matter, refusing to receive the bonefit of any doubtful methods. Mr. Corbett's more recent enterprises, such as building of the Portland Hotel, and other large buildings at his home city his career as a banker and his hearty backing of commercial interests and en terprises all over the state are well known. Mr. Corbet has amassed a large ortune, but no one can point out where he has made money by dishonorabl methods, has robbed any one, or has had the benefit of legislation or governm favors. His success has been great, no one can say that it might not have been much greater, if Mr. Corbett had subordinated all to money-making. Money aubordinated all to money an object of of late years has not been an object of bis Bis liberal bestowals of his his life. means to worthy objects proves him to be a man who does not live for self alone, and in this respect he has shown a progressive spirit, and set an example to n of wealth that cannot but have a good

THE OREGON SENATORSHIP

Comment on a Recent Interview in

The Oregonian.

Selem Cupital Journal

The unequivocal manner in which Mr. Lot Pearce, one of the Marion delegation in the Legislature, declares for Mr. Corbett for Senator, is a handsome tribute from one of the younger generation of successful business men to one of the of successful outsnows men to one of the older. From the business standpoint Mr. Corbett has much to commend him. He came to Oregon as a young man and with about 1560 of his own capital. Busi-ness men of his native state were willing to trust merchandise in his hands, and their confidence was well bestowed. In two years young Corbst cleared over 140, 000, and returned to New England and turned one-half of it over to his backers.

His reputation for commercial asgacity and enterprise was established and henceforward he had credit and standing among the best merchants of the Atlantic Coast. His first stock of goods was shoved into an old warehouse on the river, and he had to sleep among the bales and boxes armed to the teeth to protect the property. But he accounted for every One of his earliest enterprises was to secure a contract to run the overland stage line, and this he excessfully conducted between Portland and San Francisco for many years, chearing on the whole contract $375,000, and yet underbid ding the old contract by a large sum and giving an improved service. Once a pe-tition was circulated that would have largely increased the profits of Mr. Corbett heard of it and promptly appeared before Congress and repudiated the whole bott's then existing contract.

Mr. Pearce evidently believes the peo-ple respect a man who has made an hon-orable success in a business career, and will not listen to the cry of down with him because he is rich. Among the Re-publican aspirants. Mr. Corbett stands alone, declaring exactly where he stands on all important matters. He has de-clared for free commercial intercourse with our island possessions. He is opposed to a ship subsidy steal at a time posed to 4 ship subsidy steal at a time, when all the subpards in America have all the contracts they can execute for years. He believes in a sepresentative form of government for the islands in-stead of a military role, and colonial pol-icy. He has dared to say his soul is his own on these and other superiors and own on these and other questions, and has reflected, as we believe, true policies for ...s masses of the people on these and other great issues. We believe he stands for the true business interests of our great Northwest.
