SUPPLANT NEGROES.

Planters Employing Italians in Preference to Africans.

New York Times.

"There is a queer change coming in the character of the laborers employed on Louisiana plantations," commented Arthur F. X. McCabe, of Baton Rouge, while the question of restricting immigration was under discussion. "Our field labor for generations has been negro men and women and children. We have been brought up to the idea that negroes were the only sort of help we could employ in cotton fields or on sugar plantations. Within the decade fruit handlers have brought to New Orleans hosts of Italians as roustabouts, and they have gradually replaced the darky all along the waterfront of the city. This year thousands of Italians have been brought to the sugar plantations about New Orleans for work there in place of the darkies. Their employment has proved most satisfactory. They are better behaved, more easily managed, and less inclined to suddenly leaving their work for a rest and a spree than are the negroes. They have taken kindly to the labor, the climate, of course, agrees with them, and the darkies now find themselves facing a new problem in their ways of making a living. I should not be at all surprised to see Italians entirely supersede negroes in our fields within five years' time. That would, perhaps, prove a good thing for our community in that it would scatter the negroes all about the country. On the other hand, it may prove troublesome to get too many 'dagoes' among us. These imported laborers are not the sort of Italians that make desirable citizens, judging from those now working as roustabouts on the city wharves. They have this merit over the darkies, however—they keep their quarrels to themselves, and only murder one another."

Ferrell Will Be Electrocuted.
