the committee on interstate commerce from consideration of what is known as the car coupler bill, which requires sworn statements of all rallways to be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, was laid before the Senate. Pettigrew presented many memorials from various organizations of rallway employes urging the passage of the bill, and said that, as committee would not act on the bill,

It ought to be discharged. Hoar said that the great enterprises should be held to strict accountability for the conduct of their business, so far as it related to the safety of their employes. It ought to be known, he said, that the railroad officials were as careful of the lives of their employes as they would be of the directors of the lines. Nobody doubted, he asserted, that it would add 50 per cent to the safety of rallway travel if a director of the railroad were tied to the front of the locomotive,

Wolcott, a member of the committee on interstate commerce, declared he was unwilling that Hoar should make the statement that managers and directors of the railroads of the country viewed with indifference the accidental killing of their Railroad officials were men of ability, character and standing, and they devoted all their skill and vigilance to the prevention of accidents. He resented, he clared, the ridiculous statement about the tying of a railroad director in front of a locomotive. It was well known that 90 per cent of the accidents on railroads were due to the carelessness and negli-gence of employes. They were a careless, brave, reckless lot of men, many of whom would not take the ordinary precautions against accidents supplied by the railroad companies,

Hoar disclaimed any reflection upon the character and ability of railroad officials, but it was human nature to become care-

Shenkle Finally Landed in the Illin-

ols Penitentiary.

CARROLTON, III., March 1 .- Guarded by four companies of state militia to pro-tect him from a mob determined on lynching. Albert Shenkle, who December 3 last. criminally assaulted the 16-year-old daughter of Charles H. Diller, of Carrollton, was early today taken from the County Jall at Springfield and brought to Carrollton on a special Chicago & Alton train. Within an hour after arrival Shenkle had pleaded guilty, been given an indeter-minate sentence by Judge Thompson and was on his way to the prison at Chester. Apparently nearly the whole population of the town was gathered around the depot and along the streets leading to the Courthouse, but the troops forming a cordon around the train as soon as it stopped and surrounding Shenkle when the latter, heavily shackled and accompanied by Sheriff Conley, alighted from the train, prevented any hostile demonstration, if any had been planned.

The prisoner, with apparent unconcern puffed a cigarette as the column began the march down the street leading from the station to the Courthouse, but three-quarters of a mile distant. The march quarters of a mile distant. The march was without incident. Shenkle was escorted into the courtroom by the troops under command of Adjutant-General Reese, which then withdrew and surounded the building. None but court attaches, a squad of militia and newspaper correspondents were allowed in the court-room and the proceedings bore all the aspects of a military trial.

The warrant charging Shenkle with riminal assault on little Grace Diller was read and the prisoner asked what pica he would make. "I plead guilty," said Shenkle.

"The judgment on your plea is that you will be confined in the penitentiary at Chester, there to remain until you are discharged in the due process of the law,' said Judge Thompson.

The court arose, and without a word the condemned prisoner extended his hands for the shackles. A moment later the military formed a guard around the Sheriff and his prisoner, and marched down the street for the station. Within five minutes after their arrival the train departed for Chester, At Godfrey 20 members of the engineer corps of Springfield took charge of Shenkle. He was taken as far as East St Louis on the special train, under escort, and then turned over to Sheriff Conley, who proceeded with him to the Chester penitentiary. The remainder of the troops returned on their special train to Springfield, where they disbanded. Shenkle made a full confession of his crime to an Associated Press correspondent this morn-ing, while en route from Springfield to Carrollton

"I would never have done it if I had not been drunk," said Shenkle. "I was too drunk to understand what I was do-ing, and I made no attempt to run away." The chief concern of the prisoner ap-peared to be regarding the length of his term of imprisonment.

"I am going to plead guilty," he said. "I know I could beat the case if I stood trial, but what chance has a fellow got when a mob is after him? I would rather go to the prison for a year or so than to be hanged.

WASHINGTON, March 1 .- The dispute etween the inaugural committee and the war veterans over the matter of precedence in the parade Monday resulted to-day in a compromise under which the veterans will take part to a certain ex-tent in the ceremonies. At a conference between Secretary Root, General Francis Greene, grand marshal of the parade, and General Daniel E. Sickles, it was decided that the local and visiting Grand Army that the local and visiting Grand Army veterans will form the honorary escort to the President from the White House to the Capitol March 4. The further con-clusion was reached that the veterans will less about other things and careful about money-getting.

Cullom, chairman of the committee on Interstate commerce, insisted that the bill ought to remain with the committee. Personally, he was in favor of legislation upon the subject, but he was satisfied that the House bill was not a proper measure, and the committee had not found it possible yet to agree upon a measure.

After further debate, the hour of 1 o'clock arrived, when, under the rules, the resolution would go on the calendar, but Pettigrew moved that the Senate proceed with the consideration of his resolution. The motion was rejected, 25 to 36, the detailed vote being:
