The resolutions adopted, which will be forwarded to President McKinley, declare it to be one of the fundamental principles of this Government that there should be no class distinction, and that "the Chicago Federation of Labor, representing more than 100,000 toilers of this city, does not believe in a government which should be classed as a government of the few."

FOR THE INAUGURAL

All His Ready for McKinley's Induction Into Office.

THE WEATHER PROMISES WELL

A Veritable Throng, With a Holiday Air, Swarmed the Capital Yesterday—Soldiers Took Possession of the House.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—When the sun set upon the National Capitol today, everything that could be done to make the second McKinley inauguration a success had been done. A majority of the troops and civic organizations were in the city and safety quarters. Some thousands more were on the various railways hurrying toward Washington, and the Weather Bureau predicted "fair weather for March 4" in a special bulletin issued by its chief, Professor Moore.

Quiet Inauguration Eve.

Inauguration eve was a quiet Sunday. The day opened threatening with a southeast wind and a cloudy sky, but the weather cleared and the sun set fair with every indication of a good day.

Crowd Had a Holiday Air.

The crowd had a distinctly holiday air on the street. The weather was mild enough to permit a large display of feminine finery, and this, with the mixture of uniforms, gave the streets in the fashionable section of the northwest much the appearance of an Easter Sunday parade. Seldom has an inaugural gathering brought out such an assortment of uniforms as were met on every street corner, and at every street corner. The dark blue service uniforms were relieved by the red caps and facings of the artillery.

Soldiers Took the House.

The soldiers and visitors swarmed about the Capitol building where the legislators were struggling with the remainder of the Congressional session. Throughout the day, and well into the night, they paced the Capitol corridors. Tomorrow all the doors will be closed except to those holding tickets of admission. But today everything was open to the public. It is not often that the Sabbath calm of the building is disturbed by such a popular invasion. Early in the day several blue-coated soldiers from one of the nearby regiments took possession of the House end of the Capitol. The House was in recess until 2 P. M., but the emblem of legislative authority, the mace, stood in position as a warning that the dignity of the House must not be invaded. But the soldiers were oblivious to such Congressional fictions. Before the weary doorkeepers were aware of it, the chamber was in possession of several hundred bluecoats. Some of them ascended to the Speaker's rostrum and hammered for order. Others occupied the seats of members, and for the time being the floor of the House for the first time in its history presented a completely martial aspect.
