions.

ship, did the empire so urgently require difficulties confronting the nation, he has the strenuous support of its subjects, beno advice to offer as to the remedy. The cause there was a disposition abroad to Morning Post says: "The country teems challenge both its naval and its commercial supremacy. The 20th century, he de-clared, would be a period of keen, intelli-gent and almost flerce international complication, more probably in the arts of peace even than in the arts of war. Therefore, he added, it was necessary to un-dertake periodical stocktaking. to re-model the state machinery and educa-tional methods, and to become more businesslike and thorough as warriors, mer-chants and statesmen, and to look thor-oughly to the training of first-rate men for the struggle ahead, as on these de-pended the future of the empire and the race. He thought the now antiquated methods of training had almost resulted in commercial disaster, and the time had arrived to reconsider the educational apparatus. Looking Backward.

Lord Rosebery asserted that but for the small incident of the acceptance of a peerage, the empire might have been in-calculably greater. Had the elder Pitt, when he became first Minister, not left the House of Commons, he would prob-ably have retained his sanity and authority, and he would have prevented or sup pressed the reckless budget of Townsend, induced George III to listen to reason, introduced representatives of America into Parliament, and preserved the 18 colonies to the British crown.

colonies to the British crown.
"It is fanciful to dwell for the moment on what might have happened," continued Lord Rosebery. "The reform bill of 1832 would probably have been passed much earlier, for the new blood of America would have burst the old vessels of the constitution. It would have provided a self-adjusting system of representation, guch as now prevails in the United States, whereby the increasing population is pro-portionately represented. And at last, when the Americans held a majority of the seats, the empire would have per the Herald from Yalia says:

Ministers, government and Parliament departing solemnly for first over Chinese matters, and, second, over the illness of the Czarina. Although of the Portuguese sovereigns going to of the Portuguese sovereigns going to Brazil under the spur of necessity, but under the vigorous embrace of the younger world, America would have hung to the skirts of Britain and pulled her back out of European complications. She would have profoundly affected ner for-aign policy in the direction of peace, and her influence on her domestic policy would have been scarcely less potent. Probably she would have appensed and even contented Ireland. The ancient constitution of Britain would have been rendered more comprehensive and more elastic.

"On the other hand, the American rearrings for liberty would have been her influence on her domestic policy would yearning for liberty would have taken a different form; would have blended with other traditions and flowed into other other traditions and flowed into other molds. Above all, there would have been no secession, no War of Independence, no War of 1812, with the bitter memories they have left in America. To secure that priceless boon I could be satisfied to see the British Federal Parliament sit-ting in Columbian territory."

When dealing with the awakening of the parlians during the last half-contury

the nations during the last haif-century to the necessity of colonizing, Lord Rose-bery described the United States as "sit-ting like a startled hen on a brood of un-numbered islands of the Philippine

OBJECTS TO A CHANGE.

President Opposed to Reduction of Southern Representation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.-The opinion will oppose any movement looking to a reduction of the Congressional represen-tation of the Southern States on account of charges of the disfranchisement of colored voters. The President is said to be opposed to reviving ill feeling, which he thinks would be the result of a bill thus touching the South's suffrage. On account of the President's attitude. there is growing opinion that legislation looking to the reduction of Southern rep-resentation will not be present by party eaders in Congress. In this conleaders in Congress. In this connection it is suggested that any action taken with reference to the suffrage of the South in advance of the adoption of a definite policy in the Philippines might throw some embarrassment in the way of the proper disposition of the citizenship rights of the Filipinos.
