A prominent Colorado mining man, who recently made a hasty examination of the Bonanza mine, reports that if the property was located in Colorado, $5,000,000 would have been the price it commanded, instead of $750,000. This same gentleman criticises the mining methods employed here, eaving that little scientific mining is being done. He anticipates far greater returns at a less expenditure, in every instance, when the method is changed, as he says it will be when experienced mining men get hold of some more of the properties, by the judicious expenditure of large sums of money in intelligent development work and for modern appliances, including railroads and tramways, to cheapen trans-portation. Competent mining men predict that the country tributary to Baker City will become one of the richest mining sections in the United States.

FEW HOP CONTRACTS FILED. Only One Recorded in Marion County

corded in a week. Inquiry, however, brings the information that a few contracts are being made, which are offered for record. The buyers do not, as a rule, record their agreements until the contract are being made. record their agreements until it becomes necessary in order to perfect a lien for money advanced to the growers. Those growers who must borrow money for their cultivation expenses do their contracting principally in the Spring before work commences. Contracts made after cultivation begins are principally for the purpose of securing picking money, which will not be advanced until about September L It is not to be expected, therefore, that many more contracts will be recorded until late in the season, though many may be made in the meantime.
