WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Through a long line of horse-drawn carriages formed from Buffalo up over the Alleghenies, into the valley of the Susquehanna and down the Susquehanna to Harrisburg, the Nation's great procession started slowly on its great journey which it planned for four years and which it intended to make in the presence of the people of the Nation, to give the Nation a long sight of its great leaders, and to impress upon the people of the Nation the thought that the Nation's great leaders are not only the leaders of the Nation, but are leaders of the world.
