ing at the seventh annual exhibition of the Oregon State Poultry Association, at Merrill's Sixth-street cyclery. Old Dom-inick is there, and also his wife, the Percheron pullet, the beautiful belie of the barnyard; and the early angleworm takes the opposite side of the street.

It is the thing to do. And, strange to say, in the whole 400 coops, not a single setting hen is to be seen

The chickens are having an easy time, and all that is asked of them is to stand around and look pretty. They can afford to do this, and to strike an easy-going gait, as they have no mortgages to pay interest on, no taxes to struggle with, and no cause for worry. They know that nature will furnish them with a new nature will turnish them with a new suit of feathers every early Autumn, and that their offspring will scratch for themselves shorily after arriving. After you enter the present chicken show, the first man you meet on the left is a Black Langshan rooster and his run-ning mate, who screenely smile in a glass ning mate, who screpely smile in a glass case. They are the birds that represent-ed Oregon at the Buffalo Fair, and so, you see, have traveled. The rooster took the first prize there, and the pullet the second, and they prove the fact by hav-ing their ribbons in a frame hanging in their cage. The rooster's comb looks like the Sawtooth Range you see up in Idaho, and the hen's comb resembles one of those chaser affairs you sometimes see soldiers using when in pursuit of small game. Both combs are filled with all they will both comes are lined with all cars which hold of rich, red blood, which shows through and indicates good digestion. They also show a photograph of them-selves, and bear their botors modestly. The rooster seems slightly bored, stand-ing first on one foot and then on the other and carding his mach at marking other, and craning his neck at passing dogs. They are Portland birds and be-long to F. Fenwick.

Facts and Figures.

The American hen uses up more wheat and scratches up more gardens in a year than any bird that flies, and also pro-duces more food product. Among her out-puts, besides hen's eggs, are ranch eggs, packed eggs, store eggs, poached eggs and eggs straight up. Those of her who are now at the chicken show have to scratch sawdust instead of dirt, and seem to think that if they had green spectacles they might imagine themselves back in their home clover patches. "This show life." say some of them, "Is not what it is cracked up to then

Some of the many visitors at the chicken show yesterday seemed to think It was rather cruel to have in front of cach coop a the cup, while in it was not a drop to drink. But this matter was really well managed. An ample allowance of water was given, and if the cups had been kept filled, the fowle would have imbibed too much and taken home a tend-ency to dropsy. They are apt to drown their sorrow when homesick, and having nothing in the way of daily duties except standing around with their hands in their pockets and pecking at unseen encodes next to their undershirts. Often in this line they seem to have false alarma.

PROSPEROUS NIGHT SCHOOL. ing a Success for First Time. For the first time the night school conducted in the Williams-avenue building, by Professor J. H. Stanley, is proving a success. Heretofore the attendance has always been small, and the school usually dwindled down to only a few pupils; but this year there is a good attendance of pupils, who come to learn, and the out-look for the term is considered good. Re-cently Professor Pratt, principal of Williams-Avenue School, delivered an Illus-trated lecture on Lincoln and Washing-ton. He used the stereopticon lantern, with electric lights, which he uses in his classrooms. The pupils were very atten-tive, and seemed highly pleased. The late open trusses which support the roof, the beauty and size of the room can now be seen. Back of the altar the semi-circle recease in the wall is also plastered. It will be tinted blue. It is found that the acoustics of the auditorium are all that could be asked. One can stand on the altar and talk in lowest tones, and yet be heard very plainly at the front entrance. On the outside the work of pointing the walls is under way. All windows and doors have been covered with white muslin, to keep out dampness. Subscriptions to the building fund are the new place yesterday, and found every-tirink, which the proprietor hoped would soon be granted. The main street entrance was still locked, and the barkeeper was busy arranging several dozen drink-ing glasses behind the new counter. "This will be just a quiet, drop-in place," he said, "and no women will be allowed around here." A prospective customer, who was standing near the counter, said: "This will be the 'last chance' and 'first chance," " evidently alluding to the comers and goers at the club. The storeroom adjoining the proposed saloon is being fitted up for an oyster parlor, and will be occupied by the party now tenanting the old building on the east. F. A. Nitchy, president of the club, who was spoken to on the matter yesterday, said: "We don't like the idea of having a saloon set up quite so close to our portals as that, and we propose to take steps that will prevent it. The membership of our club is now over 1990, and we have over $60,000 invested in the new building and grounds. There are no saloons in that quarter of the city, south of Washington street, and the locality is known as a desirable resi-dence neighborhood. The place where the attempt is being made to start a saloon is within 200 feet of our main entrance, and not over 600 feet from the High School, at Fourieenth and Morrison streets. Our directors will meet tonight for the purpose of formulating a remon-strance, which will be presented to the proper officials." J. N. Teal, who is one of the members of the club, was also spoken to on the matter. He said: "The Multnomah Club has prospered thus far, and it membership has been drawn from the best class of citizens, on account of the absence of liquor-drinking about the clubrooms, or on the grounds. It is therefore natural that a protest should go up against the establishment of a saloon so close to the building. We tried to get a proviso into our proposed charter limiting the location of saloons to a certain quarter, but failed in this. We did, however, succeeded in es-tablishing a 530-foot limit from the nearest school. There was some attempt to have the word "church" added to "school," but this was voted down, as anybody could establish a temporary chapel in a saloon 1000 district and so cause consternation amongst those already in the saloon business. Mayor Rowe was asked his opinion in regard to the matter, and said: "This saon should not be permitted to open in what is known as a residence district, and the proprietor should not be granted a icense. It has been the custom in Portland to pay attention to remonstrances against the establishment of saloons in quarters where there had been none heretofore. The last agitation started by the question 200 was over two years ago, when a North End man spent many thousand dollars in clearing land and fitting up a beer garden just west of Piedmont. The residents of that suburb remonstrated so vigorously and persistently that no license wa granted, and the investment was a loss, A Councilman, speaking about saloor iccnses, yesterday, said: "Men about to censes, yesterday, said: open saloons in new localities should find out whether they can get the license be-fore they spend their money in building and fixtures. Too many of them take it for granted that the license will be forthcoming at the proper time, and once in

In the room where the night school is conducted electric lights are employed, and they are superior to the coal-oil limps that had to be used formerly. Principal Stanley throws much energy into his work, and has managed to interest the pupils in his charge

TRACK LAID TO POWELL STREET.

Brooklyn Branch Ballasted and Extended Across Embankment.

The Brooklyn branch of the City & Suburban Railway Company has just been completed to Powell street. The rails were laid across Milwaukle street of their association.

on Saturday, and also across the embank-ment on the cornet of the city's ground. Between Milwaukle street and Grand avenue the work of ballasting the track has gone ahead for about 10 days. Beyond the present end of the branch no more iron has been distributed, and it is not known how soon the line will be completed to the Southern Pacific carshops, which is the end of the route for which a franise was given. The residents of Brooklyn are waiting anxiously the inauguration of car ser-vice on the Brooklyn branch. On the Portland City & Oregon Raliway, on Milwaukie street, a 20-minute service is giv-en until about 8:30 P. M., when the old schedule is used, which is not satisfactory to that district.

WOOLEN MILL MACHINERY.

Turbine Wheel and Other Parts on the Way for the Sellwood Factory. The turbine wheel and some other ma chinery for the Portland Woolen Mill, at Sellwood, ordered from the East some time ago, are at last on the way to Port Innd. There has been some delay, caused by strikes, in getting the machinery, con-sequently the factory will not start up as soon as expected, but it is reasonably sure that everything will be in readiness early in February.

Free Delivery Tomorrow.

Tomorrow the Mount Tabor Postoffic on the corner of the Base Line road and West avenue, E. S. Brubaker, Postmaster, will become a sub-station of the Portland Postoffice, and free mail delivery will be started. The boundaries of the territory to be covered have not yet been settled, but it is expected that they will be today. Postmaster Croasman will like-ly fix up this matter with the aid of Mr. Brubaker today. It will probably be a few days before the carrier becomes few days before the carrier becon thoroughly famillar with the district.

Watch-Night Services.

At St. David's Episcopal Church, East Morrison street, near East Twelfth, there will be a watch meeting this evening Rev. G. B. Van Waters, D. D., rector will be in charge. There will be an inter esting programme for the night. Reports of progress in all lines of the church work will be given in. Services will begin at
