

KRUGER AND HIS GRAFT

PEN PICTURE OF A MAN WHO IS IDOLIZED.

Paul Botha Thinks Very Ill of Him, and Gives Some Evidence That is Interesting.

(Mr. Paul Botha, a typical, rugged, intelligent, and upright Boer, who has been for 20 years a member of the Free State Volksraad, a progressive legislator, and the right-hand man of Mr. John George Fraser, is not publishing at Cape Town a book on the war, says the London Daily Mail. Our correspondent at Bloemfontein, who has seen the MS. of this work, states that its appearance will cause something of a sensation. He has been permitted by Mr. Botha to forward the following chapter for publication in the Daily Mail.)

I have been told that there are people in Europe, in England and in America who admire Paul Kruger.

I can understand our ignorant Boers being misled by a man of powerful personality, who, knowing them well, can play upon their weakness and prejudice like an expert player on the strings of a violin. But that Oom Paul should dupe well-educated people, that I cannot understand.

The only way I can explain this mystery is that a veil of romance has grown round this rugged old man, and that Europe being 600 miles away, accepts him as seen through the eyes of his duped burghers.

He made the burghers believe that he was a prophet, who, like Moses, was the means of communication between God and his chosen people. This is literally true. In the early days he often vanished for long periods, and when he came back he made the people believe that he had communed with God. It is absolutely believed by the burghers that Kruger, who was in Heidelberg at the time, 100 miles from the scene, knew the result of the battle of Majuba on the very morning it was fought.

Add to this indomitable will, through which he made himself believe that there were two Gods, one in heaven and one on earth, and his undoubted courage, proved in many Kaffir wars, then you will understand his despotic influence.

Home Truths.
Let me tear this veil of false romance from him, and let me try to show the man to you as he really is, and as those Boers whom he has not succeeded in duping always knew him to be.

We know him an avaricious, unscrupulous and hypocritical man, who sacrificed the entire people to his cupidity, and who made the people believe that he was a prophet, who, like Moses, was the means of communication between God and his chosen people.

Let me tear this veil of false romance from him, and let me try to show the man to you as he really is, and as those Boers whom he has not succeeded in duping always knew him to be.
