GO CHARGE AGAINST JOHN DOE DISMISSED.—On the blotter of the United States Court a day or two ago appeared an entry, "United States vs. John Doe, dismissed." The motion for dismissal was made by a former officer of the court, and it was hunted up to find out who John Doe was. He said this was what he had been anxious to find out for two years, but had finally given it up and had the case dismissed. Over two years ago two trunks with peculiar locks, which arrived in this city by rail from Puget Sound, attracted the attention of a Customs Inspector, who forthwith seized them. On inspection it was found that one contained 160 five-tael cans of opium, and the other 80 similar tins. The seizure was kept quiet in the hope that the owner of the trunks might turn up and inquire about them. He had evidently kept himself informed in regard to the whereabouts of his property, which he had hoped to smuggle in, and knew better than to ask any questions and thus betray himself. The opium was sold and the proceeds handed over to Uncle Sam, and an information was lodged against John Doe for smuggling opium. The case has remained on the books of the court for over two years in the hope that some day John Doe might turn up, but as he never put in an appearance, the authorities finally concluded to dismiss the case.

YAMHILL LOCKS REPAIRED.—The repairs and extensions of the slopes and dam at the locks in Yamhill River, in charge of Captain Langfitt, of the United States Engineers, have been completed. Assistant Engineer David B. Ogden, who has been superintending the work, has returned to the city and says that the works are now in such condition as to make practically impossible a recurrence of such damage as was caused by the flood of last Winter. About 50,000 square feet of surface of the slopes on the sides of the locks have been paved and riprapped with rock, and the dam has been extended 25 feet into the east bank. The wing wall at the head of the lock has been extended about 25 feet into the west bank, and the banks above the riprapping have been resloped at a lesser angle and seeded to grass. It is thought that with these improvements the works will be able successfully to resist future floods in the raging Yamhill. Boats are now running regularly between Portland and McMinnville, up one day and down the next, and are loaded to their full capacity with grain. The farmers of that section are much pleased with the regular service.

HUNTSWOMAN SHOT A BEAR.—Will H. Rowntree, traveling agent of the Honeyman Hardware Company in the sporting goods department, accompanied by his wife, visited Spirit Lake, Idaho, a short time ago. Spirit Lake is one of the favorite Summer resorts of the people of Spokane and affords excellent fishing, when the fish are in the humor, and there is good hunting in the neighborhood. Many of the newspaper men and other wealthy citizens of Spokane have Summer residences on the shores of this lake. Some say the lake was given its name on account of the vast quantity of spirits the Indians living about it used to consume. Others believe the name arose because the spirits of the aforesaid Indians haunt the lake. While Mr. and Mrs. Rowntree were hunting for ruffled grouse along the shore of the lake, their pointer dog "put up" a bear; that is, it scared the bear, which climbed a tree. Mrs. Rowntree shot the animal, and her husband was so proud of her skill with a gun that he has sent the bear's skin to a noted Eastern taxidermist to be mounted. Hereafter the animal will stand in the hall of the Rowntree residence, holding a receiver for cards.

GROWTH OF MONEY ORDER SYSTEM.—An abstract of the principal operations of the postal money order system of the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1901, has been issued by James T. Metcalf, superintendent. The growth of the system as shown by his figures is something wonderful. The number of money orders issued during the past fiscal year was 38,834,287, an increase over the previous fiscal year of 2,671,217. The aggregate increase in the amount of issues was $38,948,623 01. The number of money order offices in operation is: Domestic, 30,529; international, 4133. The fidelity and accuracy of the employes of this system is evidenced by the fact that during the past two years they have paid 66,332,876 orders, amounting to $730,674,997 54, with only the trifling loss of $172 45 from improper payments. The losses of the system from fire, robbery, bad debts, etc., have amounted to only $15,016 89. The average amount of each order issued was: Domestic, $7 77; international, $16 04. Since its organization the system has issued 474,445,104 orders, amounting to $4,286,736,-827 27.

NEW BEER IN OLD BOTTLES.—The inadvisability of putting new wine into old bottles was explained many years ago, but the same rule does not apply to beer, this tipple being a later discovery. Bottles which have been emptied of beer are just as good for refilling as when they were first used. As bottled beer now travels to the ends of the earth, so the empty bottles travel back from all sorts of places to the brewers. Probably few who read this paragraph would think of shipping bottles for any distance in sacks, but many are shipped in this way. In one of the breweries in this city are thousands of bottles which have come all the way from Manila in sacks, just plain, ordinary burlap sacks. About 50 quart bottles fill a sack, and the breakage in the long journey from Manila to Portland averages about four bottles to a sack. For this reason it pays better to ship them in sacks than to pay for cases to put them in. Of course, when the bottles are filled with beer they are not shipped in sacks. The contents are too valuable for that.

BLAZE AMONG GRAIN.—There was a slight fire last night at the Multnomah mills, near Nineteenth and Wilson streets, due to a lighted lamp being overturned. The watchman placed the lamp on the top of corn sacks, and it fell and set fire to a small grain elevator, but the blaze was easily extinguished. The alarm was sent from box No. 95 at 8:10 o'clock.

TWO SCORCHERS CAUGHT.—Two scorchers from Fulton, S. Speakle and C. Speakle, started to race on their bicycles at breakneck speed yesterday along Third street, from Burnside. Policemen Roberts and Patton noticed their conduct, and on the return journey they stopped the bicyclists and took them and their wheels to the police station.

AT the regular monthly meeting of the Congregation Ahavai Sholom for the election of officers, Mr. M. Gilbert was re-elected president for the seventh term; Jacob Asher, vice-president; secretary, I. Swett; treasurer, Simon Abrahams; trustees, John Dellar, L. Freedman, A. Rosenstein, I. Dauttof, S. H. Abrahams.

PAINTED INSIDE AND OUT.—The Unitarian Church, corner Seventh and Yamhill, is being painted inside and out at an expense of $250, which Hon. D. P. Thompson pays as his personal gift to the church.

HEADING FOR PORTLAND.—The police have been asked to try to locate Russell Hill, 13 years old, who has run away from Tacoma. He is supposed to be coming to this city.

STEINER'S holdfast curtain pins. You need them. "They hold fast."

BLACK BASS THRIVING.—The numerous reports in regard to black bass of two to three pounds in weight, and occasionally larger ones, being caught in many places in both the Willamette and Columbia, principally by persons fishing for catfish, are hailed with delight by sportsmen. The immense numbers of young bass give promise of fine bass fishing in a few years, and the duck hunters look forward to voracious bass rapidly decreasing the number of carp by devouring the young ones. The carp has no friends. The fishermen despise it as worthless, and the duck hunters hold it in high disrepute for having eaten up the wappatoes in their lakes and destroyed the canvasback shooting. All sorts of schemes have been tried to rid the lakes of carp, from draining off the water to putting lime in it, but enough carp bury themselves in the mud to keep the lakes stocked. When the hunting season comes and grain is put out for the ducks, the carp will eat it all if they can get at it. Some put the grain in troughs, supported on stakes, so as to be kept level with the surface of the water, which serve very well. Dan Howe has inclosed a large tract in shallow water with a fence of wire netting, which keeps the carp out. He then feeds the ducks in the inclosure. It is hoped that the black bass will become so numerous as to exterminate the carp, in which case they will probably then proceed to exterminate some other species of fish.

HALLOWEEN PRANKS.—The people of Portland generally have been congratulating themselves on the quiet manner in which Halloween passed. This is probably to be attributed equally to the precautions taken by the police to preserve order, and to the storm which raged that evening and made it unpleasant to be abroad. Several cases of wanton deviltry are however reported. A heavy truck and a covered wagon, apparently an express or delivery wagon, were pushed over the side of a bridge on Marshall street into the ravine below, where they still lie, and from which it will be a troublesome job to extricate them. Any hoodlum who could consider such a piece of malicious mischief fun has an evil and perverted imagination which will some day get him into trouble. It is a pity he can not be detected and properly punished. Something more in the nature of fun was the action of a gang of boys in another part of the city, who secured a policeman's uniform, helmet and star, and dressing the tallest of their number in the rig sent him out to terrify other gangs of boys in that district. They had lots of fun seeing their "impersonator" chasing boys, and the impersonator was enjoying himself highly till a real policeman took in the situation and began to chase the impersonator with the intention of arresting him for impersonating a policeman. This brought the fun to a close in a hurry.

PAID DEBTS OF DRUNKEN HUSBAND.—A rather pitiful affair took place in a broker's office the other day, when a woman called with her husband, a railroad hand, to pay money to the amount of $20, which he had borrowed from the broker at "s'teen" per cent per month and had dissipated in drinking and gambling. She said she had paid similar debts contracted by him more than once before, and gave him and the broker notice that she would not pay any more debts of the kind. The woman had money of her own which the dissolute, drunken reprobate was drawing on in this way and squandering, for a man who is drunk stands a poor show of winning when he gambles. The woman with tears in her eyes said he was a good man and a kind and loving husband when he was not drinking, but as soon as he had leisure from his work he went off and got drunk. There are scores of men in every profession of whom one frequently hears it said: "He is a talented man, and would be an ornament to his profession if he did not drink, but he is always drunk."

DUCK HUNTERS SHOOT IN HARD LUCK.—Duck hunters have been shooting in hard luck this season. The continued fine weather and the low stage of water in the lakes and ponds have been unfavorable for them. As the best of the shooting is over by Christmas, there are not many Sundays left in which good shooting may be looked for. The late rains have brought up the water in the lakes, and the stormy weather has brought in a good many ducks from the coast. Saturday evening as the gloaming was settling down over the landscape and Mount Hood, glowing in the last rays of the setting sun, was the only bright or beautiful thing to be seen, several large flocks of ducks were espied passing over the city, winging their way south, bound, as an old hunter said, for the fields of tender young wheat up the Willamette Valley. As yesterday was a fine day, it is probable that the duck hunters had another poor day's shooting. Duck hunters say the climate is really becoming undesirable on account of too much fine weather.

RELIGIOUS SHOUTERS DEBATE.—It is high time that some steps were taken to care for the demented woman, whose incoherent ravings and wild actions, generally at the corner of Third and Morrison, form such a painful and pitiable spectacle, shocking to all, and especially so to women. No one can say that any good purpose is accomplished by such exhibitions, which might have been put a stop to a year or more ago with benefit to all concerned, for the unfortunate woman grows plainly more and more demented. She has long been considered insane by those who have heard her ravings. If she has no friends to care for her, it is time for the authorities to take her case in hand. Yesterday she was challenged by another street speaker, who is an enthusiast in religion and holds forth down in the Whitechapel district. His closely cropped, bullet-shaped head might well grace the shoulders of an anarchist, and he appeared to be expostulating with the woman because she was preaching to the children of God. The talking in this case was mostly done by the man, whose broken English was about as unintelligible as the woman's replies. The scene was pitiful, painful and disgusting.

TOBACCO-SMOKERS GROW TIMID.—Several cigar-dealers report that the statements published in regard to King Edward having cancer of the throat, as a result of smoking, have caused a perceptible falling-off in the sale of cigars. The statements published in regard to this matter have doubtless some foundation in fact. But as it is said that King Edward smoked 20 to 25 cigars daily, each costing $1, and about the size of a Field Marshal's baton, the tobacco being black and strong, smokers generally may console themselves with the idea that the percentage of them likely to contract cancer in the throat is very small. Probably the number of huge signs advertising cigars, which are now being painted on blank walls of high buildings and other available places, are intended to counteract the malign influence of the reports about the King's throat.

NOT FOR GOVERNOR.—C. W. Fulton, of Astoria, who has been in the city for several days, said yesterday to a representative of The Oregonian: "I wish to state, very emphatically, that I am not a candidate for Governor; nor will I, under any consideration whatever, allow my name to come before the state convention as such. All reports to the contrary are utterly without foundation. Under no circumstances will I be a candidate for the office or accept the nomination." Mr. Fulton did not care to be interviewed further, and very politely excused himself.

LEWIS AND CLARK MEETING TOMORROW.—Chairman H. W. Corbett, of the Oregon State Commission on the Lewis and Clark Centennial, stated yesterday that he hopes all those interested will attend the meeting of the incorporators with the subscription committee and the committees from the Chamber of Commerce, Board of Trade and Manufacturers' Association tomorrow (Tuesday) afternoon at 2 o'clock, in the permanent exhibit rooms, 246 Washington street, to discuss the manner of raising the subscriptions and to take such steps as shall be deemed wise to forward the centennial.

AFTER OTHER SAILORS' LAURELS.—Two ship's apprentices of the joker class, wearing smart blue suits and gold-lace caps, attended the association football match last Saturday between the Cleonemes and the Institutes, and schemed to get their names in The Oregonian to send home to England. They met the scorer of the match and told him that he was incorrect in stating that Kay was one of the backs and Houghton one of the wings, and they wrote the names of Bayne and Wooton instead. Further inquiry elicited the fact yesterday that Kay and Houghton did play, and played well.

READY FOR ALL COMERS.—Two women evangelists started to preach last night at Fourth and Couch streets, when Edward Henry, a cleaner of saloons, objected and said that the women were spoiling saloon trade. The women declined to cease speaking and Henry suddenly threw a baleful of water over them. Policeman Roberts appeared in sight just then, and he was attacked by Henry, who by this time was furiously operating a small hose. The policeman just escaped a drenching by making a flank attack on Henry, who was taken to jail.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Judge William R. Ellis, of Pendleton, is in the city.

W. J. Furnish, of Pendleton, was at the Imperial yesterday.

MUCH BUILDING ACTIVITY

NO FALLING OFF IN CONSTRUCTION WORK ON THE EAST SIDE.

New Cottages and Handsome Residences Are Rising All Over That Part of the City.

From the large number of building permits issued for the East Side the past two weeks it is evident that there is no falling off in the erection of cottages this Fall, and indications are that the building activity will continue even through the Winter months, which are approaching.

In Central East Portland, along East Taylor, at Sunnyside, along East Burnside and East Couch, and in Holladay's addition, over 200 dwellings are being completed, and on others work is just starting. These buildings range from the $1000 cottage to the attractive residence costing $5000 and $4000. There are places in this district where four and six cottages are being built for rent, and which are a much better class of houses than those usually put up for this purpose. Northward, in Albina, and out toward Woodlawn, the building activity is extraordinary.

In the district between Williams avenue and East Seventh and Russell and Hancock, where every street has been improved and sewers laid, it is estimated that $50,000 in building residences and reconstructing others has been expended this year. This was brought about by the improvement of the streets. In Central East Portland the improvement of the streets this year has greatly stimulated building, and that part of the city which are large and convenient, is particularly effective. Mr. and Mrs. Powell have one of the most beautiful homes on East Burnside street, where so many handsome dwellings have been built the past few years. The cost was about $2700.

On East Couch, between East Fifteenth and East Sixteenth streets, are the new dwellings of George W. Stapleton and E. J. Hall. The former is No. 611. It is a two-story, eight-room house of a very attractive design. The foundation is of concrete, and the inside is finished in the natural fir. It contains all the modern conveniences. The rooms are all large and well arranged. One of the parlors is 14x19, and entered through column-supported entrances. The cost was about $3600.

The dwelling of Mr. E. J. Hall, on the corner of East Sixteenth and East Couch streets, is one of the most attractive in that part of the city. Fronting East Couch is a wide veranda which is reached by means of wide steps. The inside is finished in the natural wood. Mr. and Mrs. Hall have furnished their home in keeping with the finishing. The cost was nearly $5000.

Coins Are Not Rare.

SUMPTER, Nov. 1.—(To the Editor:)—Could you please tell a reader of The Oregonian where to find out the prices of old coins. I have a gold quarter that is perfect in every form, date 1840, and also a gold dollar of 1862. SUBSCRIBER.

(It is not known that here is any fixed standard of prices for old coins. Gold dollars have gone out of circulation, but they are by no means a rare or old coin yet, and are not likely to ever be worth any large sum. The gold quarter was never a legal coin, nor used in circulation. It was merely a curiosity and is not likely ever to be of value as an old coin.

BRILLIANT CHORAL WORK

SULLIVAN'S "THE PRODIGAL SON" AT TAYLOR-STREET CHURCH.

W. H. Boyer Wins a Notable Triumph as Conductor—Another Oratorio Coming.

Not many sermons have been preached in Portland that were so effective as Sullivan's oratorio, "The Prodigal Son," given yesterday afternoon in Taylor-Street Church, under the direction of W. H. Boyer. From a musical standpoint it was a noble piece of work, admirably worked out in all its details, the presence of the orchestra of 20 skilled musicians filling out the harmonies and adding that richness of tone-color which was lacking at the former production of the oratorio last Spring. The work of the chorus was superbly done, establishing it on a firm basis as probably the best-trained and most effective chorus—even though not the largest—ever gathered together in Portland. Dr. Edgar P. Hill, who, with other clergymen, occupied a place on the platform, made a 10-minute address, in which in a few forceful words he testified to the value of sacred music as an agent for good. The story of "The Prodigal Son" told in song, he said, might well turn discouraged, sin-sick wanderers back to their Father.

The oratorio is one that naturally lends itself to men's rather than to women's voices in the solos. Nevertheless there is some very beautiful and effective work for the soprano. Mr. Boyer was fortunate in having May Dearborne Schwab for this. She introduced the element of dramatic fervor. Accompanied by the chorus she threw a wild witchery of deliriousness into the words, "Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die. Fetch wine, and we will fill ourselves with strong drink, and tomorrow shall be as this day and much more abundant."

The contralto, Mrs. W. A. T. Bushong, then broke in with a sober call to duty—the one number allotted the contralto. The soprano, in a recitative, descriptive of the famine that spread over the land, led up to an aria full of pitying sorrow and protest; the words, "Turn ye, turn ye, why will ye die?" in particular were full of soft appeal, and the most witching grace.

H. W Hogue, in the role of the Prodigal Son, had the tenor solos, which made heavy demands upon his versatility, passing from reckless waywardness to suffering and abject remorse, these in turn giving way to love and gratitude.

W. A. Montgomery, so well known for his musical abilities, took the bass solos. Mrs. W. E. Thomas rendered invaluable assistance on the organ.

The sympathetic intelligence with which the chorus entered into the contrasting emotional changes that characterize the oratorio was peculiarly satisfying. The number beginning "Oh, that men would praise the Lord," ending in a heavy fugue—a sharp test of their ability—was a brilliant piece of work. They sang with a confidence born of careful training and unswerving faith in their conductor's ability to meet every difficulty. Thoroughly well balanced, altogether admirable in attack and phrasing, they gave forth a body of tone that might easily have been mistaken for that of three times the number of singers.

Gaul's "Holy City" will be the next oratorio to be rendered. This will be given December 8, with Miss Katherine Lawler, soprano; Mr. Belcher, tenor; Mrs. C. E. Farnsworth, contralto; and Mr. Epping, baritone.

GERTRUDE METCALFE.

Will Open Opportunities.

Klamath Republican.

The coming Lewis and Clark Centennial celebration will afford enlarged opportunities for Oregon to show its inducements to homeseekers and capital and thereby greatly increase its population and development. In the past decade Oregon has been far slower in growth than its contiguous neighbor to the north. Washington, though possessing fewer natural resources and advantages, has been benefited by the efforts of several rival railroad lines, whose unremitting endeavors have succeeded in bringing to the state each year from the overcrowded East thousands of new settlers. These have written to their friends to come, and altogether a steadily growing influx of new people has been the result. Oregon, ahead of Washington in natural gifts, has lagged in enterprise and progress. But we believe a new era for the better is dawning and that the state is on the eve of large and rapid growth. This is coming as the result of residents giving more attention to securing immigration, the prospects of more railroad building and the introduction of new capital and new industries. In this work of growth, the centennial celebration will be a signal help.

Another Testimonial.

Bohemia Nugget.

The Nugget is in receipt of a copy of the handbook gotten out by The Oregonian to cover the demand for information in reference to the Lewis and Clark Exposition of 1905. This little book is elegantly gotten up and contains a wide range of information on all subjects pertaining to the development of the Northwest. It is handsomely printed and illustrated and will be of incalculable interest to the thousands who desire to know of the resources of the Oregon country.

Sellwood Alumni Association.

Sellwood Alumni Association held its reunion and social in its hall Friday evening. The event was attended only by the members, of whom there are now over 100. All are graduates from the grammar grade of the Sellwood school within the past few years. It was a pleasing event, bringing together as it did so many of the old pupils of the school. There was an informal programme and refreshments.

THERE ARE CASES

Where eyes require gradual strengthening, first with weak lenses, followed by stronger, until normal vision is restored. Such cases are extremely rare, however, and the conscientious optician fits his patient's eyes at once, if practicable. Other practitioners nurse the eyes to accumulate fees for consultations and visits. The Portland Optical Institute, during 14 years' successful existence, has often supplied correct vision at one sitting to those whose eyes have been thus profitably nursed, at their own expense, for several months. We make no charge for consultations, and our schedule of prices for spectacles and eyeglasses speaks for itself.

A PESTIFEROUS GERM.

Burrows up the Scalp Into Dandruff and Saps the Hair's Vitality.

People who complain of falling hair as a rule do not know that it is the result of dandruff, which is caused by a pestiferous parasite burrowing up the scalp as it digs down to the sheath in which the hair is fed in the scalp. Before long the hair root is shriveled up and the hair drops out. If the work of the germ is not destroyed hair keeps thinning till baldness comes. The only way to cure dandruff is to kill the germ, and until now there has been no hair preparation that would do it; but today dandruff is easily eradicated by Newbro's Herpicide, which makes hair glossy and soft as silk.
