Butter and eggs were rather weak. Though Eastern eggs are out of the Portland market, the but-foreign and Eastern quotations early in the week was but faintly reflected here. Though sales are few, a great deal of grain is moving to tide water, and tue warehouse room may soon be taxed to accommodate it. Most of the warehouses still have space to spare, but if there shall be much more delay in the arrival of chartered vessels this space will all be ccupied. On one of the Portland wherves there is now about 14,000 tons of grain awaiting shipment. The only new charter reported this week is that of the French bark La Rochefoucauld, which esent prices, however, it is hardly likely that a decline will increase the sales.

Crop conditions in the Northwest are favorable for a large grain yield next season. Reports from Eastern wheatgrowing sections are also for the most part favorable for the crop. Still, the very mildness of the Winter holds elements of danger, for there is hardly snow enough to protect the plants from the frost. Nothing as yet appears to threaten the Northwest crop in any respect, and the price is not low enough to affect a reduction of the acreage of Spring sow-upon wool. Manufacturers, profiting from the experience of a year ago, are buying only what they need for immediate use. The Boston market is inactive, and even the London sales are comparatively sluggish. Though orders are now being booked for next Winter's heavy wear, the wool market does not show anything like the response that was expected. There is no speculating. Buyers have been withdrawn from Oregon and more than % withdrawn from Oregon and more than % Wal %; marten, dark Northern 18910; do, per cent of last year's cilip remains in the warehouses. FRUIT-Oranges are moving fairly free, but the best of the California crop is yet to come into the market. The price has kept up rather better than was expected in the face of the heavy receipts. A Southern California fruitshipping association that has been sending a good deal of fruit to Portland got the idea this week that it was not getting a fair share of the trade here, and it put a couple of carloads of oranges in the hands of one of the commission dealers to sell to retailers at cut prices. These have been sold in Portland for less than the price of the stock in Redlands. The other deniers profess not to be disturbed by this proceeding, and to be firm in their determination not to increase their patronage of the complaining concern; indeed, the disposition is to stop dealing with it altogether. Of course, the regular orange market has been considerably interfered with, but this disturbing factor has not reached the outside demand. Oregon apples reach the Portland market in smaller quantity than is desirable, but the price mpers the domand for them. Southern Oregon is shipping apples to San Francisco as well as to Portland.

BUTTER AND CHEESE - California creamery butter is coming into the Portand market in considerable quantities. It may now be bought here for less than than the price of Oregon creamery, but transportation from Humboldt Bay to San Francisco and then to Portland does not improve the product, and Oregon butter can easily hold its own in competition with that from the south when the difference in price is not more than 5 cents a pound. This limit, however, the Califormin butter is now pressing, and it is expected that the Oregon product will soon bring a less price.

The cheese market is stiffening, and the price advanced yesterday I cent a pound. Much of Portland's choose supply comes from Tillamook, and none is produced at this season of the year. The price can not go much higher before importations will be made from the dairy centers of the East

POULTRY AND EGGS-A short time ago the pouliry market was very strong and the commission-houses sent the information abroad and invited consignments. The farmers up the Valley saw the point and began sending in their chickens, and this week the Portland market is glutted. and it has unloaded on Puget Sound all that could be taken there, competing succeasfully with the Eastern poultry that is the main dependence of that market. And will the poultry comes. Most of it is not of the best quality, which adds to the difficulty of disposing of it. Last year was a great one for poultry-raising, and the farmers are now inclined to rush their stock on the market.

Errs had a downward tendency yester. day, and it was reported that some of the dealers were selling at 1 cent under the quotations. Lower prices are expected, There is no Eastern stock left in the Portland market.

HIDES AND FURS-The market fo hides and furs is very dull. There are practically no sound hides at this time of the year. Oregon furs are yearly becom ing less, and the supply this season is materially less than of last Winter. There is a fair demand for such as are offered and prices are good
