To Equip a Page Sewing School.—A movement to start a free sewing school is now on the tapis in Portland. It is beleved that there is urgent need for some place of this sort in which young girls can learn needlework. This is a practical solution of a much-wexed question; for the need of the bour in Portland is undoubtedly that of thorough and systematic training along the lines of domestic science. The idea originated with certain philanthropic women of the Catholic church. These have the promise of a room over the Procathedral, on Fifteenth and Couch streets, from Archbishop Chris-tie, and the work of furnishing and quipping it with the necessary apparatus equipping it with the necessary apparatus will be entered upon immediately. The plan is to furnish all materials free to the girls, so that there will be no expense whatever to the pupils. A competent superintendent will be in charge to give them lessons; and after the garments are finished they will belong to the girls who made them. As this will entail considerable. considerable expense to those who are in charge of the work, it is earnestly hoped that the public will lend their generous support to the cause. It is possible that a le entertainment may be given to further the movement, Among those inter-ested are: Mrs. General Burke, Mrs. and Miss Murphy, Miss O'Nell, Mrs. Harry Catherine Daly, Mrs. P. J. Cronin, and the Misses Rice.

WOOLGROWERS' CONVENTION.-The Pawooldbowers Convention.—The Pacific Northwest Woolgrowers' Association will hold its fourth annual convention at Pendleton March 5, 6 and 7, and it promises to be one of the most eventful affairs of its kind held in the Northwest. This association was organized at The Dalles, four years ago, and has grown to be second in importance only to the bailes, four years ago, and has grown to be second in importance only to the National Livestock Association. The territory covered by the Pacific Northwest Woolgrowers' Association includes Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Utah and Wyoming, and represents more sheep and wool interests than any like association in the world. In the states and territories represented, the list of wembers includes. presented, the list of members includes delegates from all stock yards and trans-portation companies. These annual con-ventions bring together representatives of the wool and railroad interests, as well as those of stockmen and feeders of sheep, from all west of the Missouri River, Different subjects are brought up for discussion, and papers on all matfor discussion, and papers on all mat-ters pertaining to this industry are han-died by the faculty of the different ag-ricultural experiment stations. The pro-gramme is now in the hands of the secretary, J. W. Balley, and will be ready in a short time. Governor Geer will de-liver the address of welcome to visiting delegates. F. R. Gooding, Shoshone, Idaho, is president

CORDWOOD WAS DAMAGED,-The cold weather has brought the water in the Williamette River down to 15 feet below the height attained by the January freshthe height attained by the January frese-et. The high winds not only stop the snow from melting in the mountains sur-rounding the Willamette Valley, but thus tend to dry up the springs on the lower hilleddes to a great extent. This conu-tion suits the tenants of the lower docks, however, as business can be transacted without heisting merchandise to the upwithout hoisting merchandise to the up-per level. One wood dealer on the river front says he was damaged to the extent of $400 by the flood of January, and so he hopes the river will be confined to its bed for the remainder of the year. The damage was done to the wood corded up on the lower dock, which the flood ren-dered wet and muddy, and, now that it has dried off, it is so dirty that it has ost to be given away to the purchasers

HUNGERING POR RAIN.-Dust flew around suburban streets yesterday in regular San Prancisco style, and Portland people gazed at the phenomenon in astonishment. Windy weather is not common in this city, and at this time of year Jupiter Pluvius has usually kept the streets pretty well sprinkled. The bright days are welcome enough, if there wasn't so much wind as an accompaniment. A good many Webfeet were heard to long for the light Oregon mists again, as these drying winds are considered debilitating. A good many Portlanders are now recovering from la grippe, and want a warm shower to help them along

UNUSUAL FATAL ACCIDENT.-The remains ONUSUAL FATAL ACCIDENT.—The remains of William Ekirvin, a farmer of Damascus, Clackamas County, were taken home from this city for burial yesterday. Deceased had been severely injured about two weeks ago by a lot of burk falling on him from a dead fir tree. He was in the act of chopping bark at the base of the standing tree, when about 60 feet of the surface become home and county. of its surface became loose and caught him before he could get out of the way. He was brought to St. Vincent's Hospital, but was so badly injured that nothing could be done for him. His age was 20, and he leaves a wife and two children.

ETORT FIRES IN ONE DAY .- There were eight small fires in the city yesterday, and the fire department was kept busy. Most of the fires were caused by sparks from fir wood fanned by the wind ignitfrom he wood fanned by the wind ignit-ing roofs of houses. Every fire apparatus in the cty was in use, except chemical No. 4 and hose No. 5. One blaze, which at first threatened to spread, at the office of the Multnomah Printing Com-pany, 197 Front street, was discovered and extinguished by Special Policeman C. C. Chibrens, without calling out the regular fromen.

WHERE HE CAN FIND HIS HORSE,-If ome resident of Sunnyside has missed a big bay horse, he can probably find the sakes of the animal at the Portland cre-matory. On Wednesday night a horse of this description got in front of a street car in Sunnyside and kept the track all the way into town, until he reached the corner of First and Madison streets, where he dropped dead. As yet his owner is not known.

WANTED HER RENT PAID.-A very old soman visited the City Hall yesterday and and she was tooking for the place "where they pay the ront." She was asked what kind of rent she wanted to pay, and said: "I can't pay my rent, as I have no money, and I want to find the people who are willing to pay the cent for me." She was directed to the office of the County Commissioners.

Portland's free museum, in the City Hall, is well attended these afternoons by residents of the city, as well as strangers; and the family element makes up quite a proportion of the interested ones, who pause in front of the various show cases or beside some of the relics which L. L. Hawkins has caused to be placed in the marble halls and byways of the building.

One of the most attractive curios on the second floor is a large white albatross, or storm bird, which by aid of the tax-idermist's art, is made to equat most naturally, on its great yellow webfeet, and gaze at the visitors who pause to read the inscription on the card that hangs by a string from its long beak. The bird is made to say:

My endurance and grace when at home are the admiration of all seamen. But now I have to sat in this free museum the Lord knows how long, and look wise out of my new glass eyes, while the young students of Nature admire my nice plumage, the fitness of my bill, and imagine the many wonderfull stories I would like to tell. EXPERTS IN WOOD

Tonal Beauty of the Stradivarius Violin Utilized by Modern Piano-Makers.

A secret of the pre-eminent tone beauty of the Stradivarius and Cremona violins lies in the expert selection of the wood. This is equally true of the modern plane, and in no part more necessarily than in the sounding board. In the Kimball plane the sounding board is made of the best selected mountain spruce of firmer, finer grain than any grown in lower altitudes. As a consequence they yield a more powerful singing tone, the wood being compressed in such a manner as to obtain the tonal resonance of the rare violin.—Chicago Chronicle.

THE TREE OF CANADA'S EMBLEM.

Exacting Demand Which This Wood Supplies to the Modern Piano. The pin block in the Kimball piano is constructed in the bass of five thicknesses of highly seasoned mountain grown maple, the most superior and stanch wood for the purpose. These thicknesses are glind together, the grain of each layer running in the opposite direction to the construction to the construct tion to the one next it, thus rendering it impossible for the pin block to split and affording unusual solidity.

As a consequence the tone of these instruments is marked by firmness, clearness, and brilliancy, and holds well in tune—a most impertant item—no matter how great the climatic variations.—Chicago Chronicle.
