SERVICE FOR THE DEAD

FUNERAL ORATION OVER LATE DOWAGER EMPRESS.

Impressive Scene in the Old Cronberg Church-Arrival of King Edward.

HOMBURG, Aug. 11 .- The City of Hom burg was astir early today to witness the arrival of King Edward, but as His Majesty had specifically requested that there should be no demonstration, the railway station was completely closed to the pub-lic. Emperor William, in the uniform of Field Marshal, accompanied by the Empress and their sons, together with their suites, and followed by Count von Waidersee, Count von Bulow and others, drove to the railway station about 9 o'clock, where the Emperor reviewed the

At 9:15 the royal train arrived. King Edward, in the blue uniform of the Prus-sian Dragoons, alighted with Queen Alex-andra, Princess Victoria and Prince Nicholas of Greece, Emperor William affec tionately clasped the hand of the Brit-isb monarch and gave him a cordial weiome. He then kissed the hands of Queen Alexandra and Princess Victoria. Their Majesties conversed for a few minutes, and their respective suites were introduced, King Edward warmly shaking the hand of Count von Waldersce. The guard of honor then marched past, after which of honor then marched pass, after which the imperial and royal party drove to Ritter's Hotel, the Emperor with Queen Alexandra, and King Edward with the Empress. The Emperor, and the Empress remained at the hotel for a quarter of an hour and then drove to Homburg Castle, the King and Queen standing in the door-way of the hotel until they had gone. streets were not lined with troops the carriages were not escorted by slry. In the course of the forenoon, King Edward and Queen Alexandra re-turned the visit of the Emperor and Empress at the castle.

Impressive Scene at Cronberg. CRONBERG, Aug. 11.—People flocked in-to Cronberg from an early hour today to see the august personages who would attend the requiem services over the remains of the Dowager Empress Fred-erick. Throughout the night and again today the officers of the regiments of which the deceased was honorary Colonel have stood guard over the coffin. From II A. M. there was an unbroken stream of carriages arriving from Homburg, Frank-fort and other points, bringing those in-vited to the solemn ceremony. Considerable bodies of troops, both infantry and cavalry, also arrived.

At 2:30 P. M. the Eightieth Regiment formed up along the streets and the band of the Bockenbeim Hussars took its stand opposite the church. Every window, bal-cony and housetop was filled with peo-ple waiting the arrival of the imperial ersonages, Baron von Reischack, Court Marshal of the Downger Empress, superintended the arrangements. Sir Frank Lascelles, the Brillsh Ambassador, was among the first to arrive. He took a seat facing the coffin, which was covered with wreaths. On either side of the coffin were four officers, holding standards of the Empire of Prussia and of the deceased. Between them and the coffin were other officials, bearing drawn swords. Gradually the church filled with officers in splendid uniforms and ladies wearing deep mourning. The congregation included the Duke of Con-naught, the Duke of Cambridge and sev-eral members of the British royal household; Count von Bulow, Count von Wal-dersee, Dr. Speigethagen and Dr. von

At 6 o'clock the roll of muffled drums announced the arrival of Emperor William and King Edward, who had driven together from Homburg. The Emperor, wearing the black uniform of the Empress' Own Posen Bussers, led Queen Alexandra into the church, while King Edward, in the blue uniform of the King Edward Dragoons, conducted Empress Augusta Victoria: Princess Victoria, with Crown Prince Frederick William and a numerous suite, followed.

Services at the Church. Their Majesties occupied a pew to the Their Majestles occupied a pew to the left of the chancel, the one in which the deceased used to sit, while grouped around stances that scarcely can be hinted at in royal personages mentioned together with Prince Adelbert of Prussia, Prince and Princess Schaumburg-Lippe, the hereditary Prince of Saxe-Meiningen, Prince and Princess of Hesse, the Grand Duke of Baden, the Crown Prince and Princess of Greece, with their children Princess of Greece, with their children, and the Prince of Reuss, together with the suites of all. Baron von Reischack stood at the right and Count von Zecken-dorff, who was the grand chamberiain of the deceased, at the left of the coffin. As the organ played the funeral march, or. Dryander advanced to the head of the coffin. The choir from the Berlin Cathe comm. The choir from the Berlin Ca-thedral sang "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," and Dr. Dryander read a spe-cially written prayer, after which Em-peror William's eldest four sons stepped forward with drawn swords and stood close to the coffin. Dr. Dryander then delivered an oration extolling the virtues of the Dowager Empress and dwelling upon her trials and sorrows. This was fol-lowed by the words of the burial serv-see: "Dust to dust, ashes to ashes." The choir these sang the anthem "The Spirit Baith They May Rest From Their Labora." Then followed the magnificent hymn. "Wenn Ich Einmal Soll Scheiden," and a beautiful rendition of "Be Thou Faithful Unto Death."

As the last strains died away, King Ed-ward and Queen Alexandra advanced and laid a wreath upon the coffin. The King remained standing for a few moments alone beside the coffin, and then turned and left the church, which emptied slowly.

The service owed much to its impressiveness to the historic associations recalled by the medieval edifice in which ft was held. At its conclusion Empress Augusta Victoria and Queen Alexandra drove to Homburg, the Emperor and King Edward following in a second carriage. The streets were congested with sightseers long after the imperial and royal personages departed.

The extraordinary display of armed force has been the subject of curious comment and the measures of military caution taken today were less drastic than those taken last night, when it is estimated that 2000 troops were employed in vigilance service. Everywhere, however, the precautions were apparently ex-cessive, for not a single suspicious arrest has yet been recorded.

The Empire Paid Tribute.

BERLIN, Aug. 11.—Throughout the Em-pire bells were tolled today for the Dow-ager Empress Frederick and memorial services held. At the British Church in Homburg, Canon Teignmouth Shore delivered an eloquent discourse upon the virtues and sufferings of the deceased. At the conclusion of the sermon he nar-rated a curious incident. It seems that while the Dowager Empress was breath-ing her last, a white butterfly fluttered through the window into the room, settled lightly on the bed and then flew out heavenward as though it might have been the soul of the Dowager Empress.

M. DE WITTE'S HEALTH. Various Sumors About the Russian

Finance Minister.

ST. PETERSEURG. July 28.—Rumor, almost always busy with Minister of Finance M. De Witte, has set affoat various atories of ill-health to account for his deferring his proposed journey to Manchuris in order to take a course at Wissbaden. Most Ministers naturally prefer Wissbaden to Manchuria and a zure to unremitting labor during the hot Summer menths. Not so with M. De Witte, who is a soft of Atlas in the Russian world and is one of those natures which are alike greedy of work and unwilling to drop even for a spell the reins of power. The most persistent report is that the Minister is threatened with meningitis. The truth seems to be that he has undergone unusual strain during the last 12 months and is in need of a thorough rest. If certain according of a thorough rest. If certain people who often know what is being talked of in court circles are not in error, he will have the satisfaction next Winter of seeing Mme. De Witte received at court. It is said that the young Empress has taken a fancy to Mme. De Witte.

The Chinese Tariff Dispute. LONDON, Aug. 11 .- "Instead of enthe conversion of ad valorem rusting the tional commission," says a dispatch to the Times from Pekin, "Great Britain favors each power making separate ne-gonitations as to tariff and securing advantages of the most-favored nations. The French Minister desires to increase the membership of the conservancy board, admitting representatives of powers whose gross tomage exceeds 200,000 tons annually instead of 500,000 tons, as before agreed. If his proposal is accepted, this will give votes to the United States and France."

Parliament Completing Its Work LONDON, Aug. II.—It is still doubtful if Parliament will be able to prorouge August II, but the Legislators are working hard with this object in view. Theoretically the House of Commons ends the day's business at 12 o'clock, but the 12 o'clock hour has been sus but the 12 o'clock hour has been sus-pended and last week the House worked until 5 or 6 in the morning in order to get through the Ministerial programme. In consequence it has been a most ill-tempered assembly. Each hour was marked by asperitles, which is quite un-

NEGROES IN THE MOB. Men of His Color Helped Burned Joe Washington.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 11.—Eightein miles south of Savannah, the charred trunk of the body of Joe Washington, the negro ravisher of Mrs. J. J. Clark, is all that remains to tell the story of the tragedy of last night. Washington had been positively identi-come within 109 yards of the stake. This was at a spot 500 yards from the Clark house. The negro walked to his death without a tremor. He admitted his guilt of other crimes, but stubbornly refused to acknowledge that he had assaulted Mrs. Clark. A crowbar was driven into the earth. To this Washington was bound in a sitting position, his legs extending straight in front of him on either side of the bar. A chain held him fast around the waist, while a heavy rope encircled the bar and his neck.

The leaders of the mob asked Mrs.

Clark to apply the torch to the pile, but she refused. Her husband was selected in her stead. Washington looked straight into the eyes of Clark as the latter stooped down to apply the match. The wood was rich, fat pine, and saturated with kerosene oil. The flames leaped to-ward Washington's body. The man showed no signs in his face of the agony he must have suffered, and met it without a groan. The leaders of the mob watched the work of the flames until Washington's head fell back upon his shoulders and he died. For some few minutes longer they waited around the spot and then ispersed quietly.

The negroes of the country are almost a unit in approving the punishment, and many were members of the mob.

Mob After Cortes.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 12.-Two ozen mounted and armed men demanded of the Sheriff at Gonzales at 1 A. M. that he surrender Gregoria Cortez, who killed Sheriffs Glover and Morris, and when he refused tried to batter in the jail door with a telephone pole. The jailer finally persuaded the mob to disperse and spirited Cortez away to San Antonio.

Confesed to Two Murders.

DURANGO, Mex., Aug. 11.—The discov-ery of a clock that was stolen from the Cunliffe residence at the time Mrs. George Cunliffe, of Pawtuckett, R. I., was mur-dered, led to the arrest of Juan Delgado, a tanner. Delgado made a complete confession, not only of the Cunliffe murder, but also of that of Mrs. Guadalupe Ornelas, a prominent Mexican lady, at Parral, hua, in 1900.

Interest in American rallways was slight. Canadians were very active. Prussia's coal production for the first six months of the year was 49,982,383 tons, or an increase of 239,-133 tons.

SALT LAKE, Aug. 11.—The Chicago story about Senator Clark's compromise with the Union Pacific on the California right of way case is not credited here. In the first place, the Oregon Short Line sent down more surveyors today to work on the line. General Manager Dickinson, of the Union Pacific, who arrived in this city from the East tonight, said he knew nothing of it, and General Attorney Williams, of the Oregon Short Line, when shown the dispatch, said he did not be-lieve it, as the wording was too vague and it did not show that the Short Line was represented in an executive way at such an important conference. The local di-rectors and officials of the San Pedro road have not received a word on the subject

ITS EFFECT WAS GOOD.

Kitchener's Proclamation Helped Prices on the Stock Exchange.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Lord Kitchener's proclamation at Pretoria had a comfort-ing effect last week on the Stock Ex-change. Whether the most hopeful spirit with which it was received was due to sentiment or to well-grounded reasons the future must determine but the immediate effect was to improve prices somewhat. Another hopeful factor was decidedly easy money. Not only in Lon-don, but in New York and on the Con-tinent, the principal Bourse rates were all under 21/2 per cent.

Enough gold is affoat and coming in to the provinces to raise the reserve of the Bank of England well over £25,000,000. New York exchange was high, and is likely to remain so. Naturally there is some caution in discount circles, in view of New York's probable demand for gold for the Autumn crop movements, but it is not believed that this will be suffi-cient to raise London rates materially. The week witnessed the unusual spec-tacle of an improvement in home rails and a decline in Americans. This arose on one hand from renewed apprehension regarding the steel strike, while on the other the fact that British railroad shares descended to about the lowest possible fig-ures was due to reaction. The outlook for home traffic is exceedingly gloomy. The half-yearly statements of the railway companies are all in, and they show a serious falling off in the gross receipts in almost every case, while the tremendously increased working cost materially reduces dividends. The managers confess that they see no prospect of improvement for years ahead, and there is a general cry for retrenchment. There is a wide field for improvement in the equipment of both freight and passenger departments, and this fact, combined with the present low price of stocks, seems to offer a favorable opening for the state of the stat American enterprise to do for the steam roads what it is already doing for the tramway lines.

So far as the steel strike is concerned So far as the steel strike is concerned, there is wide divergence of opinion with reference to the relative strength of the men and the employers. There is also a pientiful supply of misinformation as to the American labor situation in general. The only unanimity of belief is in the conviction that the strike is certain to have a disastrous effect upon industrial interests. Consequently the outlook for business in the American section of the Stock Exchange is not promising.

Berlin Bourse Was Quiet.

BERLIN, Aug. 11.-Last week's Bourse was without striking features, and more quiet than usual, but the general tone was somewhat improved. The Frankfurt-the marine fire department in New Or-leans. Mr. Collumn lived in Chicago with action in shares was made, as far as in-

ERRORS IN THE BOOKS. Philips Company Is Better Off Than It Thought.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—The Record-Her-ld tomorrow will say: "The George H. Philips Company has found itself better off by $134,000 than it thought by the discovery of two errors in the books found since the firm sus-pended business. One was an error of an even $100,000. The firm deposited in the bank $133,000 in cash for which it received credit by the bank, but which appeared on the books of the firm as a deposit of $33,000. Another mistake of the book-keeper was the failure to credit the firm for $34,000 of warehouse receipts deposited in the bank early in April. It is prob-able that the firm reorganized will resume business Tuesday.

Boycott on Brazilian Coffee. SAN JUAN, P. R., Aug. 11.-The mer-chants of San Juan are alarmed concerning the importation of Brazilian coffee, which has been made possible by the re-moval of the tariff. This coffee can be sold here at about one-half the price of the Porto Rican product. The merchants Manati met today and resolved not to trade with the importers of coffee from Brazil, and meetings were held in other towns. Governor Hunt has consented to ask Washington for relief. The importers of coffee arriving today, fearing public feeling, announced that the coffee received would be shipped back again by the next vessel, the newspapers having demanded that a boycott be instituted against the dealers until Congress can

Several speakers pointed out that a strike at this time would be of no advantage to the Amaigamated As-sociation, and would do no harm to the United States Steel Corporation, inasmuch as the trust is prepared at short notice to transfer all the work of the South Chi-cago. ACTION AGAINST THE COMBINE. Suit May Be Brought Under the Ohlo

Anti-Trust Laws. COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 11.—It developed that, independent of the legal action which is to be brought against the United States Steel Corporation by the Anti-Trust League, action is also contemplated by the Secretary of State. It is believed by that official that the United States Steel Corporation is doing business in Ohlo contrary to law. The corporation has never been admitted as a foreign corporation to do business in Ohio, although the read, of the Secretary of State's office, that notices will probably be sent to the steel corporation the coming week, calling attention to its obligations under the law. Should the plea be made that the Ohio companies have not been absorbed and are operating under their original charters, the United States Steel Corporation will be attacked under the Valentine antitrust law, which prohibits the operation of companies holding the stocks of other companies in trust.

CARLYLE AND WIFE.

A Short Sketch of the Married Life of the Carlyles. To speak of Carlyle is to recall Mrs.

Carlyle, one of the most brilliant and wittiest of women, who willingly, and knowing what the sacrifice meant, submerged herself in her husband. She was ambitious and married Carlyle because she believed he would win honor and renown. She cerved him faithfully and devotedly and made it possible for him to do the work he did

Thirty years after her marriage Mrs. Carlyle wrote: "I married for ambition. Carlyle has exceeded all that my wildest hopes ever imagined of him, and I am miserable." And to a young friend: "My dear, whatever you do, never marry a man of genius." As will be remembered by most read ers, Mrs. Carlyle died suddenly in her carriage when driving around Hyde Park. Carlyle was at the time away from home —at Edinburgh, where he had just delivered the address as lord rector of the university He was deeply affected, and all his later life was tinged with sadness. The following is the epitaph he wrote for her tomb;

In her bright existence she had more sorrows than are common, but also a soft invincibility, a capacity for discernment and a noble loyal-ty of heart which are rare. For 40 years sho was the true and loving helpmate for her hus-band, and by act and word unwestledly for-warded him as none else could in all or worthy that he did or attempted. She died at London, April 21, 1866, suddenly snatched from him, and the light of his life, as if gone out. Froude says, concerning the married life of the Carlyles:

Perhaps there has been too much stress laid on the domestic infelicities of the Carlyles. It must be remembered that their wedded life extended over a period of 40 years. The col-lected instances of their happiness to be gath-ered from all the books is beaten out thin enough over such a space of time. Neverthe less, a gentus even greater than Carlyle's can not excuse the hardships he thoughtlessly and often knowingly put upon his wife.

Jane Welsh was born July 14, 1801. Her father was a surgeon of reputation, who made a considerable fortune in his pro-fession. Jeannie was his only child, and at an early age exhibited qualities of mind as well as beauty of person that attracted general admiration. She was ambitious and intelligent as a schoolgiri, and mastered Latin like a boy. She was probably, from all accounts, what we call in this country a "tomboy," for there is an authentic story that one day at school, when a lad was impertinent to her, she doubled up her fist and hit him hard enough on the nose to make it bleed. When the master, noticing the scuffle called the school to order, Jeannie ac-knowledged that it was she that made the trouble; whereupon the master said:
"You're a little deevil," and sent her down to the girle room

She grew up to be a beautiful girl, and naturally enough had a host of lovers. Among these was Edward Irving, afterward celebrated as a distinguished preachmind. Irving was her teacher for a time in literature, and the mutual attachment that sprung up affected the lives of both of them to the end. Unhapplly, Irving had become involved in a love affair that It seemed impossible to break off, and the result was that the real lovers were obliged to port. Other love affairs she had as well, but it was not until 1822. when she was 21, that she met Thomas

Carlyle, then aged 27. Their courtship extended over the next four years, and its course did not ru smoothly. Never were two young people more incompatible in temper, habits and training. Carlyle belonged to the peasant class, while Miss Weish was of the higher and better born people. He was undoubt-edly in love with her, and she admired his gentus. They became engaged, and then offered to release each other. Here are a few specimens of their correspond-

My friend, I love you. I repeat it, though any friend, I love you. I repeat it.

Ind the expression a rash one. All the be

you. But were you my brother I should love you the same. Not Your friend I will b your truest, most devoted friend while breathe the breath of life. But your wife never! Never! Not though you were as rich as Croesus, as honored and renowned as y This is Carlyle's reply:

My heart is too old by almost half a score of years, and is made of sterner stuff than to break in junctures of this kind. I have no idea of dying in the Arcadian shepherd's style for the disappointment of hopes which I never seriously entertained, or had no right to en-tertain seriously.

Finally all quarrels are made up and the wedding day is set, and then we have a letter from Carlyie laying down the law of his household that is to be. The man shall bear rule in the house, and law of nature which no mortal departs from I have meditated on this many years, and every day it grows plainer to me I must not and can not live in a house of which I am not the head. I should be miserable myself and make all about me mis-Think not this comes of an imperio that I shall be a harsh and tyrannical husband to thee. God forbid!

One can hardly argue happiness from such a beginning, and of happiness there was little.

They were married October 17, 1826, and after a painful half-dozen years at Craig-enputtock—the Welsh homestead—where Mrs. Carlyle was house drudge and maid of all work, they removed to London and took up their residence at 5 Cheyne row, Chelsea, now a place of pligrimage for all Carlylean devotes. There it was that Carlyle wrote his chief works, and there it proved to be the duty of his wife to keep away from him all intrusion and unnecessary noise. He was a fearful man to live with, roaring like a lion at the least annoyance, impatient of any neigh-borhood noise or plane playing, and fretful if a cock should crow at daylight. All this, within and without the house, came upon Mrs. Carlyle, and that she bore it so bravely, and was finally so helpful to her husband shows how noble a woman she was. If she sometimes punctured him with epigrams because of his impatient and boyleh clamorings against the inevitable, she did only according to her womanly instincts of equity and fair play. Take her, faults and all, she was a worthy woman and as well deserving of remembrance on all accounts as Thomas Carlyle himself.
