LOCAL WRESTLER WON

ED C. JOHNSON, OF MULTNOMAH CLUB, DEFEATED MAX WILEY.

Amsteur Champion Declares He Was Not Thrown-Referee Budd Smith Says Johnson Won Fairly.

Ed Johnson, the clever middle-weight wrestler of the Multnomah Club, defeated his opponent, Max Wiley, the amateur light, welter and middle-weight champion of the United States, last evening at the Multnomah Club. The decision was given for a fall in the second bout by Referee Budd Smith, of Vancouver, and aroused more excitement than has been stirred up in any contest that has ever been held at the club. The men had put up a hard, fast match from start to finish. Johnson's weight and strength had been matched against Wiley's skill and science, decision was given in the first bout, acsecured. In the second, Johnson had won the upper hold. Forcing Wiley to the ground, he secured combination crotch and half-Nelson hold, and rolled the clever little wrestler over on his shoulders. In a flash Wiley had bridged, and wriggled out of danger. The two men were going at their wrestling again, when Referee Budd Smith tapped Johnson on the shoulder, declaring him the winner.

Wiley sprang to his feet.

"All I have to say, gentlemen," he ex-claimed, "is that there was no fall. I was not down, and any one sitting on that side of the house can tell you the same," waving his hand to the spectators on the cast side of the gymnasium.

The decision and Wiley's subsequent statement formed the subject of the conversation for a half an hour after the close of the match. Many of the spectators sitting on the east side of the house, toward which Johnson had rolled Wiley, say that the fall was fair and square, and agree with the referee that a fall was made. To the speciators on the other side the wrestling maneuver looked very much like a fall. Johnson had Wiley in a sitting position. Wiley was evidently preparing for an attempt to take the upper position. Johnson suddenly seized him with a crotch and half-Nelson hold, and rolled him over on his shoulders. The whole movement was quick as a flash, and Wiley was out of the position in an instant. The decision was given, and met with the approval of the majority of spec

The two men had agreed that if the referee was unable to give a decision af-ter the first bout that the contest should be decided on the result of the second bout. For this reason, winning the fall in the second gave Johnson the match. In the first bout the men were seen to be evenly matched. Wiley is built like a little giant, with a fine pair of shoul-ders and a strong, active body. Johnson is powerful across the shoulders, but has a long body, and seems weak in the legs. Johnson took the aggressive at the start and chased Wiley all over the mat, finally getting the upper hold. Then Wiley's cleverness commenced to show. His pow-erful opponent tried hold after hold, but could do nothing with him. Wiley gave Johnson opening after opening, in order to get a chance to take the aggressive but Johnson refused to take them. John-son worked like a Trojan, but did not have the skill to handle his shifty op-ponent. Wiley wriggled out of all kinds of dangerous positions, half-Neisons and crotch holds, until finally Johnson laid himself open, and Wiley obtained the upper position. In a second Wiley had a dangerous leg hold, and Johnson wriggled off the mat to save himself. The referee could do nothing else but reserve his de-cision for the succeeding bout. Johnson had kept the aggressive for 25 minutes. but had not shown the skill to merit the Johnson, however opened the second with a rush, secured the upper position, and worried Wiley considerably. In two minutes he had won the fall by his clever throw. Johnson weighed 157 pounds and

The preliminary match between Alex De France and Dick Price was won by the latter, who took two falls to De France's one. Price won the first bout in 11 min-utes. De France had kept the upper hold during the bout, and was rolled over on his back after having attempted to execute a throw from a good body hold. De France took the second bout in 4½ min-utes. Price had wrigsied out of a crotch hold, but was caught with a half-Nelson. De France took the aggressive in the th'rd bout, but Price turned the tables on him, and secured the upper hold. De Franke wriggled out of two dangerous positions, but was thrown on a half-Nelson. There was no doubt in the mind of Referce Budd Smith that the fall had been fairly won by Johnson. "I was right in front of the two men, and saw the fall perfectly," said he after the match, "Wiley tried to bridge, but his head was forced down, and his shoulders touched the mat. Only for a second, however, for Wiley wriggled out of danger, and began wrestliff again. It was a good match. and both men worked all the time. Wiley gave Johnson several openings in the first hout, and finally won the upper position, could do nothing else but reserve my ecision until the second bout. Then when there was a fall, I gave the match to Johnson, who had won it fairly and Wiley maintained that he had not been thrown. "I knew Johnson was trying to roll me," said fie after the match, "so I bridged as I went over, and wriggled out of the position, hoping to get the upper hold. I know I was not thrown, Johnson evidently did not think so either, for he kept on wrestling." Wiley's next match will be with Ciser Bullivant, of Spokane, who claims the Northwest championship.

CAUGHT AT HIS OWN GAME.

Confidence Man Was Too Confiding With the "Sky Pilot."

Detroit Free Press. Waiting at the Union depot was a roundfaced man with an attractive counte-nance, eyes that invited confidence, and rather long hair, that waved from a fine forehead. He was dressed in ciericals and looked the part. When the old farm-er took a seat after buying a ticket for Ypsilanti the two fell into conversation.

The minister brought the talk around to pickpockets, and men who fool you out of your money, and expressed a great deal of dread of them. He clung to this topic until the noise of a row was heard from the outside, and he expressed a deire to see what was the matter. "Come on," he shouted, as he started

"All right, don't be too long," and the farmer accepted the trust.

When the minister returned the farmer was gone. Never did a cierical masquerade come to a quicker end. He rushed around muttering things profane, kept his hand in his hip pocket, and told everybody but the policeman that he could lick any farmer that ever wore shoe leather. Half an hour later he was in a saloon making things blue. "I'll know him if I ever see him again, I don't care how he's dressed, and I'll cut him into square inches. I don't 'low any man to make a sucker of me and live to blow about it." Some guy cross-counter on the

AMERICANS GAINING.

Tin-Plate Manufacturers Entering Foreign Markets,

WASHINGTON, June 18. - American manufacturers of tin plate are making rapid gains in their attempt to enter the foreign markets of the world. To be sure, their exports are yet small, as compared with the domestic demand which they are neeting, but they are again reducing the imports. which temporarily increased in 1500 under the excessive demand and extremely high price of materials, and are at the same time increasing their exports in a manner which proves interesting to those who have watched the development of this comparatively new industry in the of this comparatively new industry in the United States. The figures of the Treasury Bureau of Statistics show that the ex-ports of tin plates from the United States which in the 10 months ending with April, which in the 10 months ending with April, 1899, amounted to only 183,855 pounds, and in the 10 months ending with April, 1900, to 275,990 pounds, were, in the 10 months ending with April, 1901, 1,305,100 pounds. In imports of tin plates the figures for the 10 months show a material decrease, as compared with the quantity imported dur-ing the same period of the preceding fis-cal year, being 98,000.722 pounds, as compared with 123,538,773 pounds for the 10 months' period of last year.

Our total expertations of tin plate in the fiscal year 1901 seem likely to be from eight to 10 times those of 1839, while the importations of tin plates into the United States promise to be little more than one-tenth those of 1891, the year of the largest importation of tin plates into the United States, and but about one-fifth of the average annual importation during the five years prior to the establishment of the tin-plate industry in the United

The record of tin-plate prices during the past two years shows a remarkable fluctuation, largely due to the unusually high price of material in 1909. Quotations for tin plates furnished to the Treasury Bureau of Statistics show the price per box of 100 pounds of tin plates of Bessemer steel in New York in April, 1901, as $4 20. the uniform price since January 1, 1991; in January, 1890, the price was $5.50, while in January, 1898, it was $3.50. Meantime the price of Straits tin used in the manufacture of tin plate has increased from 13.82 cents per pound in January, 1808, to 34.62 cents in July, 1900, and thence down-ward to 28.2 cents April 19, 1801, and again advancing to 28.15 cents on June 1, 1901; while steel billets increased in price from $15 per ton in January, 1898, to $35 per ton in January, 1899, since which date the price has fluctuated considerably, finally coming practically stationary at $28 per ton in March, 1901.

The following table, from the annual report of the American Iron & Steel As-sociation, shows the production of tin plates and terne plates in the United States during each calendar year from 1892 to 1900:

General Palma came the 10 months ending with April 30, 1839, 1900 and 1901, respectively: Goldwin Smith on Gladstone. New York Sun. To the end of his life Gladstone appears to have remained sincerely and screnely orthodox. He believed to the last in the personality of evil and in the judgment day. He was of the high church sch and was constantly accused by his enemies of being a masked Roman Catholic and a Jesuit. He was, however, scarcely a Ritualist, and he was strongly opposed to ultramantanism, against which he broke contraversial lance, though he was much drawn toward liberal Roman Catholics such as Dollinger and Lord Ac-ton. His bosom friends probably to the last were high churchmen. Nor, though in disestablishing the Irish church he had broken with his early theory of church and state, had he pronounced or made up his against church establishment in general. In the excitement of the home general. lishment of the Church of Wales. I have always suspected that unwillingness to fulfill that promise had its share with the failure of his onslaught on the lords and his dispute with the Admiralty about increase of the Navy in determining his ultimate realrement from public life. His high church friends had borne the disestablishment of the Irish church, which was separate from the Church of England, and, owing to its local antagonism with Catholics, intensely Protestant, They would not so easily have borne disestab lishment of the Church of Wales, which was in every respect a branch of the Church of England. Gladstone showed his orthodox simplicity by tilting against Huxley in defense of the cosmogony of Genesis. His contention in effect was that the Mosaic cosmogeny was a close approximation to the truth; in other words that the Creator, though not scienhad, in describing his own to Moses, been acute enough nearly to anticipate the nebular hypothesis. Jowett, when he was told of the sim-plicity of Gladstone's habits, replied that he did not object to the simplicity of the habits, but he did object to the du-plicity of the character. He would not have gone beyond the fact if instead of duplicity he had said power of self-de-ception, which was not unlikely some-times to wear the appearance of duplicity. On the other hand, simplicity of a certain kind certainly extended from Gladstone's habits to his character. Very simple sayings are reported of him. Men of the world said that he never looked as well as Christian charity, when, accoated by a prostitute at night in the street, instead of putting her aside, he stopped to convert her and being pounced upon by a blackmaller, was exposed to the gibes of the wicked.

England's American Scout. London Chronicle Mention was made by our correspond-ent of the fact that Major Burnham, the famous scout, risked his life in an attempt to warn General Broadwood's col tempt to warn General Broadwood's col-umn when it was walking into the trap at Sanna's Post so skillfully laid by the Boers. It may be remembered that at the time Major Burnham was a prisoner in the hands of Dewet, and his keen eye quickly saw that unless Broadwood's force could be warned it was lost be-yond redemption. Accordingly-and this fact, we believe, has not yet been made public-Major Burnham, at the risk of his life, contrived to mount an ambu lance wagon and made signals that were seen by those at the head of Broadwood's column. Apparently, however, our me had lulled themselves into such a faise security that the signalling failed of its effect. We believe that the signals were perfectly understood and the versity will not confer the degree in his absence. When President Ellot was in- explanation was given by those who read DR. W. S. kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Bladder troubles most always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasent to take and sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sized bottles. them, that they thought the signals were a Boer trap. That is to say, believing that he signals were made by a Boer, using, apparently, the British code, they nevertheless, blundered on into the pitfall which had been prepared for them.

No icas interesting is the story-also, we believe, hitherts unpublished-of Major Burnham's escape from the Boers after Sanna's Post. He had been pinced in a bulleck wagen at the head of the Boer column, but by a series of ingen-lous artifiers he contrived to get placed in the last of the long line of wagons, whence he had an uninterrupted view of the Boer r. ar guard. Waiting until nightfall and watching his opportunity, he managed to drop over the front of the wagon just behind the talls of the last two even, and r maining flat on the ground until the wisch had pursed over him, when he swiftly and stealthfly crawled away and lay hid in a hellow until the floor rear guard had passed, ultimately making his way back to the British lines. As an evidence of Major Burnhames accurates within Burnham's scouting qualities, it may be stated that he was within the Boer lines, unknown and unrusp cled, no less than 34 times

A Beautiful Indian Model. Kansas City Star.

Mrs. Tahament, a famous woman model, ls a pure, full-blood member of the Abe-naki tribe, which formerly lived in Northern Maine, and now has its reservation in Canada, Her people, numbering less than 100) members, are well to do, and fol-low farming as their chief occupation. In her early days Mrs. Tahamont was considered the most heautiful of her tribe. The fast passing away of the aboriginal Indian people, together with their color and picturesqueness, is genuine regret to the Indian painters and artists, consequently a typical and full-blood repre-sentative of this race is much in demand for posing purposes. Possessing, as she doen, superior mental gifts, an unusually characteristic Indian face, and varied beautiful Indian costumes, Mrs. Tahamont is looked upon as an ideal subject for illustrating. One of the most noted paintings in which she appears is the large wall decoration in the lobby of the Hotel Netherland, New York, by Artist Tuttle. The picture represents Peter Min-uet buying the Island of Manhattan from the Indians for the sum of $24 in wampum belts.
