This gang worked seven hours on Wednesday, and two gangs were put on the next day and worked nine hours each Thursday, Friday and Satur-day, finishing the ship early Saturday evening, the time turned in by Brown & McCabe's foreman, who worked the ship being exactly 34 hours. This was an aver-age of 4455 bushels per hour. The Ta-coma papers have had considerable to say of late about the quick dispatch that is given wheat ships on Puget Sound. The Ledger last Thursday printed the following: Clay street.

The three-masted British ship Garadale, Cap tain W#J. King, finished loading her cargo of wheat yesterday morning and was shifted into the stream by the tug Ferriess, after having received the quekest dispatch given any wheatcarrier this season. McCabe & Hamilton, stevedores, loaded the Garadale and gave her her cargo of 2564 tons of wheat in 25 working hours. The time given by the Ledger for the Garsdale shows that the ship received her cargo at the rate of 2735 bushels per hour, compared with the 4453 bushels per hour received by the Portland ship. This is 1718 bushels per hour better dispatch given in this city than was shown by "the quickest dispatch of the season" at Tacoma. The rise and fall of the tide at Tacoma make it impossible for ships to be loaded as quickly there as at Portland, as it disarranges the singing and prevents stevedores working to such good advantage as they can work at Portland. At the same time the difference should hardly be as great as it was between the Garsdale and the Tiger, for the latter was slow work compared with some that has been done here, John Rosin to Adolph Rosin, S. 14 of lot.

Of course, the principles involved do not rest wholly nor even chiefly with the schools. Should not the already quoted definition from Webster be included in the teachers' examinations? And thus also the attention be arrested by those in charge of the homes, where the evil makes strong headway before the handi-capped teacher takes the mighty matter in hand.

One of the evils of mistaking intellectual acquirement for thorough education, is the conceit which leads into the suppo sition that to be conspicuous is to be famous; so that shame is lost to the crim to be inal and to others concerning crime; and thus young girls do not know that they are disgracing themselves when, as recently quoted, seeking and craving a view of malefactors. Plainly there is need of radical reform as to what is for the benefit of the individual, and conse-
