BOARD DELAYS ORGANIZATION

Hughes, Who Was Named for Temporary President, Wanted to Proceed, but Banfield Insisted on One Day's Delay.

Organization of the Port of Portland Commission, yesterday afternoon, did not Commission, yesterons at the formation of a proceed further than the formation of a temporary organization, with Ellis G. Banfield stated the question: "Can we first elect temporary officers, then new members as temporary chairman, and B. elect temporary officers, then new members as temporary chairman, and B. elect temporary officers, then new members as temporary officers."

The peculiar charm of Mrs. Henschel the same as determined the outcome of the same as determined the o S. Reilly as temporary secretary. Even this slight progress toward a permanent To this Judge Williams answered that a organization was not accomplished without a lengthy discussion, during which Judge George H. Williams was called in to give the members legal advice as to the the tangle in which two hours' discussion be elected. There could be no question as had left the Commissioners. The most important development at the meeting was field, B. S. Reilly and Ben Selling. The not present were T. B. Wilcox and Charles E. Ladd. Hughes was for organizing at outset, but the new Commissioners held back.

Hughes, "we have gathered here accord- knowledge of the work. ing to law to organize as a commission. Our first business is to elect officers, a president, vice-president, treasurer and secretary. Since Mr. Ladd is out of the city, and we have no means of ascertaining whether he will serve, I suggest that we organize without electing a treasurer."

Well, for president," said Mr. McCraken, "I name Mr. Hughes."

"No." answered Mr. Hughes, "let's have no formal nominations. Let every man write on a slip whom he favors for pres-The man who has the most votes will be elected." The clerk of the commission passed the

Before voting commenced, Mr. Banfield made the following motion: "I move that we postpone forming the permanent organization until Tuesday afternoon, at 3:30." The motion was seconded by B. S. Reil-

"I don't see why that's necessary," said "Well," replied Mr. Banfleid, "I have received certain information that may throw some light on the matter, if we wait until tomorrow. I think we will be better able to act tomorrow in the best interests of the Port of Portland generally if we put off the election now, and will better shape to do justice to the public. I believe we should organize as soon as possible, in accordance with prudence. It may mean to us another member of the commission."

'It can't mean Wilcox," replied Mr. Hughes. "He is out beyond all question," and he handed to Mr. Banfield the following resignation of Mr. Wilcox to be Portland, March 4, 1901.-The Commissioners of the Port of Portland, City-Gentlemen: The requirements of my own business will not enable me to afford the time necessary to properly attend to the work laid out for the commission to perform, and I must therefore de-cline the honor of becoming a member of your body. Yours truly, THEO. B. WILCOX.

Mr. Hughes-Now, under the law, he has declined to serve, and his position by his own act is made absolutely vacant. He couldn't come back if he wanted to. We're here together, and I fall to see why we should not organize. The law says we should organize as soon as we can get together. Now we are together, we should organize. There are a lot of bills to pay and the pay-roll to be approved.

A letter from Mr. Ladd accepting or re-signing would be of advantage to the board. On the vote Reilly voted yes and Hughes no. Banfield put the question, and McCraken and Selling did not vote.

The issue thus simmering down to a deadlock over the procedure as to organization, and the commission being without a copy of the act as passed, Mr. Hughes made a final suggestion: "If you want to elect new members before organizing permanently, consult Judge Williams,

At Howard's shop it was stated that Friendly's attention was called to two spots breaking out upon his face. When the spots spread, Friendly was refused to be shaved in the shop, and afterwards he filed the suit. It was also stated that Friendly travels a great deal, was shaved in other towns, and that, in fact, the spots were noticed by one of Howard's barbers after Friendly returned from a trip.

CORNELL VS. JOHNSON

MIDDLE-WEIGHT WRESTLERS TO CONTEST TONIGHT.

Relative Merits of Men From Olympic and Multnomah Clubs-Home Match of Interest.

The second series of wrestling events at the Multnomah Club will be held this evening. The main contest will be be-tween R. B. Cornell, middle-weight of tween R. B. Cornell, middle-weight of the Olympic Club, of San Francisco, and Ed Johnson, middle-weight champion of the Multnomah Club. Both are strong, heavy and experienced wrestlers, and the match is expected to be one of the best match is expected to be one of the best night in Metropolitan Temple. The programme was one admirably adapted to

The Multnomah Ciub enthusiasts are of the opinion that the club's defeat in the Greenland Fraue match will be reversed. (See Handel), Cavatina "Star Vicino" the same as determined the outcome of the former match. Cornell is conceded to have the greater experience, but Johnto have the greater experience, but Johnston is younger and is believed to possess superior strength and staying powers. Both men are in excellent physical condition, and both are determined to make the condition, and both are determined to make the condition of "Die Lorelei" was particularly pleasing and called forth tremendous applause. Mr. Henschel's voice being of a dramatic sort was best in matches. He recently took up wrestling under Instructor Joe Acton, and in his first match with Max Wiley, amateur champion of the United States, made an excellent showing.

Cornell has been wrestling under Olympic Club auspices since 1896, when he came out second in the heavy-weight championship tournament. He has been a pu-pil of George Michling the club's wrest. ling instructor. In 1886 he defeated Vecena, the acknowledged champion of the Pacific Coast. He has also defeated young Peter Jackson, and in the tryout for the selection of the representative to come to Portland won out from his opponent, Hildebrand, Cornell is also a wellknown swimmer, and has won a number of medals in competition. In 1897 he won the rough-water championship from Cavill, the Australian, by swimming around Seal Rock. He was also cham pion water-polo player of the Pacific Coast at one time. Recently he has de-voted himself to the sport of wrestling. match was so close that tonight's contest was arranged in response to a general demand among the club members. Both men are strong and fast, and an interest-ing and exciting exhibition is certain. To relieve the tension of the two big events a "humming-bird" contest has been placed between them, in which junfors Jeffries and Kerr will compete. Th Wednesday evening Cornell and Murray will give an exhibition of fancy swimming and diving, open to club members,
