GROUT'S OLEOMARGARINE BILL.

Will Be One of the First Measures Considered by Congress.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 .- One of the first rdecu to be considered when Congress convenes, says a Tribune special from Washington, will be the oleomargarine bill, reported to the House from the committee on agriculture by Henry of Connecticut. It was introduced by Grout of Vermont in December, 1899 it provides that all articles known as sargarlos, butterine, initation putter nitation cheese, or any substance in the semblance of butter or cheese not the use consumption, sale or storage thurship shall upon the errivel within the fimits of such state or territory be subject to the operation and effect of the laws of such state or territory enacted in the exercise of its police powers to the same extent and in the same mainer as though such articles or substances had been repro-duced in such state at territory, and shall not be exempt therefrom by resson of being introduced therein in original pack-

There is a provision that "nothing in this act shall be construed to permit any state to forbid the manufacture or sale of oleomargurine in a separate and dis-simpt form and in such manner as will ad-vise the consumer of its real character, free from coloration or ingredient that causes it to look like butter."

THE CIGARETTE CASE SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS THE TENNESSEE LAW.

Four Out of the Nine Members of the Court Joined in a Dissenting Opinion.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 .- The United States Supreme Court today rendered an opinion in the case of William B. Austin va the State of Tennesses, involving the validity of the state inw regulating the sale of cigareties. The law was attacked as an infringement of the right of Congress to regulate interstate commerce. The Tennessee Supreme Court upheid the law, and today's decision sustained that verdict, though not without disapproval of some of the positions taken, and then upon a very marrow margin, four out of nine members joining in a dissenting opinon, and another member of the court (Justice White) placing his assent upon grounds different from those announced by Justice Brown, who handed down the The case grew out of the importation of cigarettes into Tennesses from North Car-olina. They were taken into the state in the ordinary sized cigarette packages, about two by four inches, and these packages were loosely thrown into baskets, which were uncovered. The claim was made that these cigarette packages were what is known to the law as original packages; but without clearly defining an original package, the court held that it was clear that such packages, could not be so considered. Justice Brown, in passing upon the case, said that the pack-ages were obviously made up with the view of evading the law, and as he spoke he held one of the little cigarette cases up to the view of his audience. On this point the decision of the state court, to the effect that the packages were not original, was fully confirmed. On another point of the case the state court was not so fully indorsed. The Tennesses court had held that cigarettes are not an article of commerce. With this view Justice Brown took issue, and he delivered quite a dissertation upon the Whatever is an object of barter and sale, he said, is an article of commerce, and must be so recognized. To-bacco has been such an article for 400 years. It has been mude the subject of years. taxation, and, indeed, has become more widely scattered than any other vegetable, Probably, he added, no other vegetable has contributed so much to the comfort and soluce of the human race. This be-ing the case, it is entirely beyond bounds to say that tobacco is not an article of commerce. He then took notice of the claim that clarations are an especially harmful form of tobacco, and, while he conceded that this might be the case, he remarked that this claim was of com-paratively recent origin. He held that cighrettes are as much a matter of stale regulation as liquor, and he further held that while no state law could prohibit importation in original packages, it was entirely competent for a Legislature to regulate the sale, hecause of general be-lief in the deleterious effect of the article.
