County Court Will Meet Driving Association Committee Today to Discuss Widening.

The total damages to property by the widening of the White House road has been fixed by the appraisers, George E. Watkins, D. W. Taylor and C. A. Dueber, at $589, which is about $2 per cent less than the smouth which the property-owners demanded, namely, $7700. The report was presented at the meeting of the Baard of County Commissioners of the Board of County Commissioners yesterday morning. H. C. Breeden, in behalf of the Portland Driving Association said he desired to know what steps would be taken by the County Court. He said that it was the desire of the association to have the work commenced at this end of the road, and that it should be commenced at once in order to give the people the benefit of the driving season next year, as the time between now and then was note too long.

Judge Cake suggested that a committee of three meet with the board today at 2:30 o'clock to discuss the matter, and this was agreed to.

The report of the appraisers was as follows

That in pursuance of your instructions we met and were furnished with a plat of the road and claims for damages of Katherin Ecolmorge, H. J. B. Riegelman, Maria Riegel-man, J. H. Huddleson, Mary White and Clara

Black was Collector of Customs at this port, the defendants imported a lot of roll sulphur or brimstone, on which Black taxed them duty as refined sulphur, amounting to something over $1100. They protested against Black's decision and appealed to the Board of General Appraisers in New York, who held that the sulphur was crude and not liable to duty. Collector Patterson was instructed by the department to appeal the case to the United States Court here, and Judge Bellinger has now sustained the decision of the Board of Customs Appraisers, and or-dered the duty paid to be refunded to defendants, with interest from the date of judgment.

Court Notes.

The inventory of the estate of Samuel E. Roberts, deceased, was filed. The prop-erty is appraised at $500.

Mary A. Wilhelm, executor of the es-tate of her husband, John G. Wilhelm, deceased, was authorized by the County Court yesterday to continue the operation of the brewery which he conducted at Sellwood. This is provided for in the will,

F. C. Hoecker, administrator of the estate of B. F. Love, deceased, was au-thorized by the County Court yesterday to compromise a claim against the Portland Ballway Company. Lowe was killed by jumping from a street-car while it was in motion. The company paid the expenses of his last sickness and funeral, but denied any liability or negligence, month to the county. It is an illegal and arbitrary exaction to require the company to pay $100 per month for the use of the public records. The company has em-ployes examining the records all of the time, and if they used the public tables in the office they would take up some of the space which the public would re-quire. For the purpose of obviating this objection, with the permission of the Re-corder, the Title Company put in tables corder, the Title Company put in tables of its own. If these tables are taken out, our employes must use the public tables to the possible exclusion of some one else There is a public telephone in the Re-corder's office, and as the Title Company's employes were called up a great deal over the 'phone, it was a source of annoyance to the Recorder to call the employes of the Title Company to the 'phone so often, and for that reason a private 'phone was put in. It was put in six or seven years ago, and no objection was made to it up to this time. "The back part of the Recorder's office as is well known, is very dark, and poorly lighted, after 3 o'clock in the afternoon, for which reason the company, at its own expense put in electric lights, for the purpose of lighting that portion of the office. The general public, the county ofoffice. The general public, the county of-ficials and others also get the benefit of these lights, as well as the Title Com-pany's clerks. I cannot see why these things should be made the basis of an arbitrary charge of $100 per month for the use of the office, or any charge whatever.'

Messrs. Dabney and Smith talked on the same lines.

Judge Cake said the Title Guarantee & Trust Company had to pay 500 per month to the county, or else its telephone would have to be taken out, and it could use the public telephone, and its private tables would have to be removed, and the public desks used, and the lights and other things must also be removed. A like order was made as to Smith, and his rate fixed at

As monthly, and his take inker at the second sec lic tables, to the exclusion of other parties who desire to use them. If its tele-phone is taken out, it must use the pub-lic telephone, to the annoyance and bother of the Recorder and his clerks. If the lights are removed, the general public will have to work in a dark place, the same as the Title Company's employes." He further said the company did not intend to accept or receive any special privileges from the county officials or the County Commissioners, and absolutely re-fused to pay for such favors. The county could go shead and take the things com-plained of out if it wanted to, Judge Cake, during the hearing, asked Recorder Beach for some information con-cerning the matters referred to.

It is reported to be a well-known fact that Mr. Scott, Mr. Alexander and Mr. Trowbridge, the latter employed by the Pacific Coast Abstract Company, has each a table of his own in the Recorder's office, but the contrary statement is also made

TALK ON VENICE.

Mrs. L. J. Goodrich's Entertaining Lecture Before Y. W. C. A.

An exceptionally delightful lecture that was at once entertaining and scholarly was given before the Young Women's Christian Association last night by Mrs. L. J. Goodrich. Her subject was "Venice and the Renaissance," and it was richly illustrated by maps and photographs. A syllabus of the lecture had been placed in the hands of each person in the audi-ence, which enabled them to follow in-telligently the speaker as she dwelt upon historical data or pictured vividly humorous, or tragic scenes connected with the development of Venetian greatness. A detailed account of the early beginning of the republic was given, going back to 421. The days of the Tribunes and of the first Doge (697) were touched upon, the Orseoll, and the first crusade (1096). It was shown that many other motives than purely unselfish and disinterested ones influenced them to go on the crusadesthe appetite for commerce, for fame and the acquisitive ambition to excel other nations in collecting bones of the saints. Great numbers of these were brought back. Not satisfied with these, one bishop claimed to have discovered in one spot the bones of no fewer than 200 saints. As a result of the first crusade the commerce of India, Egypt, Syria and Persia was directed to Genoa and Venice, and Con-stantinople, jealous of prestige, became a bitter foe. During one of the many wars between the two countries, a Venetian fleet returned defeated, all the men of committee, the famous Justinian family having been killed with one exception, a monk, monk was commanded to perform This duty to the state by abjuring his yows, and taking the daughter of the Doge in marriage. He did so, and, after bringing a family of somewhere near a dozen children, returned to his life of cellbacy, his wife also taking the vell and retiring to a convent for the remainder of her

Ask for Compensation for Government Lands on Which They Had Filed and Were Later Ousted.

To present the demands of 115 Sher-man County settlers for redress from the United States Government, a delegation of prominent Sherman County men held a consultation with United States Senators Mitchell and Simon last evening tors Mitchell and Simon last evening. The delegation from Sherman County con-sisted of the following: R. H. King, Fred Kruson, A. Scott, W. H. Moore, Carl Peetz, F. A. Sayrs, A. Holder, William Powell and William Holder, There were also present State Senator F. P. Mays, and T. A. Hudson, of Portland. The grievance of the Sherman County settlere, stated briefly arms in this way: settlers, stated briefly, arose in this way They were invited through ex-Secre-tary of the Interior Hoke Smith to set They tie on Government land, which had for-merly been considered a part of the Northern Pacific land grant. When this was revoked in 1890, the land was declared open for settlement. Adl of these 115 settlers filed on the Government land, and many of them completed their title to it by receiving United States patents. Later the Eastern Oregon Land Company, the successors to the interest of The Dalles Military Wagon Road Company, set up a claim to the land on account of the grant to the road of three miles on each side given by the United States Government in 1857. This legal contest was carried up to the Supreme Court and won by the Eastern Oregon Land Com-pany. Thereupon the 115 settlers were deprived of the title to the land for which they had not or were about to accuire. they had paid or were about to acquire and upon which they had filed homesteads and other claims. The question that came up before the United States Senators was what could be done toward se-curing redress for an injustice that they had suffered through their confidence in the announcement of the United States Government, Senator Mitchell opened the meeting with the pertinent inquiry: "Well, gentle-men, what can we do for you?" "A whole lot," answered one of the settlers, quickly. William Holder, editor of the Shaniko Leader, was the spokesman for the delegation. He presented the case of the set-tiers in a clear way, reviewing the his-tory of their settlement, describing how the region had grown from a howling wilderness infested with coyotes to a con-tinuous wheat field, the product of which amounted to one-sixth of that of the whole state. Twenty of their number he said, had been granted patents out right by the Government, and at least one-third of them were homesteaders. He described the improvements that had been He made, the labor that had been expended -when the settlers thought fluey were building up and improving their own homes-and then pictured the desolation that they felt in their hearts when they learned of the decision of the Supreme Court that had in an instant swept away all their claims to the land, as well as the products of their own labor.

"What in your opinion should be done?

"That is the point," said Senator Si-mon. "Your demands for relief are so palpably just that the main thing is to settle upon the way to secure redress." This point was discussed at length. There were two means of relief proposed: The first was by the purchase of the land from the Eastern Oregon Land Company by the United States Government, to be returned to the original settlers. The second was the appointment of a commis-sion to assess the damages and losses of each settlers, after which Congress would be asked to appropriate enough money to reimburse the settlers. Involved in the readjustment would be about 20,000 acres at a market value at present of almost $15 an acre. Besides this, the settlers would have to be recompensed for their improvements and labor, which they lost. committee to confer with the officers of the Eastern Oregon Land Company for the purpose of ascertaining company for It was finally decided to appoint the purpose of ascertaining what the land

Abstract Companies Lock Horns With Judge Cake.

Judge Cake restering made an order requiring the Title Guarantee & Trust Company to pay $300 per month for the use of the space which it occupies in the County Becorder's office, which is taken up with private tables, a private teleme, typewriters, electric lights, etc. An order was also made that O. M. Smith, an abstractes of deeds, pay $50 per month for similar privileges, but less extensive than those of the former. Other com-panies and persons in the same line of business were excepted from any payment. ecause it was decided that they do not enjoy any peculiar or special advantages. or favors. County Commissioner Showers vas present when the orders were made, and assented to the rulings.

Neither the Title Guarantee & Trust Company nor Mr, Smith will pay the amounts demanded, but instead will remove their private belongings from the Recorder's office and endeavor to accommodate themselves and their employes in future at the public tables. The rec ords, they assert, are public records, and they cannot be denied the use of them.

The interested parties were notified to appear before the County Court, and there were present at the hearing: E. B. Seabrook, attorney for the Title Guaran-tee & Trust Company; P. P. Dabney, in charge of the abstract department of the same company; W. Y. Masters, represent-ing the Pacific Coast Abstract Company; H. N. Scott, of the Portland Abstract Company; O. M. Smith, D. Alexander and County Recorder S. C. Beach.

Judge Cake, in stating the case, said that the Title Guarantee & Trust Com-pany and O. M. Smith has private telephones in the Recorder's office, and were using private tables of their own. The Title Guarantee & Trust Company had typewriters there: the Title Guarantee & ust Company had put in extra electric lights of its own, so that its employes could see to work; the Title Guarantee & Trust Company had three tables in the office, and Smith one. Therefore, said Judge Cake, these two parties, the Title Guarantee & Trust Company and O. M. Smith, are receiving special privileges. for which they must pay. He stated that the Title Guarantee & Trust Company must pay $100 per month, and O. M. Smith the same period.

As previously stated, the Pacific Const Abstract Company, Alexander and Scott were not ordered to pay.

E. B. Seabrook, speaking for the Title L. D. Sealordok, speaking for the little Guarantee & Trust Company, said: "if the company has wrongfully put in a tele-phone in the Recorder's office, or wrong-fully put in lights, or done the other wrongful acts complained of, the company is liable in damages and to pay for any fermines according to the four any damages occasioned to the County Court. house by those acts. days. The power of the Doges dated from the great council in 1172. In these days the election of a Doge was held to be legal only when the Doge pleased the people. But as they developed great persuasive power in speech-making, they generally succeeded in pleasing. Passing from the aristocratic republic to the oligarchy, it was shown that seats in the great council in time became limited to the heirs of those who had held seats before them, a hereditary nobility being thus established.

Under the head of the renaissance the taking of Constantinople by the Turks was touched upon, and the scattering of classic knowledge; the introduction of printing into Venice by Aldus Manucius, and the two industries in which the Venetians became pre-eminent-glass and lacemaking. The secrets of these were pre-served with jealous care. Glassmakers were not permitted to leave Venice and practice their trade elsewhere. If they broke this law an ambassador was quiet-ly sent after them to poison them or otherwise make way with them. About this time Marco Polo, the great traveler, was confined in prison at Venice. A Frenchman, his companion in captivity, wrote down his adventures, and thus preserved them to the world. The year 1497, in which Da Gamo sailed around the Cape of Good Hope, sounded the death knell to Venetian commerce. Lux-ury degenerated into license, and, as Ruskin has told us, the Venetians in 80 years spent the earnings of 10 centuries. After dwelling upon the Venetian jove of beauty and success in art, Napoleon's death blow to the Republic in 1797 was explained. After that it became subject to Austria; and in 1866 a part of United

HONORED WILLIAM REIDT.

Woodmen of .World Expressed Appreciation of His Services.

The commanders of the various camp of Woodmen of the World, of Portland with a few invited friends, highly honored William Reidt at his home, 228 Ad-ams street, near Holladay avenue, a few days ago, as a mark of appreciation for his work in getting up the great cele-bration at Mount Tabor last Summer, when 1000 new members of the order were initiated. The success of that event wa largely due to Mr. Reidt's efforts, and the commanders called at his house, with some friends, to express their apprecia tion of his services at that time. Mu Reidt invited his visitors into the diningroom, where a sumptuous repast had een prepared. The presence of Senator Mitchell, who in a most happy vein related his ex-periences in public life, added interest to the affair. His talk was entirely informal, but full of interest to all present. He spoke of the Portland harbor, and declared that a deep channel to the sea was one of the most important things for the State of Oregon, and said that he should bend his energies to secure such a channel. He gave some interesting reminiscences of the work that Captain Eads had done at the mouth of the Mississippi River and of the difficulties which had been encountered in securing recognition for the plan, which was to make the current itself wash out the channel.

The Senator also referred to his efforts to secure justice to Portland in the mat-ter of the transport business. He remarked that he had returned from trip with a determination to pull off his coat and go to work for the state. No less interesting was his talk concerning the late President McKinley, who, he said, had been one of the most accomplished politicians and one of the men of the country. While it had been generally reported that he was controlled by Senator Hanna, that, he said, was a great mistake. On the contrary, Sen-ator Hanna had been under his control. Senator Mitchell also spoke of Presiden

Roosevelt and other prominent men whom he had met in public life. His presence added much to the interest of the testimonial to Mr. Reidt, and those who were present were highly entertained.

Michigan Man Tells His Townsmer Some Pleasant Truths.

D. C. Pelton, ex-Mayor of Cheboygan Mich., who came to Oregon last Winter to buy a large slice of timber land and then return home, found conditions so pleasant here that he decided to remain. Mr. Pelton made a fortune in the timber Item. business back in Michigan and is still graph was secured by George D. Smith for $6 25. This indicates that McKinley's the owner of a large sawmill plant in Cheboygan. As the timber supply is rapidly becoming exhausted in Michigan, autograph at the present time commands he is figuring on removing his plant to some point adjacent to Portland in the near future

What Mr. Pelton thinks of Oregon can be seen by perusing a letter he recently write to his home paper, the Cheboygan Tribune. Among other things he said: Jersey City today and voted to reduce the authorized capital stock of $80,000,000 to Before I returned from the woods to Port-land, I saw what I considered the chance of a lifetime, and where many things could be im-$26,996,400, the amount at present outstand-ing. One of the reasons for reduction is that a number of states are proposing proved upon at a profit. The soil of the Oregon valleys is fertile, be Ing rich in phosphates and nitrates, and pro-ductive of the highest grades of grains and fruits. The lands are nearly all under culti-vation, and alive with the landmarks of a vig-orous civilization. The center of attraction, of course, s the City of Portland, beautfully sit-usted in the termod heatin of the Willemett uated in the terraced basin of the Willamette uated in the terraced pash of the williameter River, which harbors ships from all parts of the world. The city now numbers something over 100,000 souls, and is fast increasing in suburban population, owing to the extension of the electric lines, and cheap rates of rapid transit. From the east side of the river Port-land presents a picturesque and panoramic view, with its wide streets, and its many beautful homes, churches, and schools in the resident portion, extending far up along the terraced heights, and crowned by the beauti-fully kept city park; while the sky-scrapers in the business portion vie with the huge masts that fig the colors of many mations in the waters of the Williamette River, which, like a silver thread separates the casis from the waters side of the city, but which are con-nected by handsome steel bridges.
