SACRIFICE OF ALL REMNANTS

Our First Grand "Food Fair"

Commences Saturday morning, February 9th, at 8:00 o'clock, and will continue for two weeks. What a pleasurable surprise we have planned for our friends! Portland has never had a pure food show before—at least not one worthy of mention in the same breath as this. A large section of the basement given up to the "Food Fair" for two weeks. 25 demonstrations going on in neatly erected booths. All the famous cereals and pure foods for you to taste and get sample packages of. To every housewife in Portland and vicinity, the instructions on how to prepare the foods, gelatines, coffee, cereals, biscuits, etc., will be unusually interesting.

Among the exhibits will be:

- "Ralston" Food,
- "Grinola" Food,
- "Fig-Prune" Cereal,
- Shredded Wheat,
- Columbia Flour,
- Knox Gelatine,
- Ghiradelli Chocolates,
- Postum Cereal,
- Grape-Nuts,
- Peanut Brittle,
- Preferred Stock Canned Goods,
- Devers Blend Coffee,
- Canned Goods and Beef Extract by Armour & Co.
- Meats by Sinclair & Co.
- Hornby Oats,
- Whitehouse Coffee,
- Syrups, Ketchups, etc.

And when it comes to buying groceries, there's a happy surprise again. During the "Food Fair" we will offer

MORE POSTOFFICES

Portland to Have Three Substations.

SELLWOOD TO BE CONSOLIDATED

One Substation Will Be Established in South Portland. One in the "Nob Hill" District and One Near the Union Station.

Sellwood postoffice has been ordered consolidated with the Portland office, and that district will now have free delivery. Three substations will be established on the west side of the river—one near the Union Depot, one in the northwestern part of the city, and one in South Portland. On this subject The Oregonian received the following telegram last night:

Washington, Feb. 6.—At the request of Representative Moody, the Postoffice Department will consolidate the postoffice at Sellwood with Portland, making the former a substation, provided satisfactory arrangements can be made for free delivery service to that territory. The department will also establish three additional substations in connection with the Portland office on the west side of the river, as has been requested to report suitable locations for these agencies.

"The matter of giving Sellwood free delivery and of establishing substations on the West Side was taken up about six months ago," said Postmaster Crossman, when shown the foregoing dispatch, "and I am glad to learn that our efforts have borne fruit. There is no reason for the existence of a fourth-class office, such as Sellwood is, within the limits of a first-class office. Sellwood will be a full substation with free delivery."

"I have considered the matter of location for substations on the West Side, and think one should be established in South Portland; one in the 'Nob Hill' district, a few blocks north and west of Bishop Scott Academy, and one near the Union Depot. I hope that these will be 'full' substations, like the one in Albina, which not only sells stamps, issues money orders, etc., but handles mail—a complete postoffice, where carriers will receive and deliver letters and papers, the same as the main office, but on a smaller scale. With the three substations mentioned, residents of the respective districts will receive their mail from half an hour to three hours earlier each day, will necessarily have a better carrier service, and thousands of people will be saved long walks or rides to the center of town. These substations will not affect adversely the service in the center of town. On the contrary, they will tend to improve it."

A free delivery special agent from Washington is expected to arrive here this week, and the matter of definite location of substations and other preliminary work will be taken up by him.

Bicycle Accident.
A young man who gave his name as Frank Smith was severely injured in a bicycle accident last evening on the draw of the Morrison-street bridge. He was wheeling across the draw rapidly, as the draw was about to close, and one of the gates had been shut. At the west end he ran into a man, knocking him flat. The shock threw him against the iron gate. He tried to get hold of the upper part of the gate and save himself, but, falling, struck his chin, causing a laceration and deep gash. The blood flowed copiously and he went to a near-by drug store to get patched up. The man whom he knocked down was very indignant and arose in great wrath, but when he saw how badly the wheelman was hurt he felt appeased.

DEFENDED MRS. NATION.

Rev. Ray Palmer Says She Deserves to Be Crowned.

Much interest was manifested in white ribbon circles yesterday in the quarterly meeting of the Multnomah County Woman's Christian Temperance Union, which was held at the United Presbyterian Church, corner Sixth and Montgomery. The morning service opened with Miss F. E. Gotshall in the chair. The devotional services were led by Mrs. Julia Castro, who gave eight encouraging signs of victory that had been observed in the beginning of the new century. Reports of the work at Central Union, Sunnyside, South Portland, University Park and the Lacey Thurman Union were then read, together with the treasurer's report, which was quite encouraging, and the press report, made by Miss Lyman. In this connection, Miss Edna Probstman's press work received high praise for its accuracy and usefulness in promoting the interests of the W. C. T. U. There was some discussion of the protection of girls, after which the county president advocated a more faithful observance of red letter days, and other means of strengthening the position of the W. C. T. U., and extending its influence against the evils of the day. After the noon hour had been passed in an enjoyable basket lunch, the afternoon session opened with a memorial service for the late Mrs. Narcissa White Kinney, led by Mrs. Driggs. The institute work was in charge of Mrs. L. F. Addison, who threw into it her usual hearty enthusiasm and vigor. The symposium on "Total Abstinence" brought forth many stirring remarks from Mrs. I. H. Amos, Mrs. M. A. Stone and others. Rev. Robert McLean said he was not in favor of license of any kind, but believed in putting the liquor traffic on the same plane with robbery and burglary. Miss Gotshall made some strong, pithy remarks against the Gettemburg system, concluding with the epigrammatic phrase, "It is not serving God to Nationalize vice."

A discussion of the question, "Is Prohibition a Farce and a Fraud?" brought out some apt and timely answers; and it was decided that Mrs. Addison should write out a reply to Rev. Mr. Lord's recent defence of the Gettemburg system, and send it to the press. Following this came the report of the most vigorous and stirring addresses of the convention. It was made by Rev. Ray Palmer, who urged the enforcement of the law, saying that there was a strong tendency in America to ignore law, which was so adjustable that there was always a loophole somewhere for the law-breaker. He advocated greater stress laid on this point from the pulpit; and upheld Mrs. Nation in her work of consecration, saying that if ever woman deserved to be crowned in the hereafter for her deeds in this world, that woman was Mrs. Nation. "Am I extreme?" he concluded; "If so, Jesus Christ was extreme when he drove the money-changers out of the temple."

cigarettes, requesting the enforcement of the curfew law, and urging the passage of the law to abolish child labor during public school months. A committee was also appointed to investigate the subject of temperance teaching in the public schools.

The evening session was enlivened by several enjoyable vocal numbers given by the church choir. The county president, Miss Gotshall, gave a brief talk, followed by an address by Mrs. Addison, which contained many interesting echoes from the National convention, to which she had been a delegate. A reception ensued in her honor, in which Miss Edna Amos and Mrs. McKenzie were invited to assist as delegates to the international convention recently held in Scotland.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mrs. S. M. Kern then spoke on the subject of violations of narcotic laws, and Mrs. M. L. Blackwell brought forward a plan for proportionate giving. Several resolutions were passed approving the attempt to suppress gambling in Portland, endorsing the measure now before the State Legislature to restrict the sale of
