THREE SWALLOWERS A RING.—The capture at Sixth and Washington streets of a colored man who had stolen a $10 diamond ring and was endeavoring to escape with it caused great excitement in that locality about 10 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The thief, whose name is Charles Turner, went into Wright's jewelry store on Morrison street about 9 o'clock and looked at some diamonds and a case of diamonds rings. From his actions the clerks imagined that he intended to purchase, and so remarked after he went out. About 10 o'clock he came back and was looking over a tray of rings, but finally he said he would buy one of the loose diamonds in the safe. The clerk went to the safe after the diamonds and when he came back he saw that one of the rings was missing from the tray. He told Mr. Jaeger, the head clerk, and as Hunter bolted out at the door Jaeger followed, shouting "Stop thief!" The thief ran to the corner of Sixth and Washington. Jaeger close at his heels, and many as he passed joining in the hue and cry, and striking at him with umbrellas or sticks, he tried to trip him. At Sixth and Washington he was captured by ex-Detective Joseph Kelly. As he was rising to his feet Jaeger saw the ring in his hand and saw him put the hand to his mouth, and he then acted as if in pain and endeavoring to swallow something which hurt him, so it is considered certain that he swallowed the ring. He was taken to the police station and looked up in a crib cell, and will be carefully looked after for a time. Hunter is said to be implicated in some way with the colored man arrested here a short time ago for stealing diamonds in Seattle. The police say he has a white woman for a paramour, and is no good generally. A colored man tried to work pretty much the same racket in Hettikemper's jewelry store a few days ago, but just as he had got hold of a paper of loose diamonds he saw a clerk watching him and he lost interest. It is supposed this man was Hunter.

SAILOR DROWNED.—Charles Robinson, a sailor belonging to the British ship Province, was drowned at the Star Sand Company's dock at an early hour yesterday morning, and his body was recovered by Hugh Brady, with grappling irons, at 1:30 P. M. Robinson had been up town and was making his way back to his ship, which lay alongside the dock. He seemed to have missed his reckoning when within a few feet of the vessel, and was seen by some of his shipmates to fall off the edge of the dock. A boat was lowered, but not soon enough to save his life. He was about 28 years of age, and had shipped on board the Province last July at Cardiff, Wales. He was a single man and had not been ashore for several months previous to the vessel's arriving in this city. At the inquest yesterday afternoon a verdict of accidental drowning was rendered. The remains will be interred this afternoon in the sailors' plot at Riverside cemetery, services being held at Holman's undertaking parlors.

REARWAY MIX-UP.—A brief but lively rearway encounter between a car and a horse-drawn wagon collected a large number of people on Third street in front of the Dekum building yesterday forenoon. A mining man named Brown was driving down Third street when the pole of the wagon struck out of the neckyoke. The pole whacking against the logs of the spirited team caused them to run away, but in a short distance when the horse was tugged the buggy and ran into the buggy of Dr. Nichols, which was standing by the curb. His horses got their legs through the wheel of the upset buggy, and in breaking away one of them got his leg caught in a bicycle rack, which he broke and extracted himself. There was a sweet mix-up of horses and buggies for a time, but everything came out in the wash, and no particular damage was done, except a broken neckyoke and some patches of hair rubbed off one of Dr. Nichols' horses.

NO BRUISES LOST.—The street lamps were not burning in any part of the city last night except on a few circuits on the East Side, which are connected with the power station of the East Side Railway Company. The circuits for lighting houses were all running, but rather weakly. The cause of the trouble was the excessive high water at Oregon City, both above the electric company's generating station and below the latter being caused by back water from the Clackamas, which was pouring out an unusually large volume of water. The back water shut off the head at the station and flooded the bottom below to a greater depth than in 1884. The lights will probably be all right tonight, as the water was falling at Salem yesterday, and the Clackamas was running last evening.

CARRIED OFF WOOD ALSO.—All old Oregonians understand the effects of the heavy chinook wind and how it causes a fall of snow to go off in a hurry, but not all of them realize that the chinook can cause other things beside snow to go off. A woodhauler who got stalled with a load of wood at Park and Taylor streets, in the height of the snow storm, a few days ago, and who threw off part of his load there, says a chinook wind is a bad thing. When he came back the next morning to look for his wood the chinook had taken both it and the snow off. He inquired around the neighborhood, and then called in the police, but has not yet been able to find where the snow or his wood went to, and the chinook will never tell.

STAGGERED BY ROBBERY.—Robert Oglesby, a young man of Lakewood, was landed in the county jail yesterday on the charge of robbing the mail. He was a stagered and wanted more money than he had in order that he might get married on Christmas. He reported that he had been held up by robbers, who rifled the mail, but investigation failed to bear out his story, and he finally confessed that he had himself perpetrated the robbery. He obtained $750. A marked $10 bill led to his apprehension and the mail robber Marshall Humphrey left Lakewood with his prisoner nearly two weeks ago, but was delayed by the storms that blacked all travel in the mountains between Lakewood and the railroad.

AX KILPATRICK.—An L. L. L. Celestial who is known to the police as a chronic ax thief, was sent to the County Jail yesterday for 30 days by Judge Cameron. Luns had recently served a year in jail for having stolen an ax and saw-buck, but the lesson seems to have been lost on him. The police say that he is honest enough to raise to everything else which may be lying around loose, but when an ax comes under his eye he seems unable to resist the temptation to make off with it.

ANNUAL BOLA GAMES.—The adjourned annual meetings of the First Congregational Church and Society will be held this evening in the church parlors. Supper will be served at 6 o'clock. The business of the evening will begin promptly at 7:30. All members of the church and society are urged to be present.

LEO BROKEN.—Charles Lohmire, a horse-shoer, while attempting to board a car at Fulton, slipped and fell, and his leg was broken near the knee. He was assisted to his home and a doctor was summoned, who drew the injury. He will be laid up for some time.

LECTURES BY DR. J. M. MILLER.—Lectures by Dr. J. M. Miller, professor of the English language and literature in the University of California, will deliver a course of six lectures on popular subjects, under the auspices of the Teachers' Club, beginning February 5.

LECTURE BY MR. JOSEPH N. TEAL.—"Self-Government in Municipal Affairs." Friday, 8 P. M. Eastern Chapel. Free tickets, six lectures, 15 cents; single admission, 25 cents.

DENTAL WORK FREE.—At college, corner Fifteenth and Couch streets, except a small fee to cover cost of material, for those in moderate circumstances.

BIRD CARNATIONS.—40 and 50 doz.; lilies and violets. Burkhardt's, 2nd & Gilliam.

STREET-CAR SERVICE CRIPPLED.—Lock of power caused by the flood at Oregon City occasioned considerable delay in operating the cars of the Portland Street Railway yesterday, inasmuch as the plant of the Portland General Electric Company, from which all the power is received, was seriously interfered with. During the morning drift floating in the river carried away the cable at the Burnside-street bridge, by means of which power is carried from the substation at Seventh and Alder streets to operate the Vancouver line. This entirely cut off the power from that line for almost an hour, while arrangements were being made to make connections with other wires. None of the delay in running cars on any of the lines was due to any other cause than the shortage of power at Oregon City and the carrying away of the cable at the Burnside-street bridge.

POOLROOMS GET THEM.—Portland policemen yesterday drew their pay for the service of the past three months. The sum disbursed was $11,700. It was released as the outcome of the action begun a few days ago by Sergeant John T. Moore, for himself and all the other members of the force, from patrolmen to Chief, against the City of Portland. The case was heard by Judge Frazer who gave judgment Tuesday for the plaintiffs. Moore took Judge Frazer's order to Mayor Rowe and City Auditor Devin and waited while the latter drew the warrant. This was presented to the City Treasurer, who marked it "Not paid for want of funds," whereupon it began to draw 6 per cent interest. The warrant was sold to the First National Bank and the policemen and police officials yesterday got their cash.

BOARDSMAN KEPT UP.—Henry Krius, a boarding-house keeper at 604 Guilds avenue, was held up at 3:30 last night and robbed of $125 in gold. He was on his way home after cashing some of his boarders' checks, and at a single man and had not been ashore for several months previous to the vessel's arriving in this city. At the inquest yesterday afternoon a verdict of accidental drowning was rendered. The remains will be interred this afternoon in the sailors' plot at Riverside cemetery, services being held at Holman's undertaking parlors.

MENACED BY DRIFTWOOD.

Morrison-Street Bridge Made a Boom for Logs.

High water kept the Morrison-street bridge busy all yesterday trying to dislodge driftwood from the stone pier at the east end of the draw. Great logs and huge trees were borne on the logs and the current all day, and the drift was constantly receiving accessions, which were pulled away by the aid of a long rope. The bridge was closed for several hours, and the water in the draw was some 50 feet in depth at the pier, and a heavy barricade of logs gathered at such a height from the bottom of the river made a pressure against the structure, which was regarded as ominous by the spectators, who realized the power of a rapid river.

The water continued to rise slowly all day on the draw rest, and at night was washing against the 25-foot mark, and the drift, which was about 30 feet in diameter, was master of the situation, as the men cannot work at such dangerous business in the dark.

A drift gathered at the east end of the Burnside-street bridge, but no attention was paid to it, as the pressure was not against the structure itself. The logs on this bridge were annoyed by the refusal of the draw to close for about two hours in the afternoon on account of swelling timbers at the west end of the draw. Pedestrians and wheelmen could make their way across, but street-cars and teams were stopped for the time being.

The steel bridge was also clear of timber, as the current carried the logs well away from the pier. The bridge, however, did strike on one of the east end piers, but the force did not freeze the caisson, though it broke the huge tree across the middle. The caisson, however, were constantly on the watch for steamers approaching from above, and did not wait for the whistle before commencing to clear the draw for opening. This extra caution was necessary on account of the rapid current, which would break no delay if a hitch should happen to occur in the opening of the draw.

The great mass of drift that came down the river yesterday indicated that the floods had reached a higher stage in some of the upper tributaries of the Willamette than for years. Huge black logs that had lain idle in some river bottom for decades were accompanied by hundreds of new saw logs that had escaped the day before from some logger's burst boom. Occasionally a big birch timber would drift rapidly by with iron bolts still attached, showing that some up-river country or other would have to draw warrants pretty soon for rebuilding. Altogether the value of the drift was enormous.

The river was at a standstill last night and a fall is expected today. The drift, however, kept up a pretty good run all night.

HIRED TO FIRE THE MILL?

CLARK'S DEPOSITION AGAINST CONNELL OFFERED.

Dependent Told Attorney La Force That He Was Paid $300 to Commit Arson.

What is considered the decisive point in the case of the Hartford Insurance Company vs. Thomas Connell, to recover $2500 on the allegation of arson, was reached as the court closed its session yesterday afternoon. Every attorney in the case was brought to his feet in the air by the deposition of the defendant, Thomas Connell, who was introduced to the court by his attorney, Mr. La Force. The deposition was a little life into the dull dragging of the session. On the part of the attorneys for the plaintiff, Sanderson Reed and Wirt Minor, there was a quiet consultation, after which an innocent-looking package was submitted to the court to be introduced as evidence. It was the deposition of F. B. Clark, the confessed incendiary, who turned state's evidence in the Superior Court of Skamania County, Wash., and charged Thomas Connell with hiring him to fire the building. Clark, having disappeared after Connell's conviction, the vital point in the present action to recover the insurance money was to secure or prevent the introduction of Clark's testimony.

Attorney George E. Chamberlain objected to the admission of Clark's deposition on the ground that Clark had not answered the questions asked, that the document was not officially certified, nor affixed with the proper revenue stamps. A vigorous debate then arose whether the deposition should be read before the jury, and whether the argument on the question should be before the jury, him and the other attorneys.

"We see your play," remarked Mr. Thomas to the plaintiff's attorneys. "You're trying to get that deposition introduced before the jury."

"It's proper that it should be before the jury. That's all we want," replied Mr. Minor. Judge George adjourned court, and the point will be argued today.

William La Force, an attorney, was the principal witness for the plaintiff. He was subjected to a vigorous and insinuating cross-examination in accordance with the line of defense set by the defense attorneys. A blackmailing scheme, with Clark, against Connell. La Force gave the following account of his connection with the case:

"Clark was my client, and came to me to give me some work to do. I saw Connell that day, and he said that he would see me in the afternoon, and maybe would have some work for me. After that Clark came and said he had a claim against Connell, and employed me. He told me the whole story of the conspiracy between himself and Connell, and that he was to receive $300 to burn the mill."

La Force then detailed his negotiations with Connell. He said Connell had never, in so many ways, admitted that he had employed Clark at the price. He said he disliked being mixed up in such business, but considered it his duty, however, to protect his client against Connell and the law.

A. A. Roberts, a contractor, testified that Connell offered to sell him the mill for $2000 in property, or $3000 in cash.

William Chalmers, an insurance adjuster, testified that Connell told him that the fire that Clark was in British Columbia, and denied knowing his whereabouts in Portland. He said the adjustment was made on a $500 valuation of the property.

E. B. Clark, a native of the State of Oregon, testified that he had called on Clark three times about the last of June or the first of July.

Evidence that Clark was penniless, with a view to showing his inability to assume the responsibility of a contract, was ruled out, as having too remote a bearing on the case.

IN THE CITY COUNCIL.

Shadow on Title to Hawthorne Park Dismissed—Routine Matters.

Outside of routine street work but little business of importance was transacted at the meeting of the Common Council yesterday. The general fund was drawn on to pay interest on the money a number of citizens borrowed to improve their streets. A report for repairs to sewers damaged by the late freshet, expenses of litigation, etc. An ordinance to extend the fire limits on the West Side was read twice. Mayor Rowe presiding, the following members were present except Holbrook.

Shadow on Title Dismissed.

City Attorney La Force submitted a communication stating that after an exhaustive examination of the chain of title, he has no hesitation in stating that the Hawthorne heirs have a perfect and complete title in fee simple to the whole of Hawthorne Park, and furthermore, there was not the slightest ground or justification for any person questioning the Hawthorne ownership of the Hawthorne Park property. A report that the city had a claim on this property was started by A. D. Rockefeller and so persistently maintained that the Council was compelled to have the matter investigated, with the result that the shadow was entirely dispelled by the adoption of the City Attorney's report.
