WANT A MARKET-PLACE,-The Evening Star Grange, which held its sessions in Independence Hall, on the Section Line road, feel that they have been shown scant courtesy by the Common Council of Portland. They are anxious that the block donated to this city for a market block, but which has been occupied by the old Mechanics' Fair building for many years, should be cleared and made a market block for the farmers of the sur-rounding country. The Grange appointed a committee, which prepared a communication in regard to the subject, which was laid before the Common Council, by whom it was "laid on the table." The members of Evening Star Grange consider that in common courtesy they are entitled to a hearing before the Council or one of its ommittees. They would like to have the ommunication taken from the table, and their representatives given a hearing while they present the claims of the farm-ers for a general market-place, in order that they may not be compelled to obstruct the streets with their wagons. The Oregonian can assure the members of Evening Star Grange that the Common Council had no intention of treating them discourteously, and that if they will send a representative to place their ideas before the Council, every courtesy will be extended to him, and he will doubtless be granted the privilege of the floor and allowed to address the Council, and that after this the Grange's communication will be referred to a committee and receive due consideration. There has, how-ever, so far been no haste exhibited by city officials to clear the market block for the use of the farmers.

PREPARING FOR GRAY'S HARBOR JETT.— The Hale & Kern Contract Company is getting things in readiness for resuming work on the Gray's Harbor jetty as soon as settled weather comes. Their barge Wallicut, which has been lying at Astoria for two weeks, loaded with rock and plies, got out and was towed around to Gray's Harbor several days ago by their tug Samson. The tug Hercules took another barge down the river to be ready to go around to Gray's Harbor as soon as practicable. The barge Washougal was brought from Astoria up to Westport to unload a large lot of chains for the Robertson. ertson Raft Company, after which she will have her sails stripped off and masts taken out and be made ready for transporting rock. Two more barges are at the quarry at Fisher's Landing, being loaded with rock. All the barges will soon be in their places at the quarry or at the jetty, or on their way between these two places, and work on the jetty will be proceeding harmoniously. This is one of the few works in this section which the failure of the river and harbor bill did not affect, as there is a large part of the appropriation not expended.

Working For Oil, and Coal,-A capital. ist took a spin out into the eastern part of Mulinomah County Wednesday to see what was being done in the way of prospecting for oil. On reaching the Sandy he found the Watson well started on the farther side about half a mile above the railroad bridge. There was a fine plant all ready for boring but it was not working. ready for boring, but it was not working.

A hole had been bored a few feet in depth, and operations had been suspended awaiting the arrival of the II-inch casing.

About half a mile above the wagon-road bridge across the Sandy he found where the standard had been run into the bill on a tunnel had been run into the hill on the west side of the river, a distance of 200 feet, in search of coal. No vein had been struck, but "coal blossoms" had been found. It is possible that had a shaft been sunk a vein of coal might have been found. Fruit prospects are very favorable in the eastern part of the county. The trees are not in bloom yet, so the hall storm did no damage. The buds are showing up fine, and in a short time the orchards will be white with

DEPUTT COLLECTORS TO BE DROPPED Internal Revenue Collector D. M. Dunne was seen last evening in regard to the Revenue for the reduction of the number of war-revenue deputies in his district. He said he had received a long letter from the Commissioner, in which that of ficer stated that he was very sorry that necessity compelled him to order the reduction of war-revenue deputies in every district in the United States. The expenses overran the appropriation by about order of the Commissioner of Internal penses overran the appropriation by about $100,000. This was caused principally by the establishment of revenue districts in the Hawaifan Islands and in North and South Dakota, The order was for the dropping of four deputies in this district, but after the Commissioner had the situation here explained to him, he very kind-ly revoked the order and required only two deputies to be dropped until July 1, when the new war-revenue act will go into effect. One deputy in Oregon and one deputy in Washington will be dropped

The house was insured, last night Sam Heinsheimer, one of the best-known clear drummers about town, died suddenly of heart disease in his room at the Esmond Hotel. If I plead guilty at once the Judge will ask me to pay a fine, and I have no money." "How about that breath of yours, Johnston?" asked Deputy City Attorney Davis, who was prosecuting. Johnston looked up with a now-I-sm-caught air and said, "Guilty, sir." He was fined $2.

WILL BE A GREAT FAIR A WORD ABOUT

NOTHING FINER HAS EVER BEEN SEEN IN THE WEST.

Chairman Long Says the Stock of the Corporation Will Be Taken Up in Oregon.

Plans for the 1905 fair are far enough advanced for City Attorney J. M. Long. chairman of the temporary committee of arrangements, to make a prediction. "Our Lewis and Clark centennial," he said yesterday, "will be the largest and most important exposition ever held west of Chicago and St. Louis. Omaha and San Francisco have done well, but Portland will eclipse them."

Mr. Long has not the slightest doubt that Oregon will take up the $300,000 of stock to be issued by the fair corporation. When the exposition was suggested inst year, many shook their heads and said that Oregon could not capitalize a corporation for a large amount and do its share of the financiering. "These same persons," said Mr. Long, "are coming to me every day and assuring me that they will be ready to take stock as soon as the broke are consend. This as the books are opened. This assurance comes not only from persons of wealth, but from men of moderate means. Enthustasm for the fair increases as knowledge of the possibilities of it gains ground. Everybody realizes what a grand thing it will be for the Pacific Coast. Every-body agrees that we have gone too far to turn back. We must keep forging ahead. I think that when all the home financiering has been done we shall find that we shall not need so much money from the Government as we suppose. I think that about $500,000 will suffice. This amount will answer for the reason that the Government will not be put to the expense of preparing exhibits. It can send its exhibits from St. Louis and Buf. falo to Portland. All that it will be necessary to do here will be to erect build-ings. These, on account of the lower cost of material and the favorable climatic conditions, will cost less at Portland than in the East."

The preliminary work is reaching such proportions that it will soon be necessary for Mr. Long to have assistance. At present the chief business is correspondence, but before long a plan of work will have to be maped out for various subcommit-tees. In answer to a request for a statement of results to date, Chairman Long

"Our committee has put itself directly in touch with the leading men of nearly all the Pacific states and territories. We have not yet been able to take up the fair with California, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico, but will do so in due time. The Governors and prominent men of the states which are co-operating with us express a strong desire to have their states represented and to have substantial ap-propriations made. Present indications are that Washington will take almost as great interest in the fair as Oregon will. Governor Rogers is desirous of appointing a Washington commission to join hands with Oregon and make the fair a Pacific exposition in the largest sense of the terin. Two of the transcontinental roads which will be most benefited pass almost en-tirely through the State of Washington. Washington, Idaho and Montana, therefore, have as much at stake as Oregon has. We feel certain that British Columbia will be represented, and that it will make a fine exhibit of its unparalleled resources. Governor Brady, of Alaska, has been communicated with, and in a short time negotiations will be opened with "All the countries interested in the development of the Pacific States, the islands of the Pacific and the Orient will take part in the Lewis and Clark centennial. Our next step will be to open negotiations with the Oriental countries. These will be reached through the Min-isters and Consular agents of the Gov-ernment after an invitation has been ex-

"What we are aiming to do is to bring together on the Pacific Coast the people of the East and the Orient, and prove that the trade which they do with each other must pass through our ports. When we are assured of exhibits from the Orient, the manufacturers of the Eastern States who sell to Asia will begin their preparations for making exhibits in Port. that the Pacific Coast has reached out for the world's commerce and demanded international attention.

Mr. Long's committee is corresponding with several prominent secret orders and other organizations, with a view to having them hold their annual sessions in Portland in 1906. The names of these organizations will not be made public for the present.

Daniel Sully Pleases an Audience in "The Parish Priest."

'The Parish Priest," which is Daniel Sully's latest play, was presented at the Marquam last night to an audience which would have been larger had Portland playgoers known what a pretty little drama it is. Sully has better support than usual, and his play is really the best in which he has yet appeared, its quiet humor and charming story affording an evening's entertainment very well worth while. Its reception left no doubt as to the way it pleased the audience, for cur-tain calls followed every scene, and many of the quiet speeches of the comedian son Edmund Stanley, who is cast as

WEBER PIANOS

"There are hundreds of planoforte-makers in the United States," says the New York Tribune, "but not over four are undisputably in the front rank, and prominent among the four is the house of Weber. Although the founder, like the originators of the other leading houses, is no longer living, the great factory which he established still goes on, and the Weber warerooms contain today more exquisite examples of the plano-maker's art than were ever before shown by this renowned concern. The elder Weber was a genius in the realm of tone production, and it has been often said that the quality that Sradiyarius bestowed upon the violin, Weber imparted to his planoforte. His successors have strictly maintained the high standard of excellence established in the early days of the concern, and have perpetuated that wonderful tone quality for which the Weber piano has so long been distinguished. The artistic productions of the house this season merit especial comment."

especial comment."

We have a fine assuriment of these beautiful planos. New designs in most beautiful casings in all the varieties of handsomely figured woods.

awakened enthusiasm of a very energetic character

The play is merely a picture, and a very realistic picture, of life in a quiet country parish, presided over by a kindly, warmnearted priest, whose interests are those of his flock, and whose only aim is going about doing good. Two children whom he has brought up, one his wife's daughter and the other a son of an old friend, are lovers from childhood, but the boy studies medicine, and, becoming ambi-tious, throws over the old love to become engaged to the daughter of the physician who has bequeathed him his prac-tice. In his efforts to restore his niece to her lover, the priest, Father Whalon, is seconded by the young doctor's brother, who has worked in the mines for the money which made the schooling in medi-cine possible. After a long series of rather tragic occurrences, the wandering lover is persuaded to return to the girl, who has the rather questionable taste to accept him, and everything ends well. The play is full of bright lines, the situntions are most of them probable, and an April succession of smiles and tears occupies the afternoon and evening in which the action takes place.

As Father Whalon, Mr. Sully has a fine opportunity for the display of his peculiar talent, that of being perfectly natural at all times, and of making his audience laugh with him rather than at him. There is always something refreshing about his acting, it is so free from rant and devoid of any striving after effect. When he talks he talks to the other characters; he does not come down to the footlights and shout his speeches at the audience, and he knows the value of a low chuckle now and then and a pause here and there in the right place for it.

Miss Kate Beneteau, as Nellie Durkin, the girl who is bereft of her lover for two acts and restored to him in a third, is modest and maldenly, and more than once provokes a flutter of handkerchiefs and a glistening of the eyes. She pos-sesses a winsome face and a pretty figure, and has a simple, easy style of acting that many an older actress might study with profit.
