VIEWS OF MUSEUM .- L. L. Hawkins resterday received from C. C. Lewis, of yresterday received from C. C. Lewis, of Mormouth, a set of 46 stereoscopic views, covering the entire display of articles in the City Museum. They are very fine specimens of the photographer's art and give a very good idea of the contents of the museum. Mr. Lewis visited the mu-seum about three weeks ago and as Col-onel Hawkins knew what an artist he was from having seen the work he had done from having seen the work he had done while out on the excursions of the Ma-ramms, he at once insisted on him making a series of storeoscopic views in the mu-"um and he is more than satisfied with the results. SALEM VS. MULTNOMAH,

The sale of sents for the engagement of Frank Daniels in "The Ameer" begins this morning at the Marquam, and it will open with a clean box sheet. A maximum limit of 19 seats to any one purchaser has been fixed.

It is Mr. Danlels' opinion that "The Ameer" affords him the best vehicle he Ameer" affords him the best vehicle he has ever had for the display of his tal-ents. The scene of the opera is in Afghan-istan, the immediate locale being the court grounds of the Ameer. The story is described as being remarkable for its originality and richness in humor, the central theme being the methods which the Ameer is compelled to employ to pre-serve his life. Frank Daniels enacts the title role, and his interpretation is said to be exeruciating in furny. Punctuating to be excruciatingly funny. Punctuating his interpretation are three or four topi-cal songs, quite on a par with his cele-brated "Tattooed Man" in "The Idol's

Eve. Eye." The production of "The Ameer" is set forth as being decidedly the most am-bitious thing yet attempted by the Dan-lels engagement. The scenery is underleis engagement. The scenery is under-stood to be thoroughly in keeping with the spiendor of the Ameer's court. The costuming is written of by the critics as very artistic and effective. The company is much larger than it was last senson. But the Danleis standard of volce and beauty is said to be wholly maintained. Helen Redmond is Danleis' prima donna; Kate Uart his contraino, and Norma Kopp his soubrette. The services of Bhys Thomas, the young American tenor, baye his sounrette. Larkin C. Fortner, of Montavilla, who was held up and shot by a highwayman, near his home last Monday night, died yesterday morning at 11 o'clock from the effects of the wound. His employers, the City & Suburban Rallway, have offered a reward of $200 for the ar-rest and conviction of the murderer. Since the shooting took place, Fortner was in an unconscious condition most of the time, and in his lucid intervals was only able to give the police a meager description of his assailant. Mrs. Fort-ner is left with four children to mourn the loss of father and bread-winner. For-tunately the widow will receive $2000 from an accident policy taken out by her hus-band only a short time ago, and some-thing will also be realized from the bene-ficial organizations of which Fortner was a member. was in an unconscious condition most of

Speaking of the affair yesterday, a Speaking of the affair yesterday, a Montavilla man, who had formerly em-ployed Fortner, said: "Fortner had worked for the City & Suburban Railway for about one year and a haif. He was a powerfully built man, and weighed about 200 pounds. The highwayman is said to be of slight stature, and if he had not 'got the drop' on Fortner with his revolver. Fortner ought to have mashas not got the drop on Former with his revolver, Forther ought to have mas-tered the rufflan easily. Fortner told his mattes more than once that he would never be held up. He was not only strong, but brave. When shot, he had exactly $2 in his pocket. He gave his life to save that sum." Detective Cordano is specially detailed on the case hur so far no areas not the only one made by Mr. Fortner, as to the occurrence, which was made before the latter was considered in danger. Mr. Willard said that Mr. Fortner told him that he was proceeding home along the walk, when a man suddenly appeared in front, walking slowly in the same direc-tion. Fortner thought he had better try and get ahead. When within about eight feet of the man he turned and ordered Fortner to throw up his hands. Mr. Fortner said: "I have nothing for you. Why should I?" They were close to-gether. The man cocked a pistol and Mr. Fortner struck him with his dinner pall, and then the man shot him and Fortner ran toward his nome as far as he could and fail. Mr. Fortner stoid Wit he could and fell. Mr. Fortner told Wil-lard he could not recognize the man, but thought he was a young man.

The verdict was in accordance with these facts. The deccased was 48 years old, and had been a resident of Portland eight years. He was born in Decatur, Ill. He had been in the available Ill. He had been in the employ of the City & Suburban Rallway Company for the past two years, as an engineer, and
