SPECIFICATIONS FOR FURNITURE.-Cus toms Collector Patterson has received 10 sets of plans and specifications and sched-ules of furniture to be used in furnishing the new Customshouse in this city, which he is requested to hand to persons or firms who will be likely to submit bids for furnishing the same. Scaled proposais will be received at the Treasury Department in Washington, until 2 P. M., September 11, for manufacturing and placing in position, in complete working order, in the United States Customhouse in this city, certain quartered white oak furni-ture, golden oak finish. The specifications are voluminous, and cover counters, desks, tables, all sorts of cases, racks and files, wardrobes, water coolers, maniel and tot-let mirrors, in short, about everything necessary for furnishing a building to be occupied by a host of United States officials and employes. A sample cabinet, showing the construction, workmanship and finish to be followed and the materials, including hardware, to be used must accompany proposals, and the prices must accompany proposals, and the prices offered, with the sample cabinet submitted, will govern the award of the contract. It is understood that all the United States officials in this city will have offices in the new Customs House, except the post-office and judicial officers.

UNNAMED REPTILES.-Thomas Hamilton who has been digging a tunnel into a copper mine at Copper City, on Copper Creek, was at the City Hall with two subterranean reptiles in a jar of water, which he was anxious to present to Col-onel Hawkins and to learn their scientific and common names. The specimens are a couple of withing, squirming worms, each 18 inches in length, and the size of sewing thread. They are white and were found some six feet under ground in a small stream running out of the tunnel. The water, Mr. Hamilton says, is impreg-nated with arsenic. The worms when placed in the aun, straightened themselves out, but any noise or disturbance causes them to coll up into a snarl. It was sug-gested that they might be what the boys call hair snakes or hair cels, but this was considered doubtful, because, everybody knows, such snakes are only horse hairs knows, such snakes are only norse nairs, which have changed to living creatures, and horse hairs could not have got so far under ground. In explaining where Copper City is, Mr. Hamilton said it was eight miles from Dole, which is 10 miles from Eureka, and by taking a logging railroad at Eureka, one can come to Van-couver, Wash. He will put the specimens out to board until Colonel Hawkins re-

No REGATTA QUEEN SELECTED .- The Portisnd committee of the Astoria re-gatta held a business meeting last even-ing at the office of Admiral E. S. Edwards. Preparations are progressing favorably for the regatta, which is to be held August 29, 30, 31. C. J. Owen was elected treas-urer of the committee, but the queen of the regatta has not yet been selected. Arrangements are being made to secure the steamer Harvest Queen to take the Portland party to Astoria the day before the opening of the regatts. The queen and retinue, with the committee and prominent officials, will comprise the steamer party, which will probably number 300. A big time is anticipated as the dates have been selected with an eye to the weather, FIRE CAUGHT FROM BENEINE .- A lively fire in the rear of 488 Columbia street yesterday forenoon threatened the whole lock of dwellings for several minutes until the department arrived. A. A. Lam-bert, who uses the premises as a dye house, was cleaning clothing with ben zine, when he stepped on a match that had dropped to the floor. In an instant the shed was in flames and his clothing was on fire, but a quick plunge into a tub of water saved him, while the flames proseeded to devour the buildings. Besides a $500 loss to Lambert, the dwellings of Charles Holman, B. F. Clayton and S. P. see, fronting on Clay street, were badly scorched. Lambert had no insurance.

There are now only canneries on the Columbia, or with one be 30, so it is no wonder that, with a run of salmon like that now making its way up the river, all the canneries are blocked. cades, is to be started up and some of the surplus fish at Astoria are to be sent there by rail to be canned. The fishermen have been praying for fish all the season, and now their prayers are being answered in a sort of reckless manner, and they are not feeling so thankful as they ought.

A FRIEND OF OREGON.—Hoyt Sherman, a preminent railroad man of Salt Lake, is at the Portiand and will be here several days. Mr. Sherman is a member of the Utah Legislature and did effective work in securing that state's indorsement of the Lewis and Clark centennial. He was ap-pointed on the commission. Mr. Sherman first came to Portland in 1885 as pilot of the lowa Editorial Association, which was the first body of newspaper men to visit Oregon. He then fell in love with Webfoot land and each subsequent visit has strengthened his affection,

FINE LAMBERT CHERRIES.—Chauncey Ball, who lives at the intersection of Wiberg's Lane and the Montavilla car line, brought to The Oregonian office yesterday some Lembert cherries which he regards the finest ever produced in Mult-nomah County. They were picked from a limb budded three years ago. The rich mahogany color, the large size, the perfect form and above all, the delicious flavor of the Lambert cherry combine to make it a favorite in make it a favorite in a country famous for CHILDREN NOT WANTED .- Newly arrived families in which there are small children find difficulty in obtaining furnished or housekeeping rooms in Portland, as land-ladies object to romping in the halls, to say nothing of the extra wear and tear of furniture, carpets and walls. A man and wife traveled about town for three days this week seeking rooms, but found them not. The rooms were to let in moderate apply, and as the couple looked respecshown about the premises, told of the fine view, the desirable location, the mod-erate price, etc. When the landlady was informed that the apartment-seekers had four little girls and a dog, anger fre-quently took the place of civility and they vere shown the door. The couple finally cured quarters from a landlady who had nown the wife in her schooldays, or they might yet be looking for housekeeping FROM USING FRAUDULENT Label.—In the case of the Joseph Schiltz Brewing Company vs. Henry Schultz et al., in the United States Court, a suit to prevent infringement of a beer label, a perpetual injunction was issued against defendants yesterday, restraining them from making use by word of mouth or in any shape or form in connection with the manufacture or sale of beer, or the manufacture or sale of labels, of the word Schlitz, and from making use of a quadrangular label with a terra cotta back-ground, and the word Schlitz in fancy white characteristic script letters thereon or from doing anything else to induce the belief that the beer made by or for Schultz et al. is the beer of or made by the Joseph Schlitz Brewing Company. It was also ordered that complainants recover their costs and disbursements.

Carr's counsel here that he is tearing down his fences around the Government land in Oregon, which he has had inclosed for so many years, but he intends to maintain his forcest around the Company of the contract of the co fences around the 80,000 acres lying in California and continue his struggle to retain possession of it. As Judge Beilinger's decision applies to the lands in California as well as in Oregon, a United States Deputy Marshal is to be sent from here to tear down the fences around Carr's California "holdings," It is now up to the United States Court and officials here to see whether Mr. Carr will rebuild the fences again. The Deputy Marshal who tears down Mr. Carr's California fences is likely to have an all Summer's job. GLASSES IN COURT.—John Whyte was before Municipal Judge Cameron yester-day, charged with using abusive lan-guage to Robert Allen, when he tried to sell a pair of alleged gold spectacles for $150. The police produced the specta-cles in court and Whyle remarked: "They are for far-sighted people. The glasses magnify objects a long way off." Judge Cameron, Deputy City Attorney Davis and several policemen were the glasses in court, and each declared that the glass was plain glass and did not magnify at all. "I thought you were far-sceing men, sneeringly remarked the defendant, "W are sharp enough to see through you, any way. Try 10 days in jail," said Judge Cameron.

ONE SHOAL BAR.-The water in the Willamette between Oregon City and Sa lem is at a rather low stage to make steamboating pleasant. At Lamberts and at Fire Island bar, near Fairfield, there is only 29 inches of water and the steamers have to be pulled past these bars by making a line fast to a tree on the shore ahead and attaching the other end to a capstan, Elsewhere the depth of water is sufficient and these bars could be improved at small expense in the way of wing dams, etc., Sparks from an open ventilator over a cooking stove caused woodwork to blaze yesterday at the Cape Nome oyster house, Burnside street, near Third. CORONER'S INQUEST OVER MAN WHO SUFFOCATED.

Evidence That Fritz Pfluger Was Stupefied by Liquor, Else He Could Have Escaped.

Both the police and the Coroner made Both the police and the Coroner made an investigation yesterday into the circumstances connected with the fire which broke out lazt Wednesday night at E. Wolf's store, 211 Burnside street, and caused one of the upstairs roomers, Fred. crick Kreider, otherwise known as Fritz Pfluger, to be suffocated. But no clew was obtained as to the origin of the fire, and no responsibility was fixed for the unfortunate man's death.

unfortunate man's death. Several witnesses at the inquest agreed that Kreider was a heavy drinker, that he waz under the influence of liquor when he retired to his room, shortly before the fire started, and that had he been sober he would undoubtedly have heard the noise made by police, firemen and citizens in awakening the other roomers, and could have effected his escape.

Ernest Francis, the night watchman at the Burnside lodging-house, which is over Welf's store, testified that he knew the dead man as Fritz, but understood his correct name was Frederick Kreider. The latter was a German, 44 years old, and unmarried. Witness tried to get all the roomers out of their rooms, and he remembered locking doors to prevent the water from the hose of the Fire Depart-ment spolling the furniture in the rooms. "You are sure you did not lock room No. II, the room where Kreider was asleep?" asked the Coroner.

"I didn't lock that room-I locked only three or four rooms in all," returned the "I helped afterward to break open the door of the room where Kreider lay, and the place was filled with smoke. Kreider lay in bed, and the bedclothes were over his face. There was a sheet over his head. I lifted him by the legs, and his head fell on the floor, but it came in contact with the bedclothes. I do not think the fact of his head falling on the floor caused his death. He usually me every night before he went to but Wednesday night he was so full that he went to his room as soon as

man was already dead.

Policemen Gibson and Balley both testified that they did not know the origin of the fire in Wolf's store, and that the firemen did everything possible in their endeavor to save life and property. The witnesses both assisted roomers to es-cape from fire and smoke.

J. P. McEntee testified that he is the proprietor of the Burnside lodging-house, and was about to retire for the night when the fire broke out. Witness dressed, and with the aid of police, firemen and citizens got, as he then supposed, all the roomers awakened. Some roomers started to take away their trunks, but at this point the smoke was so dense that witness was obliged to go outside to breathe. On returning, he saw that Kreider's room was still locked, and found it was locked from the inside. Witness assisted in breaking down the door and a column of heavy smoke poured out. There is no window in the room, but there is a glass folding door leading to a room fronting on Burnside street. Witness sent for Dr Buck and everything possible was done to restore Kreider.
"Did firemen and police exercise due care in awakening the roomers and sav-ing life?" asked the Coroner. "Yes, sir," replied the witness. "I must compliment both police and firemen for their good work. They did all men could do."

"On whom, in your opinion, falls the Kreider was a quiet man, and when he came home drunk, he went to his room and gave nobody any bother. I rent the store to Mrs. Wolf, but I don't know anything about the origin of the fire. Reports From Retail Clerks' International Association.

E. C. Gunther, with Dresser & Co., who left here July 2 as a delegate to the Retail Clerks' International Protective Association, arrived home yesterday. The asso-clation met at Buffalo, and was in session five days. Every state in the Union was represented, and there were 217 delegates in attendance.

The meeting was a very enthusiastic one, the membership having doubled within the past two years. Reports from all sections of the country show that the object for which the association was or-ganized—to secure early closing and holi-days—is being rapidly attained, early clos-ing—aiready being in effect over nearly the entire country, and the business firms in many places supporting the in many places supporting the movement.

Max Morris, of Denver, was elected secretary and treasurer, and four organizers were put in the field, one of whom will probably be working this region in the Spring. The meeting of the associa tion will be held in Zanesville, O., next year, and is slated for Portland in 1965. Mr. Guather visited the exposition and Mr. Guather visited the exposition and called on Commissioner Doseh at the Oregon exhibit and heard the same compiaint about the scarcity of Oregon fruit there, and was requested to use every effort to have supplies forwarded. He was glad to get back to Oregon and comfortable weather. He went as far south as St. Louis, but suffered so from the heat that he cut his schedule of visits short and started for home at once.

MARKETS AT 5 A. M.

Big Vegetable Business Every Day Near the Plaza Blocks.

People who arise by 5 o'clock these mornings can witness a lively scene along Third street, between Salmon and Madi-son, if they will take the trouble. The street is crowded with vegetable wagons just in from the suburbs, and the din of trade keeps near-by residents awake unless they have become used to it. The placard, "No wagons allowed in front of these premises," is seen occasionally, and the inference is that the occupants of such houses do not fully enjoy the racket of Italian and Chinese trading, so early in the morning. The plaza blocks on one side, however, prevent any one being dis-turbed on the west, and the wagons crowd up Main street, around the Thompson fountain, without annoying the Courthouse officials at that time of day. By o'clock the vegetables and berries are all disposed of, and beyond the litter of cab-bage leaves and odd turnips, very little sign of the morning bustle is noticed by hose who frequent the plaza during the

The residents along Third street con plain more of the files drawn toward that portion of the city by the litter than they do about the noise. The wagons leave on about the noise. The wagons leave early in the morning, they admit, but the flies stay about the premises all day. Some of these people think the vegetable men should assemble on Park street, near the Park School, but the people of that locality might find the same objections as the Third-street residents. The garden truck-raisers had their headquarters on Second street, near Salmon, for a number of years, but the lodgers near by became tired of such a rush of business so early in the morning, and a few weeks ago the police notified the Italians to "move on." How long the present murmurings along Third street may simply spend themselves on empty may simply spend themselves on empty air is problematical, but the indications are that the attention of the police may be called to the matter before many knew Kreider, and the latter had been arrested five times for intoxication when the witness was captain of police. When the body was found, first ald to the apparently suffocated was rendered, but the man was already dead.
