How His Lags WERE EVENED UP.— Time sets all things even, and one injury often offsets the pain of another, in the opinion of H. P. Christensen, who is now able to walk without limping. A few days ago, while superintending some of, his men employed in a store, he stepped backward to get a better view of the work and dropped through a trap in the floor. He fit the aperture as if he had been measured for it, and bruised one of his legs rather severely in his descent, been measured for it, and bruised one of his logs rather severely in his descent, beside joiling several ribs, and displacing some of his vital organs. He walked with pain and difficulty till Wednesday night, when, as he was going home with two friends, in crossing the bridge on Sev-onteenth street, north-the street lights all being out—he stepped his well leg into a hole in the bridge caused by a plank being too short, and went down as far being too short, and went down as far as the hole would admit. His friends pulled him out, and he was much sur-prised and pleased to find that he could walk without limping, the injuries to his legs being so evenly balanced that he had no reason for favoring either. In looking over the bridge the next morning he found another hole where he could have fixed a third leg if he had had one. He expects the city to fix the holes in the bridge, and will look out for trapdoors himself becoming.

LETTRIC-CARRIERS HAVE A BRASS BAND.

The letter-carriers connected with the Portland Postoffice have organized a brass band of 22 pieces, and the members are blowing every lung tester in the city out of the water. They have engaged the services of Professor John Everest as instructor, and H. M. Barrett, superintendent of city delivery, is business manager. They have practiced five evenings, and are making rapid progress, and will LETTER-CARRIERS HAVE A BRASS BAND. and are making rapid progress, and will seen be able to drown out the Salvation Army band. It is not the intention of this band to enter into competition with pro-fessional bands for business, but they will play on public occasions and at social and charitable functions, and may per-haps give a concert to provide funds for purchasing uniforms. purchasing uniforms. As there are 50 regular carriers on the force, and 12 substitutes, there is no lack of musical talent among them to select from. As the chests of the carriers are compressed during the day by the straps of the heav-ily loaded pouches they carry around, an hour or two spent in blowing clariousts, trombenes, etc., will have a beneficial effect on their lungs, and increase their PROTECTING SEWER INLETS.-City Endineer Chase has a force of men at work clearing out the large catch-basin at the lead of Johnson Creek sewer, where a large amount of gravel, sand, etc., accumulated during the late freshet. He is also having the basins and gratings at the inlets to the Tanner Creek and Marquam Gulch sewers looked after, to pre-vent danger of damage in case of further heavy storms. The fact that all the cutlets of the large sewers were well prepared for such emergencies saved much trouble and expense, for the sewers were tested to their utmost capacity, and in spite of all precautions, the top of the Tanner Creek sewer was forced off near the corner of the Exposition Build-ing. As the damage is not serious, this break will be left till fine weather for epair. The outlets will be put in good rder as soon as possible.

COUNSELLOR FOLDY ARROAD. — Mayor Rowe is in receipt of a second letter from Counsellor William Foley, dated Genoa, Imiy, December 25, 1909. After thoroughly Inspecting Paris, Mr. Poley is enjoying the sights of Genea, the superb, where Columbus was born and where Daniel O'Connell, the uncrowned King of Ireland, died, and various and sundry other things have happened since the Christian eta begun, and before. Mr. Poley will probably be next heard from at Rome, and how far beyond the Eternal City he may extend his flight is uncertain.

Will Thy Dairting in Coos.—George Bennicks, for many years a resident of Portland, was a caller at the Permanent Exhibit yesterday. He inquired about the resources of Coos County, saying that he had made up his mind to try dairying, with cattle, sheep and pork as side lasues.
