DEPUTIES VOTED DOWN BOTH IT AND A SUBSTITUTE.

Episcopalians Propose a Joint Commission to Consider Disputes Between Employer and Employe.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15 .- The troublesome question of marriage and divorce was set at rest for another three years today by the action of the house of dep-uties of the triennial Episcopal convention in rejecting both of the proposed canons on the subject, which were passed by the house of hishops. The greatest fight of the convention has been over section 4 of canon 25, virtually forbidding the remarriage of a divorced person by a priest of the church. This had passed the house of bishops, and had been adopted by a yea and may vote in committee of the whole of the house of deputies. When the committee rose and reported its work to the house, another and decisive vote was taken, not only on the troublesome fourth section, but on the entire canon, which was rejected as a whole. Canon 27, which provides for the disciplining of persons marrying again after being divorced, met with a similar fate. The bouse of deputies passed an amendment to article 10 of the constitution, per-mitting modified forms of worship, which, in spirit, is to the famous Huntington amendment recently defeated. The amendment adopted, though credited to Dr. McKim, of Washington, was in reality presented to the convention of three years ago by Dr. Huntington. The bishops have yet to act before the amendment can become part of the constitution.

Both houses today appointed members of a standing commission on capital and labor, which is to investigate the subject with a view to the peacful settlement of sagreements between employers and workingmen, and report to each general

Rev. Cameron Mann, of Kansas City, was nominated to be missionary bishop of North Dakota in the place of Rev. Dr. Pierce, who failed of election in the house of deputies. A general missionary meeting with special reference to work among the colored people was held at Trinity Church tonight. Addresses were made by several prominent bishops and work in the South, Hayti and West Africa.

A motion was then made to reconsider the vote by which the first three sections of the proposed canon had been adopted. This led to a parliamentary tangle, causing considerable discussion. Finally a vote was taken, concurring with the re-port of the committee of the whole, on the adoption of the first three sections of the canon, resulting as follows:

The substitute for canon 37, presented by the house of bishops, referring to the remarriage of persons marrying again after being divorced, was taken up and defeated by a viva vice vote.

It was proposed by Rev. Dr. Mc-Kim, of Washington, and with the ex-ception of slight verbal changes made by the committee, is identical with the amendment proposed by Dr. Huntington in the general convention of 1888, permit-ting the use of modified forms of wor-ship. The amendment was adopted by the following vote:

The chairman announced that the smendment had been adopted by a constitutional majority. It is as follows: But any bishop of this church, acting by and with the advice and connent of the standing committee of his diocese or missionary district, may take under his spiritual oversight any congregation of Christian people, not therefore in communion with his church, which accepts the Apostlee Creed and the Nicone Creed, and whose minister, having received Episcopal ordination, approved by this church, shall covenant, as may be prescribed by canon of the general commention, to use in public worship in the said congregation of directory as the said bishop shall set forth and authorize.

The house of deputies then seljourned until morning. Rev. Dr. Carey, of Albany, of the com-mittee on the General Theological Seminary, reported a very satisfactory financial condition of the institution. He noted that the number of incoming students this year was unusually large. New buildings had been erected and the library greatly enlarged. A number of endowed scholarships had also been founded.

Resolutions were adopted recommending Resolutions were adopted recommending that all appointments to scholarships be based on competitive examinations; also that fellows of the seminary be encouraged to pursue their studies abroad; also that provision be made for courses of instruction in missionary work.

State of the Church.

The committee on the state of the church presented its report, which included the following statements: The number of confirmations during the three years was 121,345, which was, however, 3896 fewer than in the preceding period; the number of baptisms also was 13,832 less. The number of the clergy increased by 6 per cent, while the communicants increased 9 per cent. The number of parishes and missions increased by 502, which was pronounced satisfactory. Attention was called to the lack of sufficient candidates for the ministry. There had been a total revenue from all sources and for all purposes of $45,690,715, which was an increase of about $61,690. The contributions for general missions had increased $235,000 and for diocesan missions $227,000. The funds for the retention of disabled clergy and for the widows and orphans of the clergy had also largely increased.
