The Right Thing.

A New Cataract Cure, Which is Rapidly Coming to the Front.

For several years, Eucalyptol, Guaiacol and Hydrantol have been recognized as standard remedies for cataracts, but they have always been given separately and only very recently an ingenious chemist succeeded in combining them, together with other antiseptics into a pleasant, effective tablet.

Druggists sell the remedy under the name of Stuart's Cataract Tablets and it has met with remarkable success in the cure of nasal cataract, bronchial and throat cataract and in cataract of the stomach.

Mr. F. N. Benton, whose address is care of Clark House, Troy, N. Y., says: "I have run up against anything that was good in this world since I was born."

Mr. Geo. J. Casanova, of hotel Griffin, West Ninth street, New York City, writes: "I have commenced using Stuart's Cataract Tablets already they have given me better results than any cataract cure I have ever tried."

All druggists sell Stuart's Cataract Tablets at 50 cents for full size package and they are probably the safest and most reliable cure for any form of cataract.

Two Epitaphs.

Notes and Queries.

Here lies Hall's Clay.

This sweet away.

Obituary.

Here lies Ned H—.

And that is all.

This tract was published in 1714. The idea recurs in metrical form in the second part of "The Two Epitaphs." (1714).

An Epitaph—Ned H— (yds?), who was the best beloved of his family, dying at a Time when they were out of Fashion, a witty Fellow provided him with the following Epitaph—

Here lies Ned H— because he died; Had it been his Sister—we should much rather; Or had it been his Sister—we should much rather; Or had it been his Sister—we should much rather; Or had it been his Sister—we should much rather;

Or had it been the whole Generation—that had been better for the Nation; But still his honest Ned—there's no more to be said.
