Obstructions in the Nose. Harper's Bazar,

Very many young children have the bad habit of pushing small hard sub-stances, as shoe-buttons, beans or peas, into the cars or nostrils. A simple way to remove an object from the nose is to com-press the opposite side and make the child blow his nose violently. If he will not do this, induce a sneeze tickling the nostrils with a feather, blade of grass, or some fluffy substance. If this, too, is not cessful, a little pepper or snuff should used. A hard sneeze will probably renove the obstruction, but always keep the opposite side of the nose compressed. If the trouble is in the ear, it is a lit-tic more serious, and the object more dif-ficult to remove. Insects bugs, beads, or small pebbles may be forced out by gently syringing the ear with warm water, or by pouring in a few drops of oil or gly-cerine. But if the object be large and so tightly wedged in that it cannot be easily removed with the fingers, do not tamper with it, but take the child to a good surist. If the object be a pea or bean, it is better not to use a syringe, as the water will cause it to swell. An old and excellent way to remove these obstructions is to dip a comel's-hair brush or small stick which has been tapered off to almost a point, in some stout giue; at-tach this to the offending body and allow the giue to harden, then gently draw it
