Miss Stone's Captors Were in Bulgarian Territory Last Week.
SOFIA, Bulgaria, Nov. 6.—The brigands having Miss Stone, the American missionary, and her companion, Mme. Talika, in their custody, were in Bulgarian territory, near the Turkish frontier, last week, according to authoritative intelligence. The captives were lodged in caves, and were lighted to protect them from the severe cold. Since then the brigands and the women have gone to some place unknown.

Letter From Miss Stone.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The State Department received today a cablegram from Consul-General Dickinson at Constantinople, advising he had received a letter from Miss Stone, the missionary held by brigands for ransom, dated October 28.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 6.—The officials of the United States Legation here have received news through Salonica that indicates the early release of the captives in the hands of the brigands. October 23, Miss Stone and Mme. Talika were both well.

Bulgarian Monks Arrested.
ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 6.—A dispatch to the Rossyia, from Sofia, Bulgaria, says the missionary has been again subjected to a domiciliary visit, and that some of the monks have been arrested on the charge of complicity in the abduction of Miss Stone, the American missionary, and her companion, Mme. Talika.

Swallow Convicted of Falsehood.
HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 6.—Dr. Silas C. Swallow was convicted of falsehood by a committee of the Central Pennsylvania Methodist Conference and suspended from the ministry until the next annual conference. DEATH OF EARL LI

China's Shrewdest Statesman Passes Away.

HIS HEALTH HAD BEEN FAILING

Effect on the Present Situation in the Orient—Li Hung Chang's Military, Political and Literary Record.

PEKIN, Nov. 7.—Li Hung Chang died at 12 o'clock this morning. At midnight last night he rallied slightly. His family had installed native doctors in charge of the patient, the regular physicians having refused to attend him unless the Chinese doctors were dismissed.

At 9 o'clock last evening Earl Li was still breathing and displaying unexpected vitality. The burial clothes had already been put on him. The courtiers, however, Yamun was filled with life-size paper horses and chairs, with coolie bearers, which his friends sent, in accordance with Chinese custom, to be buried with him, in order to carry his soul to heaven.

Several of the Ministers of the powers called to express sympathy. The Chinese official law somewhat more regarding the effect his death will have on the populace, and to guard against a possible anti-foreign demonstration, the Chinese Generals have disposed of their troops about the city in such a way as to command the situation. Trouble, however, is extremely improbable.

The wife of Earl Li and his two sons and daughter were with him. They were greatly distressed. Chinese officials then sent summoning Prince Ching, who is now in the city, to attend to the funeral. Chou Fou, Provincial Treasurer, from Pao Ting Fu. The former will assume general charge of government affairs and the latter of the Ministry of War. Li Hung Chang's successor in that office, who will probably be Num Shi Kai, is appointed.

Robert Colman, an American, one of the physicians attending Li, told the correspondent of the Associated Press that when he was called to act with Dr. Velde, of the German legation, November 3, he found the patient suffering from a severe hemorrhage, due to ulceration of the stomach.

"The hemorrhage was readily controlled," said Dr. Colman. "But owing to the underlying condition of chronic gastritis, with persistent nausea, only the mildest liquid food could be digested. Tuesday he was cheerful and without pain, but at 1 o'clock yesterday morning he became unconscious and was no longer able to get rid of the collection of mucus which he had freely expectorated."

Throughout the evening distillate was frequently administered. Earl Li's persistent refusal to refrain from attending to government business aggravated his malady, while the refusal of the family to permit certain measures customary in Western medical practice for relieving the stomach contributed to hasten the end.

WILL NOT AFFECT TREATY NEGOTIATIONS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The death of Earl Li will not, it is believed here, affect the execution of the undertakings imposed upon China in the protocol. Certainly the United States interests will not be involved directly, for all that remains to be done at Peking in which our Government is interested is the negotiation of trade and commercial treaties, and their lines have been so clearly marked that the work to be done is almost mechanical, and is not a matter of principle.

Throughout the evening distillate was frequently administered. Earl Li's persistent refusal to refrain from attending to government business aggravated his malady, while the refusal of the family to permit certain measures customary in Western medical practice for relieving the stomach contributed to hasten the end.

CAREER OF LI HUNG CHANG

China's Greatest Statesman, Soldier and Diplomat.

The cities that contended for the fame of Homer's nativity were no more numerous than the dates that are assigned to the birth of Li Hung Chang. The year 1823 and 1828 have been named, each by would-be infallible authority. One native record names Jen-Woo, the second year of the Emperor Taou-Kwang, with meditative satisfaction—that he was born in the same year with General Grant. That year was 1823, and it exactly tallies with the native record just quoted, may well be considered as the true date. The place of his birth is less uncertain. It is the village of Hwei-Ling, in the province of Ngan-Wai, another Yangtze Valley, and not far from the famous former capital of the empire, Nankin.

His Education.
Li was the second of five sons. His father was proverbially a powerful courtier, and owner of a small farm, a literary degree, and a boundless ambition for his sons. They belonged to the literary caste, whereof there is a high rank in the official hierarchy. Li himself once remarked, indeed, many times, with meditative satisfaction—that he was born in the same year with General Grant. That year was 1823, and it exactly tallies with the native record just quoted, may well be considered as the true date. The place of his birth is less uncertain. It is the village of Hwei-Ling, in the province of Ngan-Wai, another Yangtze Valley, and not far from the famous former capital of the empire, Nankin.

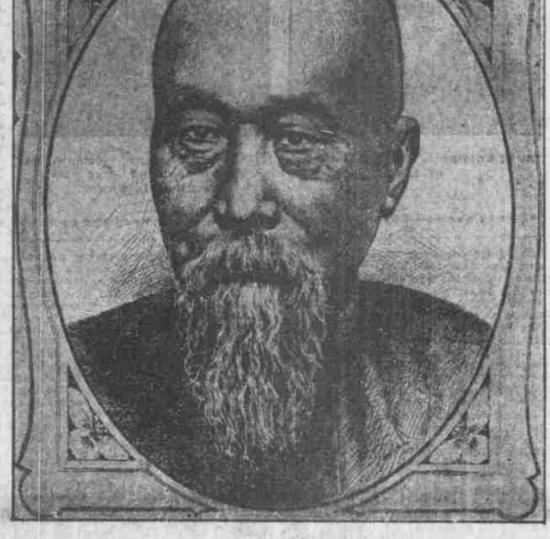

A DRAMATIC SCENE

Raynor Brought Tears at the Naval Court of Inquiry.

SCHLEY WAS DEEPLY MOVED

One Woman Painted and Many West-Judges, Spectators and Opposing Council Congratulated the Maryland Lawyer.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The climax of the Schley court of inquiry came this afternoon, when Mr. Raynor, the chief counsel for Admiral Schley, concluded a brilliant argument of over three hours with introduced into it an entirely new element, to wit, European ideas and methods. More than that, he brought to it his own marvelous personal power of life, and the credit that he recognized the greatness of Gordon, and gave him a free hand, so that the latter became practically the commander-in-chief of the sea-victorious army. The story of his achievements reads like a fairy tale. Armed only with a rattle wand, Gordon was ever in the forefront of the fight, unharmed and triumphant. Thus he led assaults upon walled cities, and put to flight armies 40 times the size of his own. Thus he fought and won 23 battles in 1870 he was sent to the north and was dragged on for many years.

At his close Li was rewarded with the Order of the Yellow Jacket, which only the Emperor himself can wear beside. After the fall of So-Chow, Li took up his abode in the palace of the Chung Wang, whom he had slain, and soon thereafter he was appointed Viceroy of the Two-Yed Peacock Feather. In 1898 he was made Governor-General of the provinces of Ho-Fu and Ho-Nan. Again in 1899 he was appointed Viceroy of the provinces of Pe-Chi-Li, but so great was the terror of his name that the rebels fled before the coming of his army, without striking a blow.

As Viceroy.

Li Hung Chang had often been called the Viceroy of China, but incorrectly. Since 1871 he had been Viceroy of Pe-Chi-Li; nominally of a higher rank or greater power than the Viceroy of any other province in the empire. But as Pe-Chi-Li is the province in which the imperial capital, Peking, is situated, he had much greater power and influence than the Viceroy of any other province. He had never until the time of the Taou-Kwang. He had been a member of the Tungan, or Mahometans, of Kan-Su and Shan-Si. Before he met the emperor he was really a member of the Government, and his name that the rebels fled before the coming of his army, without striking a blow.

Thrilling Scene in Court.

The scene in the courtroom as he finished with those words was thrilling. The attendance had been large all day, and at the morning session a lady had fainted from excitement. As Mr. Raynor began his closing argument, the spectators in the audience, many of whom were ladies, leaned forward in their seats. The spell of his oratory was over them, and when he declared that the Admiral's gallant deeds and the long persecution to which he had been subjected, many of them broke down and wept. The members of the court displayed evident emotion, and Admiral Schley himself was plainly moved. He sat leaning back with his hands behind his head. His chin twitched, and as his counsel said he could afford to await the verdict of posterity, two big tears rolled down his cheeks. He moved uneasily to conceal his emotion, and, under the pressure of adjusting his glasses, brushed the tears aside. For fully 30 seconds after Mr. Raynor finished his speech not a sound. Then the tension broke in a loud burst of applause.

Admiral Dewey, after about a half minute, arose to remind the spectators that they saw Admiral Dewey and his two assistants move around the table, and it by a common impulse, and congratulate Admiral Schley and his counsel. Even Captain Lemly, the Judge-Advocate, came forward to join in the congratulations. Then the public had its lining, and for 15 minutes after the court adjourned, Admiral Schley and Mr. Raynor were kept busy shaking hands.

Mr. Raynor's argument consumed the whole day of the court, except for half an hour at the opening, which Captain Parker, his associate counsel, occupied in concluding. Mr. Raynor took up the specifications one by one, reserving those relating to the retrograde movement until the last. So far as he was able to do so, he used the testimony of the department's witnesses to prove his contentions. With regard to the retrograde movement, which he discussed with greater seriousness than the other specifications, he added in justification not only all of Admiral Schley's witnesses to prove his contentions. With regard to the retrograde movement, which he discussed with greater seriousness than the other specifications, he added in justification not only all of Admiral Schley's witnesses to prove his contentions.

SCHMITZ IS MAYOR

Union-Labor Candidate Won in San Francisco.

PLURALITY IS ABOUT 4000

He Issues a Statement Assuring Merchants and Financiers That They Need Have No Fears That His Policy Will Be a Radical One.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—The now complete unofficial returns, as compiled by Registrar Walsh, show that yesterday's election resulted in the choice of the Union Labor party candidate, Mayor Eugene Schmitz, Union Labor; Auditor, Eugene Fisher, Union Labor; Auditor, Franklin L. Kane, Dem.; Sheriff, John Lehmann, Rep.; Tax Collector, Edward J. Smith, Rep.; Treasurer, Edmund Gochaux, Dem.; County Clerk Albert B. Mahony, Rep.; District Attorney, Lewis F. Byington, Dem.; Coroner, Dr. Thomas B. W. Leitch, Dem.; Public Administrator, John Farham, Rep. The Democrats elected nine Supervisors, the Republicans six, and the Union Labor party three.

Schmitz was elected by a plurality of 4158 votes. Wells, the Republican candidate, ran second in the race and Tobin, Dem., a hopeless loser. In the other fights it was a question of personal popularity more than political affiliations that decided the fate of candidates.

The success of Mr. Schmitz and the Union Labor party is a new and important factor into California politics. Last May, the members of the Teamsters' Union went on a strike, and the City Front Federation, composed of stevedores, marine firemen and other waterfront employes, struck in sympathy. The Employers' Association, composed of the principal merchants and manufacturers, was organized to oppose the strikers, and there was a bitter struggle, lasting for several months. The strikers held out for a formal recognition of the union, and the employers refused to accede. Finally, the men went to work with the understanding that their employers would not discriminate against them because they were union men, and that no union man should not be discharged to make room for union men. The result of the struggle was the formation of the Union Labor party and the nomination of a complete union municipal ticket.

The labor men evidently voted solidly for the bond of the ticket, but scattered their votes on candidates for other offices. They may elect three Supervisors. Under the new charter the Mayor has great power, and appoints the Boards of Education, Public Works, Police, Park and Fire Commissioners.

SCHMITZ ISSUES A STATEMENT.

Merchants and Financiers Assured They Have Nothing to Fear.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—Mayor Eugene Schmitz today issued the following statement:

"I wish to say to the merchants and financiers of the city that they need entertain no fears whatever of any action on my part tending to inaugurate a radical or revolutionary policy of municipal government. Invested capital will be given the same protection as it always has, and will be my aim to see that business interests suffer nothing. I will consider all classes and try to harmonize all interests which stand for the upbuilding of San Francisco."

ALTERS DOCK MOVED.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 6.—The Algiers dock was today towed from Chalmette, where it anchored at midnight, to the new pier below Algiers without mishap. Some hours will be expended in securing the great structure to the new anchorage provided. The formal ceremonies attending the relocation of the dock will take place this evening.
