METROPOLITAN—"That Man."

SPORT WITH A SEINE.—A man who lives over near the Columbia bottom and who has a large number of chickens, recently purchased a seine 100 feet long and six feet wide, for his boys, who use it in catching carp and other fish in one of the sloughs on the bottom to feed the chickens. They have made a grand success of their fishing and have had lots of sport, besides providing plenty of food for the chickens. At every sweep of the seine they catch large quantities of carp, some of them of great size, weighing as high as 40 pounds, as well as many catfish, for which they find a ready market. They also occasionally catch black bass, of fair size, which goes to show that these fish have established themselves in the rivers here and will afford fishermen fine sport in the future. One day they ran into a settlement of "terrapins," and caught enough to net them. The rise in the rivers and the cool weather has made the seineing rather unpleasant, so the boys have not been doing much fishing of late, but next spring and summer they expect to have great sport. The carp caught are boiled for the chickens, which appear to be very fond of them and eat large amounts of them. There is no telling what the possibilities of fishing in the sloughs and bayous along the Columbia and Willamette are.

CATCHING "MUD THROAT."—Quite a fishery is carried on along the city front for the chubs, pike, suckers and other coarse fish, which are used by the Chinese community, who will not eat salmon or trout or in fact hardly any of the fish which are eaten by natives. Chinese and whites are engaged in this fishery, but the most extensive business done in this line is carried on by a colored boy. The others use hooks and lines only, but he uses fyke nets in addition. Set lines are strung across the river in a number of places which are overrun and the fish taken off several times daily. The fykes are a sort of cylindrical net, which is kept extended by hoops and has funnel-shaped entrance through which the fish enter to get at the bait, and out of which they are unable to find their way. One of the gangs of fishermen has a sort of tent made of a wagon cover, on a raft below the draw rest of the Morrison-street bridge, where they seek shelter when it rains. When the weather is at all favorable these fishermen make very good wages. They have found out that the carp is not so stupid a fish as some imagine, for, while pike, chubs, young sturgeon, catfish and in fact most of the fish found along the city front will go into fyke nets, the carp never enters them.

FIREMEN WELL RECEIVED.—Assistant Chief Laudonk and the dozen firemen he took with him to assist in extinguishing the fire at Silverton returned to Portland well pleased with the treatment they had received. Mr. Laudonk said yesterday: "We really did little in putting out the fire at Silverton, as we were when we got there that the blaze was dying fast. We, however, left the engine on the car and coupled a line of hose. In a few minutes the house was out. Then the people could not do enough for us, they were so kind. We were treated to an excellent breakfast. The Silverton people nearly extinguished the fire themselves by forming a bucket brigade and working 100 feet of hose. The volunteer hook and ladder company also did good work. The main danger was that the fire might spread to the house where it started, to the 200 feet or so of frame buildings on both sides of the street. That was what the people were afraid of. They cheered us when we left, and there were cries of 'Come back again soon.'"

BEAUTIFUL SUNDAY.—The weather of late has been as misty and foggy as it was in the dawn of creation before the rocks had cooled off and the steam and smoke had blown away. The fog was as thick as pea soup, and nothing at a distance could be seen. Yesterday a gentle breeze, aided by the rather weak rays of a sun, lowered to its lowest level, dissipated the fog, and the blue sky and the distant snow peaks were visible once more. The mountains in their new and glittering coats of fresh snow presented an even more beautiful appearance than usual. A spell of clear, cool weather would be seasonable at this time, but to be appreciated should not be overdone. No ice nor snow is wanted at least till after the new year. Two weeks of fine weather would be greatly appreciated by the merchants, who have made great preparations for the Christmas trade.

SALT DOES UP.—The latest complaint in regard to the trusts is made against the salt trust, and the stockmen are making it. Stock salt, which has been selling for $5 per ton, has been advanced to $8 per ton. This salt is evaporated from sea water, and the stockmen say that there is no evidence that there is any less sea water now than there always has been, or that there is any less salt in it, and therefore they cannot see any reason for the price being raised, except, of course, the very good and sufficient one that the trust wants to make more money. Salt made from sea water and refined and ground is now sold here for the use of dairymen and for the table. Other salts have not been advanced in price as has this sea salt, but Liverpool merchants have canceled prices and have written out here to inquire what is the matter with the salt business.

ST. PATRICK'S FAIR.—The St. Patrick's Catholic Fair still continues at Merrill's Cycles. Lunch from 11 A. M. to 1 P. M. A dance is given each evening, beginning about 9:30.

E. C. JOHNSON, middle-weight champion Multnomah Club, vs. Max Wiley, middle-weight champion United States, Thursday, December 13.

PLEASANT LAYS-OF-A-DUCK.—The tame ducks used by sportsmen as decoys have a very pleasant time, and soon get to enjoy the sport as well as the shooters themselves. They are carefully fed and attended to and locked up in a secure place nights where the mink, skunks and other night prowling "varmints" cannot get at them. On Saturdays they are not fed on many of the shooting grounds, in order that they may be hungry on Sunday so that they will busy themselves hunting for the wheat put out as bait, and so give the wild ducks an idea that there is plenty to eat where they are. Early Sunday morning they are put in sacks and carried out to the place where the wheat has been scattered, where a collar is buckled around their necks with a string attached which has a house shoe on the other end and an anchor. They are placed just far enough apart so that they cannot entangle the cables by which they are anchored, and there they swim around all day, quite contented. When they see some of the wild ducks coming they begin to talk and gabble to each other, and apparently call to the wild birds to come down and eat the wheat. When a shot is fired and a duck or two comes tumbling down among them, they appear to think it a good joke on the wild birds, but are not in the least uneasy, or uneasy, or go on eating wheat quite unconcernedly.

HISTORIC WAGON.—There is nothing very interesting about an old wagon as a general thing, but the running gear of an ancient vehicle, which occupies a room in the third story of the City Hall, attracts a great deal of attention. It is an ordinary thimble-axle affair, constructed of stout timber, 40 years ago, and the inscription on a card appended to the forward bolster reads: "This wagon was made in Indiana in 1851 by James Abraham, and brought by him to Oregon in 1852, drawn by four yokes of oxen and one yoke of cows. Lost the cows and one yoke of oxen on the trip. If the wagon could speak it would tell you a great deal more of that eventful time. The old relic has been in the possession of the Oregon Historical Society for nearly a year, and many a visitor has stood before it, wondering what it has seen and done during its long journey through which it passed were contemplated. Its maker, as well as many of those who braved the wilds of the plains and the dangers of the trail, are now dead, and the old running gear, however, will possess increased interest each succeeding year, as the descendants of the pioneers pass before it.

WORK OF IMPROVING THE SHIP CANAL.—The work of improving the ship canal from front of Astoria past the Sylvia de Grasse reef has been delayed on account of the tug Hercules having carried away all the dolphins placed to mark the boundary of the proposed channel. These dolphins were of steel rails, pointed and driven into the rock, and to replace them requires time. It is proposed to make a straight channel along the edge of the reef 100 feet in length and 200 feet in width, with a depth of 25 feet at low water. As a preliminary to this work, it is marked out into squares of 10 feet, like a checker board, and hydraulic borings will be made at the corners of the squares to ascertain just how much sand or rock has to be removed. This is a work of some difficulty, as the tide runs like a mill race there, and there is a constant liability to such accidents as the carrying away of the first dolphins driven. A crew of 15 men, with all the necessary appliances, are at work on the job under an assistant engineer, and the plan of the proposed channel will soon be prepared.

CANDIDATES FOR UP.—Candidates for the various offices within the gift of the Legislature are coming to be mentioned. Among those said to be in the race are: Ex-Senator E. L. Moorhead, of Junction City, who was Chief Clerk of the Senate in 1898, is again a candidate for the place. E. R. Boyer, of McMinnville, who was Journal Clerk of the House in 1898, is said to be after the Chief Clerkship of that body. Frank Motter, of Portland, and ex-Speaker of the House, is said to be a candidate for the position of Reading Clerk of the Senate. E. W. Allen and Penumbra Kelly, of Portland, are candidates for Sergeant-at-Arms of the House. Frank Davey, of Salem, wants to be Reading Clerk of the House, and E. Middleton, of Portland, wishes to return to his position as Calendar Clerk of the Senate, and D. B. Mackie, of Portland, wishes again to serve the House as Calendar Clerk.

DEATH OF DR. GRANT'S DAUGHTER.—Priscilla Eaton, the 6-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Roland D. Grant, died at Vancouver, B. C., December 3, after an illness of two weeks. The child was of unusually sweet and winsome disposition, and had won her way into the hearts of the many friends her father and mother have made since taking up their residence in Vancouver. The funeral was held December 8, and Miss Annie Grant, the little one's eldest sister, came from Boston to attend it. Many telegrams of condolence were received by the parents, and much sympathy was expressed by their friends in Vancouver.

WOMAN'S CLUB MEETING.—The Woman's Club will meet at the Seligman-Hirsch building Friday afternoon, December 13. The subject of the afternoon will be given on the subject of "Newspaper Work," by Ernest Brown. The musical programme will comprise a violin solo by Mrs. Reginald H. Hadden, and a vocal number by Mrs. Mary A. Morse. The afternoon will close with a general club discussion of "End of the Century Topics," including "What Should Be the Scope of Our Club Work," and "The United States Industrial Commission."

WRESTLING TOURNAMENT.—Multnomah Club, Thursday, December 13, 10 P. M. Admission 5c; members 5c. SPECIAL PRIZES all this week, Bobby Burns' studio, 6th and Morrison streets.

BECK, THE JEWELER.—Bargains in diamonds, watches, silverware and jewelry. Prices the lowest. 307 Morrison.

ALONG THE WATER FRONT.—Along the water front yesterday the center of attraction was the North German Lloyd schooner, Herzogin Sophie Charlotte. Everybody on board was in gala array, the deck and cabins were ship shape and Bristol fashion. The sailors wear a peculiar naval cap, without visor, with two black streamers behind. There was a neat ceremony at sunset, when the flags were taken in. Two men took their places at each of the five flags, the boatswain blew his whistle and they all came down together. The coaster Despatch was at the O. R. & N. dock in Lower Albina, loading four for San Francisco, which will be reshipped to Asia. The longshoremen and truckers were as busy as the traditional miller. She went upstream during the afternoon to finish her cargo with a deckload of lumber. The French barque Allice, at the Irving dock, is one of the few ships in port that refuses to receive callers. She is loading with wheat and canned fruit for Algoa Bay, South Africa. The wheat is put in coffee sacks, and there is a duty on sacks there, and these when emptied will be sold to the coffee planters.

CONFESSED TO MARY BENDIGLI.—Chief of Police McLachlan stated last night that W. Scott, alias W. T. Scott, also Nicholson and Smith, arrested last Saturday for burglary, had made a confession of his crimes, and that he admitted breaking into and stealing articles from these places: H. T. Varwig, 628 East Stark street; J. M. Arthur, Mount Taber; J. Storassler, 734 East Yamhill; F. A. Hartman, 31 East Thirtieth; W. A. Ball, Mount Taber; Leon Justin, Union avenue; Captain James T. Gray, Irvington; W. C. Williams, Williams avenue; T. S. Shann, Twenty-fourth and East Burnside; L. C. Bunting, Mount Taber; a house entered three times near the Good Samaritan Hospital; in Sellwood, locked, and gun stolen; a house back of the racetrack, a rifle stolen; a house opposite the Orphans' Home, plated ware stolen; also Mr. Worril's house at Irvington, and other places. The names of which Scott says he cannot remember. Chief McLachlan wishes to see the people from whom Scott has stolen this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

CAPTAIN W. J. BUCHANAN.—One of the old-time steamboat captains of this section, is quite sick at the residence of his son, Captain W. S. Buchanan, in this city. For a number of years he has been a resident of Yoncalla, Douglas County, and a short time ago he met with a mishap by falling over an oak log, injuring his back and breaking one of his ribs. His son went after him and brought him to Portland, and he is recovering from his injuries, and will probably remain here. He built the Oklahama, in this city, and several other steamboats. He has been in early days, and was a prominent figure in steamboat circles in this section for many years. For the past 10 years he has made his home at Yoncalla, and amused himself in hunting and fishing.

VIC O'CONNOR VS. ALEX DE FRANCE.—Lightweight championship, Multnomah Club.

MRS. W. H. EFFINGER DEAD.—Tribute to a Noble Woman Whose Life Was Filled With Good Works.

Mrs. William H. Effinger, wife of the well-known lawyer, died yesterday at the family residence, 167 Sixteenth street, north, after a brief illness. She was 57 years of age, and was the mother of Miss M. H. Effinger, who is identified with Portland free kindergarten work. This news will be a shock to many Portland people whose privilege it was to be received within the circle of her friendship, these 30 years. Mrs. Effinger represented the highest type of American womanhood. Those who came into contact with her were struck by her gentle, her delicate and humane sense of humor and her never-failing sympathy. Her "quality" is not strained. While Mrs. Effinger was but slightly identified with organized charitable work, her individual labors for the relief of distress were never ending and she carried with her wherever she went a sweetness, a gentleness and a womanliness that transformed her into an angel of goodness and mercy. Women of Mrs. Effinger's stamp are rare and their worth exceeding great. Very many who have been uplifted by some act of hers—always done in private—will bless her memory.

NEW FISH AND GAME LAW

SYNOPSIS OF BILL TO BE PRESENTED TO LEGISLATURE.

Will Come Before Oregon Fish and Game Association at Its Meeting Next Monday.

The annual meeting of the Oregon Fish and Game Association will be held next Monday, December 17, at 1:30 P. M., in the parlors of the Oregon Mining Exchange, Chamber of Commerce building. Sportsmen and others interested in the protection and propagation of fish and game look forward to this meeting with considerable interest, as the report of the legislative committee, which was appointed to revise and codify the fish and game laws, will be submitted to the meeting for discussion and a vote taken as to its adoption or rejection. That the existing fish and game laws should be revised and codified can hardly be disputed, but the committee has found it a difficult task to prepare a draft of a law which will harmonize the various and conflicting sentiments of sportsmen in different sections of the state. The secretary of the association has been in correspondence with sportsmen and others in various portions of the state, and many valuable and important suggestions have been received, and it is believed that the report of the committee represents the best and most satisfactory of these suggestions.

It is the intention to discuss the matter thoroughly at the meeting of the association to be held one week from tonight, and it is hoped that all persons interested in the protection of fish and game will be present and take part in the discussion, as it is the earnest wish of the association to present to the next Legislature a bill that will come very near giving general satisfaction.

The following is a synopsis of the report of the committee. Persons who cannot be present at the meeting, but who wish to express their sentiments concerning any of the proposed changes are requested to write to the secretary of the association, A. E. Gebhardt, who will take pleasure in presenting such communications for the consideration of the meeting.

Synopsis of Report of Committee.

"1. That the trout and game laws be codified so as to present in one act all the statute law upon the subject. All previous acts or portions of acts, upon these subjects to be repealed by specific reference to the various acts and sections, so that there may be no question as to what is intended to be repealed and what should remain as the statute law.

"2. No important changes in the present law as to beaver, deer, elk, spotted fawn, porcupine, mountain sheep and silver squirrel.

"3. Ducks—Season to open September 15 and to close March 1 of the following year. Limit, 50 ducks in one day (Portland members of the association suggest that sale of ducks be prohibited east of the Cascade Mountains). The opening of the duck season was changed from September 15 to September 1, so that the duck season and that of other game birds, as hereinafter mentioned, may open on the same day.

"Grouse—Open season, September 15 to November 15 of each year. Sale prohibited until November 1, 1901; after that date sale to be allowed from November 1 to November 15 of each year. Limit, 15 birds in one day. East of Cascade Mountains: Season for bobwhite, September 15 to November 15, 1901; then open season from August 15 to November 15 of each year.

"Partridge—Open season, from September 15 to November 15 of each year. Limit, 15 birds in one day. East of Cascade Mountains: Season for quail, September 15 to November 15, 1901; then open season from August 15 to November 15 of each year.

"Common partridge—Open season, from September 15 to November 15 of each year. Limit, 15 birds in one day. East of Cascade Mountains: Season for quail, September 15 to November 15, 1901; then open season from August 15 to November 15 of each year.

"Quail, or bobwhite quail—Open season from September 15 to November 15 of each year. Limit, 15 birds in one day. Sale prohibited until November 1, 1901; after that date sale to be allowed from November 1 to November 15 of each year. East of Cascade Mountains: Season for quail, September 15 to November 15, 1901; then open season from August 15 to November 15 of each year.

"Quail, or bobwhite quail—Open season from September 15 to November 15 of each year. Limit, 15 birds in one day. Sale prohibited until November 1, 1901; after that date sale to be allowed from November 1 to November 15 of each year. East of Cascade Mountains: Season for quail, September 15 to November 15, 1901; then open season from August 15 to November 15 of each year.

"Wild turkey—Closed until September 15, 1901; then open season from September 15 to November 15 of each year.

"Trout—Law to remain as now, except that it shall be lawful to catch and possess trout with hook and line, in tide waters only, at all times, excepting during the months of January, February and March of each year. Limit, 10 fish in one day. 125. Lake trout or steelhead trout to apply to new applies to mountain and brook trout. Eastern brook trout and grayling: Closed until April 1, 1902. No trout fishing to be allowed anywhere in state between one hour after sunset and one hour before sunrise. (This is designed to prevent the use of lights or fires while fishing for trout.)

"Persons, firms or corporations operating irrigation ditches to be compelled to put in sleeves or screens, so as to prevent trout from entering the ditches.

"Game warden—To have charge of trout protection in addition to game and forests. To have a sufficient appropriation ($3000) to enable him to appoint five or six chief deputies, upon regular salary, during a portion of the year, who shall assist him in enforcing the law.

"Poisoning of game birds to be prohibited out of the state.

"The carrying of trout and game, in open season, by the fishermen and hunters themselves, to the limit of one day's fish or hunt from Oregon into the State of Washington, to be permitted upon the passage of a similar law by the State of Washington. Such clause to be strictly construed, however, so as not to permit the general transportation of fish or game out of the state.

"Other portions of the fish and game laws to remain as they now are."

GOOD FARCE-COMEDY.

Walter Walker in "That Man" at the Metropolitan.

"That Man" caused no end of laughter and fun last night at the Metropolitan Theater. A crowded house greeted the initial performance, and by the way the audience thoroughly enjoyed the bright farce-comedy heavy patronage will be the rule.

Following along the lines of the usual farce, the play, domesticity and its infirmities, and the heads for the plot. Three wives form a scheme to get even with their devoted but not too constant husbands, and "that man" is the scheme. A hard up but brainy cousin, Theophilus Montjoy, visits his relatives in New York in time to be of use. Taking the tip from the jealousy of his cousin and her friends, he establishes himself as a professional "jealousy arouser," and has clients galore. In the second act the actions of the three erring husbands are all laid bare, the scene being laid in the apartments of Dolores, the French singer, where a masquerade is in progress. Complications and funny situations follow in such succession as to be bewildering. In this play, however, the forgiving nature of woman overcomes the relentless, and all ends serene with "that man" a big winner.

Walter Walker the "jealousy arouser" was a success from the start. Self-assurance was well portrayed, and his scenes in the three acts with the wives of the three erring husbands and with Dolores, the cause of their erring, were all full of genuine fun. Mildred St. Pierre as Dolores, the partner of "that man," was clever in the acting of the adventures. Pauline Duffield, as Mrs. Vane, a client of the "jealousy arouser," was one of the best exponent of fun. Percy S. Sharp as Scubbs, the butler, and Seavate Herbert as Sinkers, the jumping-jack hired man, did particularly clever work in their roles. Edith Blaine as Claire Harvett, and Laura Godard as Dolly Dalton, two of the wives employing means to get even with their erring husbands, were convincing in their work and added attractive in stage presence. The remaining characters of the play were in capable hands.

"That Man," with his bright frivolity, will please the large crowds for the remainder of the week.

COMAN GOES TO SALT LAKE

Gets Promotion in the Oregon Short Line Service.

W. E. Coman returned yesterday morning from a trip to Salt Lake City. He is to be the general agent of the Oregon Short Line at the Mormon city, representing the entire Union Pacific system there. He will take his new position next Saturday, leaving Portland Thursday.

This change is a promotion, both in pay and the opportunities for further advancement, and those who know Mr. Coman's record do not hesitate to say it is deserved. Sixteen years ago, when a lad of 14, he began railroad work in Kansas City. He came to Portland about 12 years ago. He was for some time general agent of the O. R. & N. at Butte. For the past three years and a half he has been general agent of the Oregon Short Line in Portland, and his work has been so satisfactory that he now becomes the general agent at the home town of the company.

F. B. Choate, whom Mr. Coman succeeds at Salt Lake City, was general agent of the freight department. He goes to Pittsburgh to represent the Union Pacific.
