

CITY NEWS IN BRIEF

Amusements Tonight.
CORDEAT'S THEATRE.—The Village Parson.
METROPOLITAN THEATRE.—Held by the Enemy.

GROUSE IN LARGE NUMBERS.—A stranger in the city, passing down Sixth street yesterday morning, noticed a flock of birds flying from the trees to the ground in search of food. Their beauty and lameness attracted his attention, and he inquired what they were. He was told that they were grouse, which from the description he gave of them they evidently were, and he was further told that the birds were imported. He sent a note to The Oregonian to let it be known that these birds are here in numbers. The grouse is a native of this country, has its habitat in the mountains, and has visited this city, as well as other towns in the Willamette Valley, for many years whenever there is a hard winter in the mountains. It has been wintered here and introduced here from Australia, but this is an error. The fact of their arrival in the city was published several months ago, and scores of items in regard to them have been published in The Oregonian during the past 20 years. They did not visit the city during the winter of 1899-00, but the preceding winter large numbers of them came in, and when there was snow on the ground here, hemp seed, etc., was spread under the trees in the Postoffice grounds by some kind-hearted person, and the birds seem to be larger every successive year they come. In a short time they will be off to the mountains, and will be seen here no more until there comes another hard winter in their haunts.

LATEST DEAD BEAT.—Schiffel, the latest globetrotter freak who is beating his way around the world, called at the City Hall yesterday to have the city seal attached to his "clearance" papers. It is said that he asks nobody for anything, and that what he pays is "nothing to nobody." While waiting to be "sealed," and surrounded by a large number of people, who appeared to look upon him as a sort of hero, a bystander asked him bluntly what useful purpose was to be served by his encircling the globe in the role of a dead beat. It was further remarked that there were enough tramps beating their way around through the world, without him adding himself to the list, and that it would be more to the advantage of the world if he were to go back to his work making an honest living for himself. It was evident from his looks that he had never before had his humming adventure placed before him in that light, and he may see the truth of the statement before he gets back to High Germany. He appears to have started on his excursion without any county scrip or any staff, and if he imagines he is obeying the scriptural injunction, he should have left his wheel at home, and might better have stayed there himself. The day for making curries of glorified dead beats is past.

FUNERAL OF ROLPH H. MILLER.—A very beautiful and impressive funeral service was held in the Unitarian Church yesterday afternoon. The deceased, Rolph H. Miller, died at his home in the city, after a long illness. The service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Lord, and was attended by a large number of friends. The burial took place in the cemetery at 2 o'clock.

RECEIVERS SHOOTING ROBINS.—Game Warden Quimby has been informed that bad boys and men are shooting robins in the vicinity of this city. Of course, they must be boys and men from the city, for country boys would not be guilty of such a mean action. Mr. Quimby has consulted with the Chief of Police, and they will take action in the matter and endeavor to secure the arrest of any person guilty of shooting robins or other song birds. The law for the protection of song birds is still in force, and Mr. Quimby is going to do his best to enforce it. It is almost impossible that any one brought up in a civilized country would be guilty of shooting the pretty robins or larks, but there is a class of vile men here who used to make a practice of it before the birds were protected.

ATTEMPTING THE IMPOSSIBLE.—R. Buettiker writes to The Oregonian to say that the one-armed man mentioned in a paragraph yesterday as failing in a fit while carrying wood upstake on Morrison street is a deserving man. His name is Fletcher, and he lost his right arm about 18 years ago. He is now trying to prove that he can make a living with only one arm. He is a sober, industrious man, and has been subject to fainting fits for some time. As Mr. Buettiker says, "he is simply attempting the impossible." Some way should be found to assist him in making a living in some other way than by carrying wood.

UNION RAINFALL.—Deputy United States Marshal Roberts, who has lately visited Morrow County, Union County and other sections of Eastern Oregon, says there has been an unusually large rainfall all over that region, and the ground is thoroughly soaked. The roads are in worse condition than he ever before saw them. In traveling 100 miles out he was mired down and up twice. Residents everywhere through the eastern portion of the state are looking forward to large crops, and all appearances are favorable for a prosperous year.

A NOVEL SCHOOL.—The Portland Manual Training School has a few vacancies in the limited "all-day session." The scholastic and practical combined strengths the body and develops the mind. It quickens the many faculties, training the boy to be self-reliant, even-tempered and useful at whatever occupation he may afterward engage in. The class, in charge of an instructor, visits periodically the industries of the city. For further particulars call or telephone. William J. Stanley, principal.

BLIND GIRL'S BENEFIT.—An entertainment will be given at Terwilliger Hall, corner of First and Sheridan streets, tomorrow evening, for the benefit of Josie Walker, a blind inmate of the Poon Home. The Rabbit Club, an association of young men of South Portland, is getting up the affair, and has arranged for quite an extensive programme. No admission will be charged, but a collection will be taken up in the hall.

LUNCH.—The ladies of the First Universalist Church will serve lunch today and tomorrow at 25 Washington, between Third and Fourth, from 11 to 2 o'clock.

WILL "PRACTICE LAW."—The city official imagined that Mr. Gaston would call for that $300 warrant which has been waiting for him so long to pay the award of damages for opening Main street through the Gaston tract, or that a little thing like an adverse decision of the Supreme Court could turn him from his purpose, reckoned without their host. Mr. Gaston called at the City Treasurer's office yesterday, but he was accompanied by a lawyer, and the warrant mentioned was one of the things he did not want. He said when he got a warrant to pay damages for opening Main street through the Gaston tract he wanted one for about $300. He merely called at the Treasurer's office to inquire when the last assessments had been paid on the award for damages. He intimated that he had some kind of a surprise in store for the city, and was preparing to give his opponents another run for their money. Mr. Gaston may not be a "fellow of infinite jest," but when it comes down to litigation he is a man of infinite resources and untiring patience, and appears to derive lots of amusement from the "practice of law."

LARGE OYSTERS AND POTLAW.—H. B. Carroll, superintendent of the South St. Paul stockyards, who came West as a delegate to the woolgrowers' convention at Bendleton, and has been visiting friends in Portland since that meeting, left last night to return home. Mrs. Carroll accompanied him. Mr. Carroll was very much pleased with the outlook on the Pacific Coast. He says it is the place for young men and for middle-aged men of means. He met in Oregon many sheepmen with whom he had had business relations, and was greatly pleased with the livestock conditions in this state; they were a surprise to him. He says the sheepmen of Oregon have a great advantage over those of other regions, and can breed and raise sheep and send them to market in better conditions in this state; they were a surprise to him. He says the sheepmen of Oregon have a great advantage over those of other regions, and can breed and raise sheep and send them to market in better conditions in this state; they were a surprise to him.

NOTABLE COMING EVENT.—Just after Easter—namely, on April 10, 11 and 12—Portland is to have a short series of religious meetings, in which Rev. B. F. Mills will speak. On the occasion of this noted man's last appearance in the city, several years ago, he was considered the greatest of living evangelists. His marriage was more to him than to be at United States through a period of many years. Then his convictions slowly but steadily changed as to the devotional basis and method and nature of salvation. While here Mr. Mills will describe this change and what seem to him now the essential truths and greater methods in which God appeals to man and co-operates with him. He will also speak of the change and what seem to him now the essential truths and greater methods in which God appeals to man and co-operates with him.

POWATO SHIPMENTS.—The dried prunes are not yet all out of the country. A carload was brought over from Vancouver by the steamer Undine yesterday, to be shipped to Milwaukee, Wis. The river boats are now moving large quantities of potatoes. Large quantities are being taken from Lewis River down to Kalama to be shipped to Puget Sound, and thence to Alaska. Farmers are still pouring potatoes into this city in large quantities, but they are not getting the prices they hoped for.

TOOK HIS OWN LIFE.
 James West, a 29-year-old charge at the County Poor Farm, committed suicide at noon yesterday by cutting his throat and wrist with a razor.

County Physician McKay and Dr. Watkins, his assistant, were called immediately, and endeavored to save his life. West had done his work too well, and died at 2 P. M.

West had been cared for by the county for about eight years, and was up to 12 months ago, confirmed in the use of morphine. He was "cured" from his use at the County Hospital, but always desired to return to the drug, complaining of the pain in one leg, that was amputated at the knee.

To his roommate, John Keller, he continually threatened suicide, stating that he intended to get even on the county for refusing him morphine by committing suicide and causing the county great expense. He said yesterday again that it was the last day he would make his own bed, as he was going to take his life. His companion paid no attention to the threat, as he often made similar remarks.

An inquest last evening brought in a verdict of death due to suicide.
