United States Government Asked to Haul Merchandise for Rates Far Below What Railroad Companies Charge.

The parcels post bill now pending in the United States Senate is simply an-other scheme of the Middle West jobbers to invade the territory of the Pacific Coast commercial cities. It aims to make the United States mail a common carrier for the yobbers of Chicago, St. Louis, St. Paul and other cities, and to put into ef-fect pastage rates on merchandise in bulk far below rallroad freight and express rates. The present postage rate on mer-chandise is 56 cents per pound, and parceis are limited to four pounds. The lowest rallroad rite on merchandise h lowest a Pacific Coast terminal point is about a cented to four pounds is about to a Pacific Coast terminal point is about carload lots from the Mississippi River to a Pacific Coast terminal point is about 1 cent a pound, and nothing that would a racine coast terminal point is about 1 cent a pound, and nothing that would not carry a $2.60 rate may be shipped. Now comes the parcels post bill, with a proposal to land 60 pounds of merchandise -a less than carload shipmeni-on the Pacific Coast for 40 cents, or $1.50 less than the railroad charges for the hand than the railroad charges for the haul. Present postage.rates on 80 pounds of merchandise shipped in 15 separate pack-ages of four pounds each are 20 80.

The bill provides that the rates it makes shall be applied to bulk as well as to weight, in the same proportion, under arrangements to be made by the Post-office Department. Postage must be pre-paid or the rate will be doubled; and the charge includes house collection and delivery where a wagon or car collection and delivery service has been or may be established. In towns where there is only foot service, the postman is not required to carry any parcel weighing more than five pounds. If the bill becomes have Partianders will see United States mail wagons delivering furnishing goods, household utenetis and the like from Chicago to houses which have wagon The bill provides that the rates it makes shall be applied to bulk as well as to weight, in the same proportion, under arrangements to be made by the Post-effect Denartment.
