CINCHED SECOND PLACE.

Tacoma Team Beat Spokane By a Score of 4 to 3.

TACOMA, June 13.—The local aggregation cinched second place today after a hard fought battle by a score of 4 to 3. It was largely a pitchers' affair, Spokane being represented by Miller, and Tacoma by St. Vrain, both southpaws. In the first inning, Tacoma landed all over Miller, pounding out her four runs. During the rest of the game, the Bunchgrasser allowed only three hits. St. Vrain was at his best until the sixth. Spokane secured no hits until the fifth, when Stultz singled and scored. In the sixth, two more hits and a two-bagger by Marshall were added to the list, bringing in two runs. St. Vrain struck out 10 men, several being at critical points in the game. Attendance 1500. Commando Lamed.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Commando, James R. Keene's great colt, stepped on a stone while galloping Monday, and bruised one of his heels so badly that he could not start in the Brooklyn Derby. While the accident is not considered serious at present, his trainer, James Rowe, is not willing to take any chances of permanently injuring him. The Brooklyn Derby is worth $10,000 and the race seemed to be at his mercy. But rather than start him and so aggravate his trouble, it has been decided to give him a rest, and let the $10,000 go to some other owner. The stone bruised Commando's heel severely, and he was returned to his stable. The usual remedies were aplied, but without quick results.

A week ago a similar accident occurred to Conroy, the Brooklyn handicap winner. A complete rest brought him around all right, and he is now taking exercise regularly. Similar tactics will be pursued in regard to Commando.

American Trapmen Won Third Day.

LONDON, June 13.—The Americans won the third consecutive day of the international clay-bird match by a score of 843 to 739. The result was accepted with the greatest good-will on the part of their British opponents, the ladies on the stand waving American and British flags. Speeches were afterward made by Captain T. A. Marshall, for the United States, and by Captain Butt, for the British. The American team has been offered a silver cup for the contest they will shoot off Saturday. The British team will give the Americans a banquet next Tuesday.

MONTANA COPPER CASE.

Suit of Geer Against the Amalgamated Called at Newark.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The suit of Calvin O. Geer against the Amalgamated Copper Company was called before Vice-Chancellor Stevens in Newark, N. J., today. George Alfred Lamb and Robert Carey presented a petition on the part of Mrs. Silas Smith to be allowed to intervene in the action. Mrs. Smith is the owner of stock in the Amalgamated Company, which she held as an investment since the organization of the company. There was no opposition to her intervening in the case.

The suit was brought by the C. H. Venner Company, of Boston, and Calvin O. Geer to restrain the Amalgamated Copper Company from acquiring the Boston & Montana and Butte & Boston Copper Companies.

R. V. Lindabury, attorney for the Amalgamated Company, at the opening of the hearing, presented the company's answer to the charges of the complainants. He denied that the directors of the Amalgamated Copper Company owned 173,000 shares of the Butte & Boston stock now, or that they had owned it at any time. He also denied that they were in the Boston & Montana Company, with the exception of Henry E. Rogers and William G. Rockefeller, each of whom, he said, owned 250 shares of stock of the company, and had owned them for a long time. Mr. Lindabury further claimed that the assets of these companies as stated by the complainants, were not properly itemized, and there were assets that would bring the total up to $20,000,000. Counsel denied further that it was the intention of the defendant directors to unload their holdings at exorbitant prices.

F. A. Heinze, of Montana, gave testimony today before a referee concerning the sufficiency of the bond given by the Delaware Surety Company, in the Montana suit brought by it against certain mining companies. He said the company had a capital stock of $360,000, and that it was really formed for the purpose of furnishing security in the present action. Mr. Heinze said also that he and his brother owned the controlling interest in the stock of the company, but declined to state whether they owned all the stock or not. He declined also to give the location of the depository of the company and said the officers had been advised not to testify at the present hearing. He thought an action might be brought by the New York State Banking Department against the security company for noncompliance with the state banking laws.

THE GILMAN ESTATE.

Heirs of the Millionaire Tea Merchant Reach an Agreement.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Frazier Gilman, the half brother of the late millionaire tea merchant of Bridgeport, George Francis Gilman, has reached this city from Georgia to confer with certain full-blood relatives with a view to settling the dissensions among the various members of the family upon the subject of the deceased merchant's estate. Alfred Gilman, who had not before appeared upon the scene, but who under the Connecticut laws would have rights of considerable moment, has been in consultation with Frazier Gilman. Frazier Gilman said:

"We have reached a virtual agreement, according to which the estate is to be divided equally among the full-blood and half-blood heirs. The Connecticut laws may administer the estate in one way, but the family will divide up the money in its own way after the lawyers get through. We don't want to have any lawsuit in this matter. We find that the estate is worth about $5,000,000.

"As to the relations of Mrs. Helen Hall in this case, I will say that her claim is not considered seriously. We all know that she has no legal claim upon the estate, but I think both branches of the family are disposed to make allowance for her. I have no doubt that some annuity will be by mutual agreement settled upon Mrs. Hall, although we are satisfied that she has no claim before the law. I believe the whole matter will be settled in a very short time, and that we will avoid any litigation."

NEW YORK, June 13.—On the steamship Frederick der Grosse, which sailed today, was Evelyn Baldwin, the explorer, who started on the first stage of his journey in quest of the North Pole. He will go to England, complete his preparations, and meet there the three vessels with which he will sail for Franz Josef Land. Baldwin expects to have everything in readiness to begin his trip to the pole June 25, when he intends to sail from Tromsoe, Norway.

SPORTS AT THE STADIUM

NO RECORDS BROKEN AT THE BUFFALO EXPOSITION.

First of the Series of National Track and Field Contests—Heat Interfered With Attendance.

PAN-AMERICAN GROUNDS, Buffalo, June 13.—The first of the series of the National track and field contests, arranged by the Amateur Athletic Union for the Pan-American Exposition, was held today at the classic stadium in the fair grounds. The heat set a limit upon attendance, but a large number of athletes came to measure muscle and endurance in the lists and there was an afternoon of spirited sport. No records were smashed, but some of the time made and distance covered was close to the standards that have been set. Of the clubs represented, the Knickerbocker Athletic Club, of New York, scored the greatest number of victories for the day. The summary:

TWO RICH GRAVESEND STAKES.

Bonnibert Won the Brooklyn Derby, Whisky King the Tremont.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The Brooklyn Derby and the Tremont stakes, each of $10,000, were the fixtures at the Gravesend racetrack today, and served to draw a big crowd. The conditions were favorable for a good day's sport, and a good entry, as well. Commando, All Green and Belario were withdrawn from the Derby, leaving The Parader, Blues and Bonnibert to fight for the rich prize. The Parader made the running for a mile and a quarter, with Blues well up and Bonnibert third, trailing. As they rounded into the stretch, The Parader ran out, and Bonnibert, closing with a rush, came on and won easily by six lengths, while Blues beat the tired favorite a length for the place. The time, 2:33 4-5, was fast, and a new track record.

The Tremont stakes resulted in a big upset, Whisky King, at 15 to 1, won easily from Blue Girl. Saturday was a hot favorite, while Blue Girl was second choice. To a good start Saturday and the Gold Finder went out to make the running, and showed the way heads apart to the head of the stretch, at which point both tired, and Whisky King rushed to the front, followed by Blue Girl and Golden Cottage, and in this order they finished, two lengths apart. The summary:

About six furlongs—King Pepper won, Dublin second, Heliolas third; time, 1:09 3-5.

Races at Oakland.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 13.—After ordering Rio Shannon scratched from the fifth event at Oakland today, the judges suspended Thompson & Hagerman, his owners, until January 1 next, for attempting to start him when he was sick, and in no condition to race. He looked like a natural favorite, but the books laid 3 and 4 to 1 against him. The sudden improvement of Burdoc caused the judges to investigate his race yesterday. The matter is still pending. Collis was hooted for his ride on Shellmount. The colt was at the best, but the ride of Collis was about as bad as anything seen here this season. Oscar Tolle, who took the last race, was the medium of a heavy play. The results:

Six furlongs, selling—Sir Hampton won, Frank Woods second, Sweet Caporal third; time, 1:15.

Son of Hanover Not Yet Sold.

LEXINGTON, Ky., June 13.—H. P. Headley, owner of the Beaumont stud, the home of Julius Fleischmann's Halma, today denied the report that the son of Hanover has been sold. He said, however, the negotiations with Jean de Reszke's agent are in progress.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The Tribune tomorrow will say:

"The Russian Imperial Government has, it is rumored, purchased from Julius Fleishmann his celebrated stallion Halma, by Hanover-Julia L., and the price paid is understood to be $30,000. An agent of the Czar has been in this country for some time trying to obtain a stallion of Hanover blood to export to Russia to improve the breed of Russian horses. It is understood that Halma will be shipped directly to the Czar's stables. It was originally reported that Jean de Reszke had bought Halma."

Herlihy Held for Trial.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Police Captain John D. Herlihy has been held for trial in the Court of Special Sessions in $1500 bail by Magistrate Cornell in the Harlem Police Court. Bail was furnished at once. The charge is alleged neglect of duty in permitting vice to exist in the Eldredge-street precinct, known as the Red Light district, when the Captain was in command there last year. The action of the magistrate grew out of charges that were made against Captain Herlihy by the Rev. Mr. Paddock, of the Pro-Cathedral, before the old police board, which acquitted the Captain.

IRWIN GETS DECISION

DEFEATS MARTIN DENNY IN 20 HARD-FOUGHT ROUNDS.

San Francisco and Australian "Pugs" Entertain a Big Crowd With Clever Fighting.

Toby Irwin was given the decision over Martin Denny by Referee Jack O'Day after a go of 20 rounds of the fastest fighting that has ever been seen in a Portland ring The fight was Irwin's after the 12th round, and Denny had to call to his aid all his knowledge of ring tactics to avoid being put out by the clever 19-year-old youngster pitted against him. From the start to the finish Irwin forced the fighting, and, although Denny repeatedly rallied, and strove by the most desperate rushes to turn the tide of the battle in his favor, the young San Franciscan always took his punishment manfully and hit up the pace a notch in his own behalf.

Denny was sent to the floor repeatedly, and in the latter part of the contest was forced to clinch and hang on to his opponent in order to avoid going out. There was a large crowd present at the Exposition building, where the contest was held, who saw the three preliminaries and waited patiently for the main event. In the preliminaries the eight-round go between Freeman, of Spokane, and Eddie Murphy, of Albina, was called a draw, and the eight-round bout between Walton, of San Francisco, and Charles Swanson, of Portland, was won by the latter in the fifth, Walton having gone to the floor for the full 10 seconds on a right-handed back swing.

Martin Denny was the favorite in the main event of the evening. Astoria money came up in bunches that forced the odds up to 10 to 7 in favor of the Australian. When Referee Jack O'Day entered the ring he announced the posting of $100 at 10 to 7 on Martin Denny, which was taken by Irwin's admirers. There was some delay in starting the contest on account of the choice of the referee at the ringside. Irwin took the southeast corner, with "Biddy" Bishop, Harry Lord and Jim Griffin behind him. Martin Denny was looked after by Tom Tracey, Dud Evans and Steve Drummond. Nace Grant was chosen timekeeper.

When the men faced each other in the ring it was seen that both were in prime condition. It was agreed to fight with one arm free in the clinches, and to break when the referee called "Break." It was soon seen that this style of fighting favored the youngster. In every clinch he kept his right going like a triphammer on Denny's ribs and body, and 10 rounds of such tactics weakened the shifty and scientific Australian.

Denny landed the first blow in the opening round with his left, and then Irwin rushed in, landing with his left on the jaw, Denny clinching. Irwin commenced his tactics of getting in good short-arm punches, while in the clinches. Denny did his share of the leading, sending in some sharp blows, which Irwin took good naturedly, and responded quickly to Biddy Bishop's coaching to "Step in and fight him."

"How do you like that, Martin," called out Bishop, when Irwin landed a hard one.

"I'm not talking to you," replied Denny, "and I don't want any of your bloody tongue."

In the second Irwin went in for some heavy body blows, taking all the counters of Denny and continuing his sharp infighting.

Denny played for Irwin's body and heart in the fourth, doing most of the work and going in close for sharp infighting.

"Step in, Toby, he's only stalling," from Bishop aroused Denny to go in during the fifth for some long leads for head and neck, Toby contenting himself to duck under and get in his body blows.

Irwin sent Denny down in the sixth with a sharp left-hand punch in the mouth, Denny taking eight seconds to recover. Toby hit freely in clinches, and there were cries from Denny's corner of "Foul."

It looked as if the fight was off in the seventh, for the police were preparing to enter the ring. Denny's seconds objected to Irwin's method of hitting in clinches, which was, however, only in accordance with the rules. Denny was weak in this round and saved himself by clinching, finishing strong, however, and going in for some heavy blows.

The eighth round was opened with the same sharp rushes and fierce fighting at close range. Denny was sent to the floor for nine seconds by a hard left punch in the neck, and saved himself from further punishment by clinching.

Jack O'Day was kept busy breaking clinches in the ninth, and there was an even exchange of blows. It was a stand-up and give-and-take round, with honors even.

After the 10th the men were not so frisky at hitting in clinches. Denny was evidently trying to avoid punishment by clinching, while he swung desperately, but with little strength, seemingly with the hope of landing a knock-out blow. Irwin forced the fighting, and did most of the loading. Denny was sent down again in the 14th, and in the 19th was decidedly groggy. The two men fought fiercely, but neither had the strength to land a decisive blow. Irwin won the decision on his merits, having done most of the work, and having had the advantage throughout the contest, while Denny continually saved himself by clinching.

Freeman and Murphy put up a fast preliminary, with honors even, Murphy rushing in the first part of the contest and being met by stiff punches, while Freeman later took the aggressive.

The humorous element was furnished by the Walton-Swanson go. Walton, a tall, lanky boxer of the Fitzsimmons build, two-stepped about the ring in a lively fashion for several rounds, until stopped by several swift jolts. He was sent to the floor by a right-handed back swing, on the La Blanche order, from which he did not arise until after being counted out by Referee Nace Grant.

BULLETIN ON BUTTER.

Agricultural Department Tells How to Distinguish "Process" Article.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—People who are interested in the up-building of the dairying industry of Oregon will read with some appreciation a bulletin being prepared by the Department of Agriculture entitled "Household Tests for the Detection of Oleomargarine and Renovated Butter." This bulletin describes the method of making renovated or "process" butter, and refers to the usual methods for distinguishing the genuine butter from renovated, and both from oleomargarine. By following out the instructions therein contained, everyone should be able to detect a false product, and in that way command none but the best dairy butter.

Two household tests are given—the boiling test and the Waterhouse test. The former has been in use for about 10 years, and was originally used only for the detection of oleomargarine, but after the advent of renovated butter the test was found to serve almost equally well in distinguishing this product from genuine butter, although not from oleomargarine.

It may be conducted in the kitchen as follows: Take a piece of the sample about the size of a chestnut, put it in an ordinary tablespoon and hold it over the flame of a kerosene lamp, turned low, with chimney off. Hasten the process of melting by stirring with a splinter of wood; then increase the heat and bring it to as brisk a boil as possible. After the boiling has begun, stir the contents of the spoon thoroughly, not neglecting the outer edges, two or three times at intervals during the boiling—always shortly before the boiling ceases. A gas flame, if available, can be more conveniently used.

Oleomargarine and renovated butter boil noisily, sputtering (more or less) like a mixture of grease and water when boiled, and produce no foam, or but very little. Renovated butter usually produces a very small amount. Genuine butter boils usually with less noise and produces an abundance of foam. The difference in regard to foam is very marked as a rule.

The Waterhouse test, designed a year or so ago by C. H. Waterhouse, at that time dairy instructor at the New Hampshire College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, is as follows: Half fill a 100 cc. beaker with sweet milk; heat nearly to boiling and add from five to 10 grams of butter or oleomargarine. Stir with a small rod, which is preferably of wood and about the size of a match until the fat is melted. The beaker is then placed in cold water and the milk stirred until the temperature falls sufficiently for the fat to congeal. At this point the fat, if oleomargarine, can easily be collected together in one lump by means of the rod, while if butter, it will granulate and not be so collected. The distinction is very marked. The stirring is not, of necessity, continuous during the cooling, but it should be stirred as the fat is solidifying and for a short time before. The milk should be well mixed before being turned into the beaker, as otherwise cream may be turned from the top and contain so much butter fat that the test is vitiated for oleomargarine.

This test, in a slightly modified form adapted to household conditions, has been quite carefully studied in the chemical laboratory of the Department of Agriculture, where, under certain specified conditions, it has given satisfactory results in a large number of trials in distinguishing oleomargarine from both renovated and genuine butter. These conditions are essential, since under other conditions renovated butter might be mistaken for oleomargarine. The bulletin contains detailed directions for conducting the test. It is for free distribution and can be obtained on application to Senators and Representatives in Congress, or to the Secretary of Agriculture.

QUEER LOGIC.

Astoria's Hopes Based on Costly Street Work.

PORTLAND,, Or., June 13.—(To the Editor.—Astoria affords a curious illustration of how a whole community may become the victim of a strange illusion. There are no better people in the state than the denizens of Clatsop County. They have largely sprung from good old pioneer stock, and have contributed their full share to the upbuilding of Oregon. But the people down there seem to be heart-broken because the commerce of the Northwest has not settled at Astoria, following the building of a railroad to that city. And worst of all, our neighbors there seem to think their disappointments due, in some mysterious way, to the diabolical machinations of the people of Portland. They seem to imagine that the present unprecedented growth of the city of Portland is at the expense of the little city by the sea.

They appear wholly unable to realize that Portland's commercial supremacy in the Northwest is due to natural and not artificial causes.

Some time ago I had occasion to visit Astoria on business; and, while there one of Astoria's leading citizens invited me to go with him to the summit of the hills back of town, for the purpose of getting a view of the city and its environs. In our stroll, I was struck with the exceeding roughness of the townsite, particularly that part back of the business section, and I ventured to remark to the gentleman that street improvements must be costly to Astorians. He promptly replied by saying that this was one of the strongest advantages enjoyed by Astoria over other Columbia River points, that costly street improvements are good for any town. When I asked him how he figured that out, his answer was, that once upon a time Mr. C. P. Huntington visited Astoria, and when talking over this same matter, he (Mr. Huntington) told the Astorians that expensive and difficult street improvements were a good thing for a town, because it furnished employment for laborers, and that no town could consistently expect to become great and prosperous without plenty of work for the laboring man.

This logic did not appeal very forcibly to me, but, realizing the community strabismus from which the people there were suffering, I merely observed that "I had never thought of that." S.

FIRE AT A HEALTH RESORT

HOTEL AT WEST BADEN, IND., BURNED THIS MORNING.

There Were Several Hundred Guests in the Building, and It Is Rumored Some of Them Perished.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 14.—Telephone messages from Salem and Bedford to the Journal received up to 4:15 this (Friday) morning say:

The West Baden Springs Hotel, at West Baden, one of Indiana's most famous health and pleasure resorts, burned early this morning. It could not be learned how the fire started, because of the failure of lines of communication with this city at an early hour.

The fire was yet burning at 4 o'clock, and the building was then almost consumed. Everything in connection with the hotel building was destroyed, and it was rumored that several lives were lost, but this could not be confirmed. Telephone and telegraph communication with Indianapolis was destroyed while the story of the fire was being told.

The hotel is said to have had several hundred guests, and all of their belongings were destroyed, there having been no time to save anything.

Assistance was asked of the fire departments of near-by towns, but on account of the lack of transportation facilities no aid could be rendered.

A telephone message from Cincinnati at 4 A. M. stated that the fire broke out at 1 A. M. On account of the great confusion it was impossible to tell if all the guests and employes escaped.

J. M. Persise, of Salem, Ind., one of the proprietors, said at 4 o'clock this morning that part of the building was erected 12 years ago, and they had been adding to it ever since, until the value of the property was about $1,000,000, this including the grounds and buildings. There is only insurance of $100,000. The other proprietors are L. W. Sinclair, of Salem, who is now at West Baden, and E. B. Rhodes, of West Baden. As nearly as Mr. Persise could say there were 250 guests at the place last night. The hotel, he said, had 700 rooms.

West Baden is a favorite resort for many of the wealthy people of Chicago and Louisville, and each Summer many excursions are run to the place from those cities and Indiana points. The place is exclusive and quiet, and the business world is barred out. The effort of the management has been to beautify the place, and to make it attractive for the public seeking recreation and health. West Baden is located near the western boundary line of Orange County, and is reached by an extension of the Monon line from Paoli.

Parent Warns Young People Against "Keg Parties."

PORTLAND, June 8.—(To the Editor.)—Please allow me space in The Oregonian to sound an alarm to thinkers and parents. A fad has started among our young people for beer-drinking parties, called "keg parties," where, if practicable, a keg of beer, or case, is furnished by host or hostess and the party adjourns to the dining-room. On the table are stacked plates, napkins and glasses, with a goodly supply of Swiss cheese, sandwiches, German pickles and olives. Wit and hilarity quite as sharp and pungent as the refreshments prevail. At the proper time cigarettes make their appearance for the gentlemen or boys. It also adds eclat to the occasion for the young ladies to take a few whiffs, or go each other one better, if they can, and smoke one or two, and this by young ladies who pride themselves on being highly cultured and refined. Bohemia is the idea.

Now, these parties, to be a sure success, must have no chaperon or parental countenance. They are invited to spend their evening out or retire to their room and not show up for fear some may feel a restraint supposedly as to the number of glasses taken or clouds of smoke produced or wit curtailed.

If parents have the courage of their convictions to offer a protest, they are loftily called down, told that it is quite the proper thing in these fast times, that they are behind the times, and are too puritanical in their ideas.

Portland has always been noted for its beautiful and moral girls. Are we parents to step aside and see our daughters take a broad path that we know leads to many vices? Our sons can drink and smoke enough without having the support and countenance of good, moral girls, who for the sake of a little fun and being considered up to date risk their characters and reputations and forget the teachings and wishes of perhaps overindulgent parents, who may give way to the strong young minds, thinking to give them a present pleasure, forgetting the future.

Let each good girl ask herself if she has any self-respect or thinks her gentlemen friends have any respect for her or these entertainments. When a young man makes an evening call and is taken to the dining-room and regaled on beer after the family has retired, or beer is smuggled into the parlor and he assists in or witnesses the removal of all traces of it, so parents who do object may have no knowledge of it, does the caller have any respect for these girls, or can they for themselves?

Now, parents, join me in heads and hands, arouse yourselves and help me put this hydra down before it slays the morals of our homes. I am no radical, and do not object to a glass or so of beer properly or temperately taken, but I most strenuously object to young ladies entertaining their gentlemen friends on beer and smoke and keg parties.

RECEIVER FOR COBRE GRANDE

Controversy Over the Mines of an Arizona Company.

NEW YORK, June 13.—Axel Hallenberg, a stock broker, has, through his counsel, applied to Justice Gildersleeve, in the Supreme Court, for a receiver for the Cobre Grande Copper Company, of Arizona, and an injunction restraining it from disposing of any of its property, pending his action. The Justice allowed the counsel interested until tomorrow to submit briefs.

The controversy over the mines of the company has extended over a period of two years, principally in Arizona, and the present suit is an attempt upon the part of Mr. Hallenberg to get a hearing in the New York courts. Mr. Greene, one of the defendants in the present suit, was in New York May 28, and personal service of the summons and complaint, and application for an injunction was made on him at that time, not only in his individual capacity, but as president of the Greene Consolidated Copper Company. Since that time strenuous efforts have been made by his counsel to have the case dismissed on the ground of want of jurisdiction; that the controversy could be remitted to Arizona. A motion to that effect was recently denied.

The Darnell mine at Kalama, owned and operated by Dr. J. C. Darnell, a local physician, has struck phonolite at a depth of 220 feet. Pholonite, as is well known by the mining world, is extremely rare in the United States, and as defined by a mining expert from Portland, is the true wall to the treasure vault. Within 24 hours after the strike was known by Portland parties interested, an offer of $40 a share, or an approximate total of $300,000, was offered for the total stock. The offer was promptly refused.
