FIREWORKS TO BE GIVEN THERE ON THE FOURTH.

Decision is Reached by General Committee After Some Opposition-Details of Parade.

Centrary to the custom that has been followed in previous years, the fireworks for the Fourth of July celebration will be exploded this year on the East Side. This was decided upon at a meeting of the general Fourth of July committee held last night. The display will be made on Holladay avenue and west of Union ave-

The motion to have the fireworks on the East Side was made by J. D. Mann. L. D. Cole made an amendment to hold them on the Seventh-street terrace in Portland, Julius L. Meler supported the amendment, and Major Kennedy spoke for the East Side. The East Side proposition prevailed by a considerable major-

N. W. Rountree, chairman of the subcommittee on fireworks, reported that the order for the display, with the exception of one or two set pieces, had been placed in San Francisco. Mr. Rountree stated that the display would be a very fine one. One of the set pieces which will be made here is a reproduction of the battle-ship Oregon, 25x50 feet. An ap-propriate inscription will accompany the

I. N. Fleischner, chairman of the committee on music, reported that it had been practically decided to hire five bands, or, strictly speaking, four bands and a drum corps to be used in the parade and litry exercises, as well as at the fireworks at night. These bands are the Third Regi-ment band, the Mount Tabor band, De Caprio's band, the Southern Pacific band, and the Boys' Drum Corps. Thus, music will cost fully $700, the full amount apristed by the general committee for

The report of the parade committee was by General O. Summers, who presented by General O. Summers, who stated that while the full details of the parade, together with the line of march, cannot be announced, still substantial progress has been made, and the general outline of the parade was given. One of the principal features will be the Swiss citizens, who will undertake to present the dairy interest of Portland and vicinity in graphic and interesting fashion. They will have three floats, a Swiss band and a drove of fine dairy cows. In adlition there will be a division of Swiss citizens in the marching line, and in various other ways the dairy interest set forth.

The Italian citizens of the city and county will exhibit the gardening interests in a novel fashion. All the military organizations of the city, and some from outside towns will be in line, as well as civic and secret organizations. The Mayor and Common Council will be on the reviewing stand, and an invitation will be extended to Governor Geer and will be extended to Governor Geer and staff to be there also.

General Summers stated that he was particularly anxious to have a good floral display in the parade, and to that end he urges all persons desirous or willing to make a floral display communicate with the same and the same transfer. ## MAY FORM A UNION.

Portland's Bartenders Start a Movement Toward Organization.

Portland bartenders are likely to have an association of their own, pretty soon, according to H. A. Duke, of the Amer-ican Federation of Labor, who was seen yesterday in regard to it. Mr. Duke expects to organize a branch of the Ho-tel and Restaurant Employes' Alliance, which he says will include the bartenders as well. "The organization." he said, "has 250 branches in the United States at present, and all the large cities have at least one each. The bartenders of Portland have no grievances, but are simply going to organize for mutual protection, as the cigar-makers have done.

A member of such an organization, on reaching a strange city, can hand his card to the local lodge and be made to feel at home. Should be desire employment, the card will help him, inasm as it will be a recommendation from his

There are between 250 and 300 bar tenders in Portland, and it is those who are employed in the best places at the highest wages who desire to organize a branch here. The tendency of the pro-posed union will be toward equalizing wages, which will work no injustice to anyone. Some bartenders are now workanyone. Some bartenders are now work-ing for $25 per month, while others get $55 for the same work. The efforts of the organization will be to bring the ill-paid man's wages up to a living price, while the better paid man's wages will not be

The proposition does not meet with favor on the part of the saloon proprietors spoken to on the matter, as they fear trouble may result from strikes, but those bartenders who desire to organise think this fear will prove unfounded, as strikes and lock-outs do not necessarily follow in the wake of labor organizations, when employer and employed use judgment, and are both willing to make concessions in the other's interests. The meeting of bartenders in Alisky Hall one evening last week did not succeed in or-ganizing, owing to the small attendance, but the promoters hope to have a larger asemblage next time.

BODY OF FRED REHORST FOUND IN THE RIVER.

His Mind Was Unsettled by Drink and by His Disgrace While Serving as a Juror.

The body of Frederick Rehorst, the retired barber, who disappeared from the Esmond Hotel last Thursday morning, after he had been reprimanded for intoxication while serving as a juror in the State Circuit Court, was found in the river yesterday, at the foot of Raleigh street. The body was conveyed to Holman's undertaking rooms, and the verdict of the Coroner's jury was that Rehorst, while laboring under suicidal mania, due to overindulgence in liquor, jumped off Morrison-street bridge and was drowned.

From the evidence given before the Coroner's jury, it appeared that the rebuke administered to Rehorst when he recently reported as juror before the State Circuit Court, while intoxicated, humiliated him deeply. He failed to appear be-fore Judge Frazer to apologize for his conduct, as he had promised, and a bench-warrant was issued for his appearance at sentence.

Judge Frazer asked: "What have you to say for youself".

"Nothing, your honor," was the reply, "except that I was intovicated and had "Nothing, your honor," was the reply,
"except that I was intoxicated and had been in that condition for two months. I was crazy for whisky and willing to do mervous condition, and asked to be sent to a hospital. Dr. Belt consulted Judge Frazer, and as the latter had no objection the necessary arrangements for Rehorst's removal to the bospital were made; but at the last moment Rehorst refused to leave his hotel. then administered medicine to his patient. and left him, promising to call back. About 1 o'clock last Thursday morning Rehorst was seen to rush out of his room in an excited condition, and run to the back porch of the hotel, where he was met by another boarder, who mistook him for a burglar. The boarder had a revolver, and he leveled it at Rehorst and said: "Hands up."

"Don't shoot. I'm Rehorst," said that individual, and the other man lowered his revolver, saying that he thought he was confronting a burglar. Suddenly Rehorst "You might have shot anyway, The discussion ended then, but shortly afterward Rehorst ran out of the front door of the hotel. Policeman Nash rapidwalked after him, but in the darkness Rehorst disappeared, and the hotel people never saw him alive again.

Patrick Murphy, & North Eighth street testified that he found Rehorst's body floating in the river, at the foot of Raleigh With the assistance of another man, witness got a boat and towed the body to the Albina ferry. The body was badly decomposed, and neither boots nor socks were on the feet. A postal card was found in one of the pockets, addressed to the dead man's nephew, Fred J. Peck, of the San Francisco postoffice, and the only words that could be deciphered were "I am still here. I am sick of town." card was evidently intended for mailing

A telegram was sent to Mr. Peck notifying him of the occurrence, and a reply was received that Mr. Peck would leave San Francisco for this city today.

Rehorst was born in Germany, 47 years ago, and he retired from business as a barber about 1897. He was well off, financially, and had money invested in stocks. He was unmarried. One witness, August Geiths, told the jury: "I never saw Rehorst drunk, and I never saw him buy anybody a drink,"

HELD UP AND ROBBED.

Workingman Relieved of $35 in the Shadow of a Church.

Joseph Saling, a whitewasher, residing at 2681/2 Front street, says he was held up Friday evening alongside the Taylor-Street M. E. Church and relieved of $35. was passing along down Taylor street when three men sprang out from the shadow of a projecting buttress. Without saying a word the big man of the trio placed his hand over Saling's mouth to prevent an outcry, and the other two went through his pockets, where they found the $35. They then made off: a crowd, including a policeman, gathered, and Saling told his story as best he could The matter was not reported by the po-lice, as the detectives desired to cap-ture the thugs before publicity was given the incident, but as they have now had three days in which to overhaul them, this publication will probably not interfere with the course of justice.

Saling is considered a truthful man by those who know him, and as he has no wife to deceive as to how he lost the money, his friends do not think he fooled it away at the gaming table, and then inup story. He follows the vocation of fruit-tree sprayer in the Winter, and in Summer uses the same spray pump to whitewash with. He had just received the $35 as pay for work done on a livery stable, and feels, therefore, as though he had a better right to it than the three rascals who lay in wait for him in the shadow of a house of worship. Hold-ups have been very infrequent in

PLANS FOR BOAT RAILWAY

Man Who Moved the Lightship Is Working on Them.

Andrew Allen, the Portland house-mover, who rescued Lightship No. 50 by pulling the vessel bodily out of the sand and hauling her overland to Baker's Bay, is at work on plans for a boat railway at Cellio. He is of the opinion that a railway can be built over the eight miles necessary at one-eighth the cost of a canal, and that the operating expenses of the railway will also be less than those of a canal and locks. His plan is to run two to four railroad tracks down an incline at each end of the dalles of the Columbia and on these an adjustable Columbia and on these an adjustable cradle will run. The steamboats will be brought over this cradle and hauled up the incline, and over the eight miles of track to the other end of the rapids, where track to the other end of the rapids, where the vessel can be gently set affoat again. "We have every advantage as regards rapidity and economy of construction," Mr. Allen said yesterday, "while the time required to haul a boat over the dailes is also much less. I have been atudying this question for the past 15 years, and I think my experience in successful moveing heavy bodies entitles my theory to some consideration. When my plans and estimates are on paper I will submit them to the United States engineers for their consideration. When the Government be comes convinced that my scheme is the most feasible, as well as the most economical. I feel sure the project will be taken up. I consider that a canal at these would be very expensive to build and at the same time not so well calculated to move heavily-laden steamboats dur-ing periods of high water. The boat railway could be built in a few months; the pro-posed canal, which would have to be blasted out of the basaltic rock, would take years to finish. My plan is, therefore, the best, not only for the Government, but for the people of the Inland Empire, who have grain to ship by boat to tidewater at Portland."

Miss Kate H. White, of Oakland, Cal. daughter of Captain George D. White, formerly manager for Murphy, Grant & Co., in Portland, proved herself a heroine in a train disaster near Santa Cruz, Cal., recently. The train jumped the track, and the cars piled up. The train almost went over a steep precipice. A San Francisco paper in speaking of the accident says: And here the accident evolved its h in the person of Miss Kate Howard White, a beautiful girl, whose home is at 1253 Webster street, Oakland, and who had been visiting her aunt, Mrs. F. W. Swanton, of this city. She was soon beside the foctor, bathing the wounds of the "What can we use for bandages?" asked the physician. Miss White at once offered her handkerchief and seeing how inadequate this was, her ready wit provided what was necessary. She had her trunk in the baggage car. This she ordered broken open. Then, taking out one after another of her dainty under garments, she tore n into strips and gave them the doctor to be used as dages. No trained nurse could have been more courageous or more deft. She held the blood-stained heads of the men in her lap, bathing and fanning The wrecking train came up. A special train came to carry the passengers to San Francisco. The passengers went, but Miss White stuck to her self-appointed task, and when the injured men were put in a car bound for the metropolis, she remained with them, ministering to their needs, attending to every request of the surgeons, and winning the praise and admiration of everybody.

In closing, the Judge read a decision in a case reported in California No. II, the People vs. V. # FROM FACTORY TO HOME

That's exactly what occurs when you buy a plane or organ from the ALLEN & GILBERT CO. We have not a plane or organ in our house, but what was shipped us direct from the manufacturers-that, too, in carload This in a measure, accounts for the reason why we sell "THE BEST PIANOS THE WORLD HAS YET PRODUCED" at a moderate price, and within the reach of all. This is a progressive age we are living in and a purchaser of a high-grade plane wants to know the whys and wherefores and why we can sell THE WORLD'S STANDARD PIANOS at the exceedingly low price we do. QUANTITY AND QUALITY go a long way with us, and when one sees a plane with the name KNABE, STECK, HARDMAN, FISCHER, PACKARD or LUDWIG, they know the quality is as good as gold, and when they come to our parlors and see the large number of planes and organs we display, they realize what quantity means.
