Commissioner Dosch Tells How They Attract Attention-Strawberries and Salmon.

Commissioner H. E. Dosch writes from the Buffalo Exposition to George Lamberson under date of June 20 as follows: The first lot of strawberries arrived moldy, but the second lot came in perfect order and kept good for three days on exhibition, even in this beastly climate, where it is cold in the morning. red hot at noon and overcoat weather at night. Today it is raining, thundering like fun and hot, sticky weather. It is simply beastly. The grounds are covered with half an inch of water. We will soon have to get boats.

"Our apples are holding out wonderly. You know I had only 29 boxes in half of which are on exhibition, the others still in cold storage. As soon as some of them show decay we take them off and put others in their place, for I have to stretch them out a long ways, even longer than a daschbund. You have seen the one Sichel, the cigar man, has. It is wonderful how they keep. Some of them have been on the table for six weeks, being polished every day, and are yet firm, especially some Newtown opins from Mr. E. L. Smith, and some net apples grown by William Ehrck, at Hood River, near the snow line, which undoubtedly will get the gold hedal, as Professor Van Deman, the judge, told me they were the finest Genet he had ever seen, and he knows. Although our apple exhibit is small-only 100 plates, while such states as Illinois and New York have o each-it attracts more at-and it is difficult to convince people that they are not out of wax, on account of their perfect shape and beautiful color and the high polish they take. Often to establish my point for truth I have to cut one to pieces and hand them around to eat, when they exclairs, 'Oh, such fine flavor, etc. But we are used to that. Compliments have been showered on us so that our heads cannot swell

"The strawberries we distributed and you ought to have heard the praise. I would hand one to a lady and she would take a bite, have her hubby take a bite and divide the rest among the children. They almost fought to get just one berry, while those berries of Missouri and New York-measly sour things-remained un-touched. We have to stand guard with a dub of course, and then every once in a while someone will make a grab for

"Now in regard to the apples sent by Mr. W. S. Miller, of Clatskanie. I en-tered them, of course, though I was sat-isfied they were Ben Davis grown under peculiar conditions, and to settle the question I called the jury, with Van Deman at the head, and all pronounced them Ben Davis. We cut some of them open and they have the same delightful sawdust taste and flavor of the original

Immensity of Work at Beaver Creek -To Clean Pipe Line.

GRESHAM, Or., June 24.-Work on the top of the hill will give sufficient ma-terial for the fill at the foot. The cut will be about 25 feet deep, and the fill about 20. Sliding scrapers are being used to load the wagons, which expedites the work, and allows a larger force to operate than if the wagons were loaded by hand. As the roadway is narrow, where it approaches the old bridge, and there is considerable travel, it was necessary to operate on but one-half of the road at a time. One side is now about done, except the leveling, which must wait until both sides are completed. A temporary bridge has been built across one arm of Beaver Creek, which will be used until of the old one which will be torn away as soon as the cut and fill are done. Deputy Surveyor Lewis and his crew set the final stakes last week for the grades. and the work will be pushed to an early completion. Roadmaster Steele was out here one day last week and expressed himself as being satisfied with the progress of the improvement. It is now being considered whether a concrete arch would not be better than a bridge across the creek, as the plans for the latter call for embankments on each side about 100 feet both above and below, which will have to gipgapped. It will take as much rock to do this as to make an arched viaduct, and the cost is estimated to be less. The and the cost is estimated to be less. The total cost of the work will run close to since the work was undertaken, but the grade will be reduced fully 50 per cent.

To Clean Water Pipe. The Portland Water Company has had men at work along the pipe line attach-ing ventilators to the check-valves at each manhole, for the purpose of ad-mitting air to the water pipe. An an-nual cleaning out of the pipe will take place soon, and it is necessary that the pipe should be drained quickly when the water is shut off. Drainage will be CERTAIN FOR FIRST PRIZE facilitated by the admission of air, hence the ventilators. When everything is the ventilators. When everything is ready and the reservoirs have been filled so as to give the city a supply of water for a few days, the water will be turned for a few days, the water will be turned off at the headworks, and a crew of men will start through the pipe, cleaning its entire distance in a short time. Con-siderable sediment gathers, which it is necessary to remove, and the work is done every Summer. The men take little carts and scrapers, and in that manner clean from one manhole to another.

Price of Butter Fat.

The creameries and cheese factories are now paying 22% cents a pound for butter fat, which is a slight drop from former prices. It is a great deal more, however, than dairy butter is bringing, and the farmer is not in it if he does his own churning. As a consequence it is very hard to find dairy butter around here, and most of the farmers who have plenty of milk are buying butter for their own use. The supply of milk keeps up remarkably well, owing to improved methods of feeding, and the clover crop being exceptionally fine this season. Brief Notes.

John G. Woolley Addresses a Big Audience on the Old Issues.

John G. Woolley addressed a crowded house at the Metropolitan Theater last evening on the subject of suppressing the liquor traffic by political methods. He seemed not at all dismayed by the "mere handful of votes," as he called them, which he obtained while running for President in 1990, but prophesied that a Pro-hibition Governor would yet grace the state Capitol of Oregon, and a Prohibition President would some day occupy the White House.

INLAND EMPIRE PROTESTS

STRONG FEELING OVER ABANDON-MENT OF CELIO TRIP.

Cities of Columbia River Valley Want the Rivers and Harbors Committee to Come.

From every commercial organization of the great Inland Empire are coming to the Portland Chamber of Commerce protests at the abandonment of the trip of the Congressional rivers and harbors com-mittee to Cellio. The feeling of regret that the itinerary of the committee was not arranged to include the Upper lumbia is felt in an equal degree by members of the Portland Chamber Commerce, whose officers and trustees made strenuous efforts to impress upon the visitors by telegrams and correspondence the importance of spending three days in Oregon, so as to visit both the Upper and the Lower Columbia. This the ommittee has not done, and, although three days have been devoted to this sec-tion, one of them is Sunday, on which the members do not travel. As adepted by the committee, the party will take in the Willamette Valley and the Lower Co-lumble, and Chairman Burton and a number of members of the committee will return in July to visit and inspect the Upper Columbia and its tributaries.

Following is a letter received from E H. Libby in his official capacity as president of the Lewiston, Idaho, Chamber of Commerce:

Lewiston, June 20.-Mr. Henry Hahn, Pres Lewiston, June 20.—Mr. Henry Hann, President Chamber of Commerce, Portiand-Dear Sir. Yesterday we telegraphed you as follows: "Omission of Cellio from programme of Congressional committee endangers support of Astoria, of Idaho, Washington and Eastern Oregon for deepening lower river. You know these regions only need open river to Astoria. Much prefer united effort for all these interests. If Cellio is dropped interests. terests. If Celilo is dropped, interior is an

Perhaps the newspaper accounts of the con-templated action of Portland in possibly omit-ting Cellio from the programme for the visit-ing Congressmen misled us. We cannot con-"mouth-of-the-river" interests can be compared with the Dalles-Cellio canal. You are certain of the Willamette Valley. At best, it is, per-haps, one-twentieth the commercial import-ance of the Columbia River basin east of the ance of the Columbia River basin east of the Cascades. Under the conditions of an open river, the commerce of the Inland Empire will be increased tenfold or more. The chief gainer by the construction of The Dalles-Cellio canal will be Portland, Each section of the interior will gain, but Portland will gain by the advance of each and every one of these interior points. Over a year ago there was an informal agreement entered into during an informal agreement entered into during a meeting of the directors of the Portland Cham-ber of Commerce, by which I agreed for the Lewiston Chamber of Commerce to use our utmost efforts to secure an appropriation for the "mouth-of the-river" improvements. We promptly took up the matter with the Idaho delegation, and they promptly seconded and fulfilled our promises. I went to Walla Walla in person, and later by correspondence with President Payne, of the Walla Walla Com-mercial Club, so presented the matter to him that through his efforts and through our own direct efforts, in part, at least, the Washing-ton delegation were brought to support all the seeting of the directors of the Portland Cha ton delegation were brought to support all the tagonism between Portland and the Interior is bound to work harm to both projects. For the sake of all this work, we trust that the talk against the Cellio trip will be promptly smothered, and that so far as the rivers and harbors committee and the outside world is concerned, there may be every appearance of harmony and united effort in favor of the deepening of the mouth of the river, and also tagonism between Portland and the Interior is the removal of obstructions at Cellio, as being part and parcel of the same great project of an open river to the sea. Yours truly, secretary. These letters will be taken up and an. swered officially at the meeting of the trustees of the Chamber of Commerce. Nothing could have been more remote in the intentions of the committees on entertainment than to have offended the commercial bodies of the Inland Empire, with whom the Portland Chamber of Commerce has worked in harmony, by such action as suggested in the letters of deliberately cutting out the Cellio trip All the correspondence of the Portland Chamber of Commerce shows that its com. mittees have been urgent in their at-tempts to include the Cellio trip in the itinerary. In this they were not successful, and the regret is felt as keenly by the Portland Chamber of Commerce as by the allied bodies.

E. H. LIBBY, President.

ARGUING THE PRIMARY LAW Counsel Finish the Work of In-structing the Judges.

The arguments concerning the consti tutionality of the primary laws passed by the 1901 Legislature were concluded yes. terday before Judges Cleland, George and Sears. Ten days' time was allowed for counsel to file briefs.

E. W. Bingham closed his argument at the morning session against the acts, tending that they are repugnant to each other, inoperative and both contrary to the constitution. Mr. Bingham, who favors a direct primary law, applicable to the whole state, urged that both of these acts are unconstitutional, for the reason that they are local in their appli referring only to the City of Portland and Multnomah County. He asserted that their operation would impose an unwar-ranted expense on the taxpayers, and made many other strong points in opposition to the acts. Charles E Lockwood followed with an address in support of Senate bill 191, which has been generally referred to in court as the Lockwood bill. He took no part in the controversy concerning the Morgan bill, but only advocated the constitution, ality of the act which he is credited with having been instrumental in putting through the Legislature. He spoke strongly in favor of the measure, and reviewed a decision of the California Supreme Court relative to a direct primary law, which was frequently referred to by the other side. Mr. Lockwood said the decision of the California Supreme Court can have no application to Senate bill No. 191, but only to the Morgan law, and he read a portion of the decision which he said was the main feature of it, to sustain his contention, as follows:

The provision requiring the primary elections of all political parties to be held at the same time, and under the control of the County Board of Election Commissioners, and providing for the use of but one ticket at such an election, which is received by the intending voter without question as to his political affiliations, and taken into the privacy of the booth where he may make such delegates as ooth, where he may name such delegates as he desires to the political convention of one o another of the political parties, whether he is a member of that party or not, is an unwar ranted invasion of the rights of political par ties, and an innovation of the rights reserved to the people by article 1 of the constitution, providing that the rights enumerated in the constitution shall not be construed to impair or deny others retained by the people. Charles H. Carey conceded that the Morgan act is not constitutional, and his

ech was directed only in defense

the Lockwood law. Mr. Carey acknowl-edged that he had taken considerable part in politics, but said he was not a factionist, and desired honest primaries, and that the majority should rule. Referring to the question whether a law is local and contrary to the constitution which de-clares that special laws shall not be passed by the Legislature in certain enumerated cases, he stated that, regarding acts framed to pertain to cities of 50,000 or more inhabitants, of which there is only one—Portland—the Supreme Court bas three times held such a law within the prohibition of the constitution, but did not say in either case whether the law was local or special. The Lockwood bill was for cities of 19,000 or more inhabi-tants. Counsel said it is not required that laws shall be uniform for all parts of the state, but that their operation shall be the same in all parts of the state under the same circumstances and conditions, to operate uniformly in all parts of the state under like facts. He read a decision where the court held that a law for cities of 100,000 inhabitants or more, where there is only one such city in the state, where it is so framed as to operate in all population, is general.

Continuing, counsel said: "There is very good reason why the Legislature should make such a law for cities of this size. We all know there is more danger for the perpetration of fraud and corruption in cities than may be found in smaller communities, where such acts may be more easily detected and punished." Mr. Carey referred to the primary act of 1891, which he stated was the same on this point. Such a provision, he assected is flexible and movable. There asserted, is flexible and movable. There is a considerable amount of changing. As cities grow they become applicable to the law. If the State of Washington had passed such a law, some years ago there would have been only one such city, and now there are at least three such cities in that state. There is no question but there will be a number of cities in Oregon that will exceed 10,000 population such cities when they have reached such

in a few years.

Further along in his argument counse took up the point made by the opposing counsel that certain political parties, the Prohibition party among them, are shut out by the Lockwood law. Mr. Carey, discussing it, said: "If Mr. McKercher belongs to a party that is not entitled to make a party that is not entitled to make the property of the control of t to make nominations, it is under the Australian ballot law. This law does not make it so. It is the Australian ballot law that makes it so. If his party has not cast the percentage of votes at the last general election provided by the Austral-ian ballot law, Mr. McKercher may bring his convention nominations to the County Clerk and he will be told that he is not entitled to file his ticket." A decision was read that conventions of parties that did not cast a certain percentage of votes at the last election are not entitled to file a ticket. Counsel said: "As I understand it, the Lockwood act does not change this method. He is entitled to assemble an assembly of electors under this law, or he may file independent nominations, or may belong to a minor party that is not afbelong to a minor party the fected by this law at all."

Mr. Carey read a decision of the Call-fornia Supreme Court where a law was declared unconstitutional because it deprived a large number of persons from voting, and commenting on it said: "There is nothing of that kind in this act, any person entitled to vote under the registry law is entitled to vote under this act." Counsel next discussed the point made by the plaintiff, that the Lockwood law "saddled on the county the expense of a primary election for the city. "Just why this is a matter the city is concerned in and not the county," he said, "I cannot see." The Supreme Court, he said, in the suit of Simon vs. North-up, regarding the placing of the bridges in control of the county, held that so much of the act as placed the debt of the city incurred in the purchase of the bridges on the county was invalid, and It was imposing a debt of the city on the county, but that so much of the act as placed the expense of the maintenance and operation of the bridges on the county was valid.

Counsel said Senate bill 191 imposes no debt on the county, no debt having been created. The city charter imposed the expense of printing ballots and city elections on the county, and he had heard no one say that was unconstitutional. Attention was also called to the fact that the Supreme Court decided that the Port powered to carry on improvements cov. ering a large portion of territory outside of the city limits, and the commission, it was stated, did expend money improving the Columbia River on both sides lying between two states Judge Carey covered other points very fully, and among other things said if the law providing for direct nominations is constitutional and in force, then by its express terms the Lockwood act does not take effect at all, but if there is no direct primary act or that act is unconstitutional, then the Lockwood act is in full force. Counsel concluded with an appeal for honest primaries, that there will be an honest expression of opinion by the majority of the party which this act would give. The expense, he asserted, was a necessary evil which no good cit-was a necessary evil izen will object to. Charles M. Morgan argued in support of his direct primary act, but could not cover the ground fully for lack of time. He promised to cover the case fully in a
