IN QUEEN'S MEMORY

Services at the First Baptist Church Sunday.

GOVERNOR GEER'S SYMPATHY

British Residents of Portland Postpone Social Functions, and Many Will Wear Mourning for One Month.

Memorial services for Queen Victoria will be held in the First Baptist Church, Sunday evening, at 7:30 o'clock. This was decided on yesterday at a meeting of British and Canadian residents, at the office of British Consul Laidlaw. The societies represented were: British Consul, St. Andrew's, Order of Scottish Clans, and Portland Caledonian Club. Mr. Laidlaw was chairman, and John Latta secretary. All present were mourning. After a general discussion of the loss which the world has sustained by the death of the good Queen, the memorial service was decided on. It will be open to members of all denominations. It was the opinion of the meeting that members of the various British societies are naturally entitled to first claim on such a day, and this will be sent to the secretary of the British societies for distribution among their members. These will be good for seats until 7:15 o'clock, when the doors will be thrown open to the public. Rev. Dr. A. A. Morrison, of Trinity Episcopal Church, a native of Dublin, Ireland, will have charge of the service.

Consul Laidlaw has received the following message of condolence from Governor Geer, of Oregon: "I wish to express to you, and through you to the Queen, my profound respect and the sympathy of the people of Oregon at your great loss in the death of Her Britannic Majesty, Queen Victoria. Having ruled so long, so humanely, and over so great a nation, her death is a profound loss to the world, and I extend the condolence and deepest sympathy of our people."

Consul Laidlaw says he will cable the Governor's message, through the British Foreign Office, to King Edward VII. No other official messages, he said, had been received at the Consulate. The British ensign floated at half-mast over the British Consulate yesterday, and a line of black crepe hung from the windows and covered the consular shield. Flags are at half-mast at the French, German and Swedish Consulates. The Mexican Consul, F. A. Spencer, does not have an official office, but he displayed the Mexican flag at half-mast from his residence, 55 Irving street. All the Consulate spoke of the deep regret with which they heard, through the newspapers, of the Queen's death, but said that they had had no official communication on the subject. French Consul Labbe said that two French ships at Astoria displayed their flags at half-mast. The Stars and Stripes and the Commercial Club ensign floated at half-mast from the Commercial Club. Ships in the harbor have their flags lowered.

Postmaster Crossman directed one of his assistants to hasten the Stars and Stripes yesterday morning. The assistant inquired dubiously: "Did President McKinley order this?" He seemed to fear that international complications might arise. The Postmaster replied that the American flag was at half-mast at the White House at Washington, and that this was enough for him. So the flag was hoisted over the Postoffice. There was no flag over the City Hall. The head janitor said that the Mayor was not here to give the necessary order. In offices and stores throughout the city, where British and Canadians work, the Queen's memory is kept green, and her good deeds and pure life extolled. Several are of the opinion that quite a number of stores will be closed on the day when the Queen is buried. In the homes of British residents, yesterday, there was sadness, and all social functions have been declared postponed. The British Benevolent Society has deferred its conversation, and the Caledonian Club its concert and dance until February 1. Many British people will wear mourning one month. Last night, Consul Laidlaw said: "I desire to return thanks for the good-feeling which prompted the half-masting of public and private flags, upon receipt of the news of the death of Her Majesty, Queen Victoria."

SOLD OLEOMARGARINE.

The Dairy Commissioner Complains Against a Restaurant Proprietor. J. W. Hemsworth, the proprietor of a Yamhill-street restaurant, was served with a warrant yesterday charging him with selling oleomargarine without advertising its true nature. The complainant is State Food and Dairy Commissioner Bailey. The case will be heard in the Municipal Court. A carload of oleo recently arrived in Portland and Commissioner Bailey has been watching its sale to see that the law was obeyed. The statute says that in any public dining-room where adulterated food or drinks are sold, the bill of fare shall state the fact, or if no bill of fare is used, that a printed notice thereof shall be placed in a conspicuous place. It is charged that Hemsworth did not obey the law in this respect.

SPRING CLOSE AT HAND

FLOWERS AND PEACH TREES IN BLOOM IN CITY GARDENS.

Balmey Days Not Far Away When Columbia River Smelt Sell at Five Cents a Pound.

Yesterday was the kind of a day to make any one feel certain that Spring was at hand, if not here, in fact. The warm sunshine and a drying breeze made the streets and sidewalks quite dry and more cheerful looking than they have been for some time. There was a coolness in the air, however, which is never missing so long as there is snow in the mountains, and there is plenty of it there now. Vegetation is making progress, buds are swelling, and flowers putting forth on every hand. In a yard on Yamhill street a peach tree was seen in an advanced stage of blooming, and in another day or two of fine weather it will be in full bloom. Another thing which looked very springlike was a great display of Columbia River smelt on a long table on the sidewalk, being sold as fast as they could be weighed at 5 cents per pound. When smelt get down to 5 cents per pound, Spring is not far away. An old resident of the western part of the county said the weather put him in mind of the early Spring of 1898. He remembered the season very well, for he arrived here that Spring and the weather was warm and the ground dry early in February. On the place his father bought there were many large stumps, and the original locator, in the true spirit of early pioneer good-fellowship, had built a large hog-pen in the front yard of his residence for greater convenience in feeding his pigs. This his father set fire to and burned up, early in February, and the sparks from it set fire to a large number of stumps in the vicinity, which shows that things were dry at that time.

PAWNEED WEDDING GOWN.

Nicholas Grobe Arraigned for Threatening His Wife.

Nicholas Grobe was arraigned in the Municipal Court yesterday having threatened to kill his wife, Bertha. He said: "I never threatened to harm my wife. I only went to her place, and asked her to live with me again." Grobe pawned her wedding gown and his wedding suit and nearly everything he could lay hands on, and that she could not trust him any more. The case was continued.

GAS ROTTS ASPHALT.

Sixth-Street Pavement Broken by Heavy Traffic.

Repairs are being made to the asphalt pavement on North Sixth street, between Davis and Flamingo, and many of the holes are being filled at the expense of the abutting property-owners. The enormous traffic between the business portion of the city and the big freight-houses on the terminal grounds for all very severe on that part of the street, and constant patching is necessary. Men in charge of the repairs think that leaks in the gas mains have a good deal to do with the bad condition of the pavement between Burnside and Glean streets, as gas tends to rot the asphalt and render it too weak to bear the burden of heavy teams. Besides, the surface of the ground is very level, and water runs off the pavement slowly. Mud which is carried on wagon wheels from the cross streets is permitted to remain longer than is beneficial, and the grit thus formed grinds into the asphalt under the intemperate wheels.
