TEAM OF ALL STARS

Crack Eleven Chosen for Pacific Northwest.

KERRIGAN NAMED AS CAPTAIN

Selection Is Based on Review of the Football Season—Such a Team Could Withstand Best in the Country.

All-Northwest football team for 1901:
Captain and quarterback—Kerrigan, M. A. A. C.
Halfbacks—Downs, M. A. A. C., and Dolph, M. A. A. C.
Fullback—Sanders, M. A. A. C.
Center—Thayer, Oregon.
Guards—Zercher, Whitman; Gardner, Washington.
Tackles—Pratt, M. A. A. C., and Elton, Washington Agricultural College.
Ends—Ziegler, Oregon; Barnard, Washington Agricultural College.

Never before in the history of Northwest football have there been so many good elevens in the field as in the season just closed, and never before has the selection of an All-Northwest team been so difficult a task. After consulting numerous football authorities and carefully watching the individual work of the leading players, an eleven has been chosen that, if playing together and in good condition, could hold its own against many of the big Eastern aggregations. In selecting an All-Northwest team, only those who are known to be in good amateur standing have been chosen, while others—some of whom rank as amateurs—have been disqualified for the reason that they appeared as coaches and not as actual representatives of the various institutions. Then, again, the selections have been based on work which the men actually did, not what they might have done. Selections have been based, not upon a player's particular work in one department of the game, or in one single game, but upon an average of the season's work.

In order to show the relative rank of the different players, a second team has been chosen, and its line-up would be dangerous to the men who have been slated for first honors. In some cases, the best team does not always furnish the most men for an imaginary all-star eleven, for the simple reason that its victories were due to substantial team work, rather than brilliant individual play. This is true of the Whitman College team, which is counted by some critics as the strongest collegiate aggregation in the Northwest. Only one man has been chosen from Whitman for the All-Northwest team, but that is no reflection upon the splendid record made by the Sons of Marcus. Some players have been selected from teams that were exceedingly weak, because their individual playing justified the choice.

Honors for Kerrigan.

The first and pre-eminently the best man for the All-Northwest eleven is H. W. Kerrigan, of M. A. A. C., who is the best quarter in the Northwest today. Kerrigan's work in every game has been far above the average, and he is a field captain of no mean ability. He passes the ball accurately, tackles like a fiend and is a clever man in the back field. All in all, Kerrigan is the first choice for the team and the man best fitted for the captaincy. Lasher, of the Washington Agricultural College, takes second rank among the quarterbacks, while Corbett, of Washington; Miller, of Pacific; Murphy, of Oregon, and Stott, of the Portland Academy, all deserve mention.

Downs and Dolph for Halves.

Downs and Dolph, the crack halfbacks of the Multnomah eleven, are two of the best men that ever wore the red and white. Both played consistently throughout the season, and their selection cannot be questioned. Proff, of the Washington Agricultural College, is a faster man than either Downs or Dolph, and plays a very aggressive game, although his all-around work does not equal that of the Multnomah halves. Mashburn, another Pullman player, is a crack halfback, but, like Proff, had the advantage of playing behind a very heavy line. Watts, of Oregon; Hunton, of Washington, and F. Lassiter, of Whitman, deserve special mention because of their excellent individual work. Watts and Huntoon played behind very weak lines, but proved themselves capable men. Goodrich, of Oregon, and McKenzie, of M. A. A. C., both deserve mention as excellent groundgainers.

Choice of Fullback Difficult.

Hauerbach, captain of the Whitman eleven, and Sanders, of M. A. A. C., are the best fullbacks available. Sanders' work has been erratic this year, and his amateur status is very doubtful, although direct evidence of his professionalism is lacking. Hauerbach is a very gritty player and excels the Multnomah man in all departments of the game except kicking. He is one of the best defensive players in this part of the country, but his selection would leave the team without a punter. Although Sanders cannot be depended upon for anything else, in an uphill game his punting ability would be invaluable, and for this alone he is selected. Young Chalmers, of the Portland Academy, has great possibilities as a fullback, as also has McCalley, of the Hill Military Academy. The punting of Horton, Idaho's fullback, and Templeton, of Oregon, was exceptionally good all through the season.

Thayer for Center.

Thayer, of Oregon, is easily the best center in the Northwest today, as his work showed marked consistency in every one of the season's games. In the contests which Oregon lost to the colleges of Eastern Washington, Thayer handled his man in every instance, and his playing was sensational, while his work in the games with Multnomah was the cause of much favorable comment. Not once during the entire season did he fumble the ball or make a bungling pass, while a number of costly errors can be charged to his heavier opponents. Chittenden, of Whitman, takes second rank among the center men, while Jones, of the Washington Agricultural College, is a very formidable player.

Zercher and Gardner for Guards.

Four very clever guards appeared on the gridirons of the Northwest this year in Zercher, of Whitman; Gardner, of Washington; Van Voorhis, of M. A. A. C., and Early, of Washington Agricultural College. Zercher is easily the best man of the lot, his strong point being his ability to advance the ball, while he is not lacking in defensive qualities. His work in the Whitman-Washington game was clever in the extreme, and it was Zercher who was always called upon when yardage was needed. He strips at 208 pounds, and is very fast. Zercher is an Oregon boy, his home being near Salem. Gardner, of Washington, is another very strong guard, his splendid interference, combined with powerful defense, entitling him to the other position. He has great possibilities as a football player. Van Voorhis, of Multnomah, is somewhat slow, but otherwise plays a scientific game of football and has made a good record this year. The same criticism may be made on the work of Early, who was a pillar of strength on Pullman's crack eleven. Booth, of Chemawa, is an erratic player, but did some surprisingly good work in the games between Chemawa and Multnomah.

Two Clever Tackles.

Pratt, of Multnomah, and Jim Elton, of Washington Agricultural College, are the best tackles on the list. Everybody in the Northwest who keeps posted on football matters knows that Pratt is the peer of any tackle in this region, although in some of the games this year he has not been at his best. Elton ranks close to Pratt, and is his superior in defensive play. The two men would hold their own against all comers. Elton is another Oregon lad, The Dalles being his home town. Ankeny, of Whitman, is a tackle who has made a fine record this year, his long runs with the ball contributing in no small degree to Whitman's success. McLeod, of Idaho, would make a good substitute for the tackle position, as his playing throughout the season was of a high order. He will captain the Idaho eleven next season.

Ziegler and Barnard for Ends.

Brown, of Whitman; Barnard, of Washington Agricultural College; Barton, of Idaho; Cosgrove, of Washington; Gorrell and Ziegler, of Oregon; Montague and Dowling, of Multnomah, are the men from whom the ends are to be selected. No one can dispute Ziegler's right to the position, for his long experience and sensational style of play have won for him the distinction of being the best end in the Northwest. Last season he was chosen by California experts as a member of the All-Pacific team, and the peer of Womble, the great California end. Ziegler's work this season was not as brilliant as last, but it was exceptionally good under the circumstances. Gorrell, Oregon's other end, did not play consistently, and was frequently drawn too close to his tackle. The same complaint is made of Brown, Whitman's crack end, who was largely responsible for Whitman's failure to win on Thanksgiving day. Neither Montague nor Dowling, of M. A. A. C., can be chosen, for they are very slow on running under punts, while Cosgrove and Barton are weak on the defense. The man best fitted to play in the other end position is Barnard, of the Washington Agricultural College, who was a star in every game played by his team. Pullman's victory over Oregon was largely due to Barnard's magnificent work, especially his running under punts. He is one of the best ends ever turned out at Pullman, and is very fast and aggressive. Jordan, of the Portland Academy; Palmer, of Chemawa, and Spagle, of Pacific, showed by their work throughout the season that they are coming end rushes.

Make-Up of Second Team.

The second team, composed of All-Northwest players, would line up as follows:

Center—Chittenden, Whitman.
Guards—Early, W. A. C., and Van Voorhis, M. A. A. C.
Tackles—Ankeny, Whitman, and McLeod, Idado.
Ends — Brown, Whitman, and Cosgrove, Washington.
Quarterback—Lasher, W. A. C.
Halfbacks—Proff, W. A. C., and Watts, Oregon.
Fullback and captain—Hauerback.

Team for Coaches.

A number of good coaches have been at work on the different gridirons of the Northwest this year. Some of them were at one time the star players of big Eastern teams, while others have distinguished themselves locally.

The team of coaches would line up about as follows:

Center—Namack, W. A. C.
Guards—Woodruff, M. A. A. C., and Wright, U. of W.
Tackles—Herbold, U. of S., and Eastland, Heppner.
Ends—McMillan, M. A. A. C., and McFadden, Pacific University.
Halfbacks—Smith, U. of O., and Bishop, Chemawa.
Quarterback—Edwards, Albany College.
Fullback—Allen, Whitman.

FOOTBALL SEASON CLOSES.

As Far as Starting Games on Time, It Was a Failure.

New Year's day ended the football season in Portland as far as the Multnomah team is concerned. During the season the Multnomah eleven played eight games. In all but the last one, when they were defeated by Reliance, the local men were victorious. Two games were played with Pacific University—one in Forest Grove, where the clubmen won by a score of 6 to 0; the other in Portland, where the home team scored 24 to the university's 0. The University of Oregon team was defeated twice—once at Eugene by a score of 5 to 0, once here by 17 to 0. The Chemawa Indians made their appearance twice in this city in games with the Multnomah team. Multnomah won both games by scores of 5 to 0 and 6 to 0. The first time that the local men were scored against was when they played the University of Washington team in Seattle. There the 'varsity boys succeeded in scoring five points against Multnomah's 16.

The season has not been the success that could be wished for. Of the games with Pacific University there is no doubt that Multnomah's players had the best of them and won on their merits. The first game with Oregon, although the victory went to Multnomah, was not at all satisfactory. The decision on the drop kick which won the game was open to dispute. The university boys outplayed the clubmen at every point of the game. It was only a case of "Multnomah luck" that won the game for the Portland players. The Washington game was a decisive victory, but the Portland team should not have been scored against. The Indians put up a fine game, and it was more luck than good playing that gave the Christmas victory to Multnomah. The Reliance game was easily a 0-to-0 game. The teams were evenly matched, and it was only by some fluke play that either side could have scored. As it was, "Multnomah luck" gave way to that of the visitors.

The great fault to be found with the games played here was the slowness in beginning and the slowness throughout the game. Not one of the games was started on time. The spectators were forced to wait out in the cold from 15 minutes to half an hour before the game was called. Every game played was slow. Time would be taken out for any trivial cause. Throughout the games it was nothing but playing for wind. What the people want to see is fast, snappy ball, but they did not get a chance this year, except in some of the interscholastic games, in which the youngsters played the game as it should have been played by the veterans.

At no time since the Multnomah football team has made its appearance in Portland was the "sorehead" element out in such force as it was at the game on New Year's day. It is safe to say that the majority of the crowd present sided with the Reliance team. It is doubtful if they could have secured a more enthusiastic crowd on their home grounds. The Multnomah rooters were out in small force, but the grandstand and side lines were filled with men cheering for the visitors. It was through no feeling of courtesy that this was shown, but just because they wanted to jeer the Multnomah team. Why they did this most of them, no doubt, do not understand themselves.

The fact that the Multnomah players are the home team, and represent the city and state, and in fact the whole Northwest, on the gridiron, entitles them to the support of every person in Portland who pretends to be a sport. This crowd has always been in evidence, but never before in such proportions. In the games with the University of Oregon there has always been a large number of Portlanders out to yell for the 'varsity team. That is all right, as the university has plenty of friends and alumni in this city. But with the California team the matter is entirely different. The California boys were as gentlemanly a crowd of fellows as ever came here to play the game, but it is doubtful if any of them had any number of friends in this city. As a matter of fact, there is a certain set in the city who "have it in for Multnomah," and like to get out in a crowd and show it. If they want to rub it in so bad, why don't they organize a club and go at the Multnomah men in a legitimate manner?

Ohio manufacturers paid in wages last year $94,061,814, an increase of $10,414,943 over the previous year.

NEILL-DONOVAN CONTEST

REPORT THAT IT WILL COME OFF AT LOS ANGELES THIS WEEK.

Managers of the Pastime Club Do Not Credit the Rumor—Murphy Wants a Match.

The report comes from California that Al Neill is matched with Bob Donovan, the contest to take place at Los Angeles on January 10. The officials of the Pastime Club, before which Neill is to box "Mysterious" Billy Smith on January 23, do not place much credence in the rumor, as Neill has sent them no word of such intentions on his part. Messrs. Day and Grant will not say what action they would take should the contest take place and Neill finish the loser.

Australian "Zim" Murphy, the well-known middle-weight, writes from Sioux City that he would be pleased to secure a match before the Pastime Club with any middle-weight in the country, "Kid" Carter preferred. Murphy is a clever boxer and is well recommended by Billy Delaney.

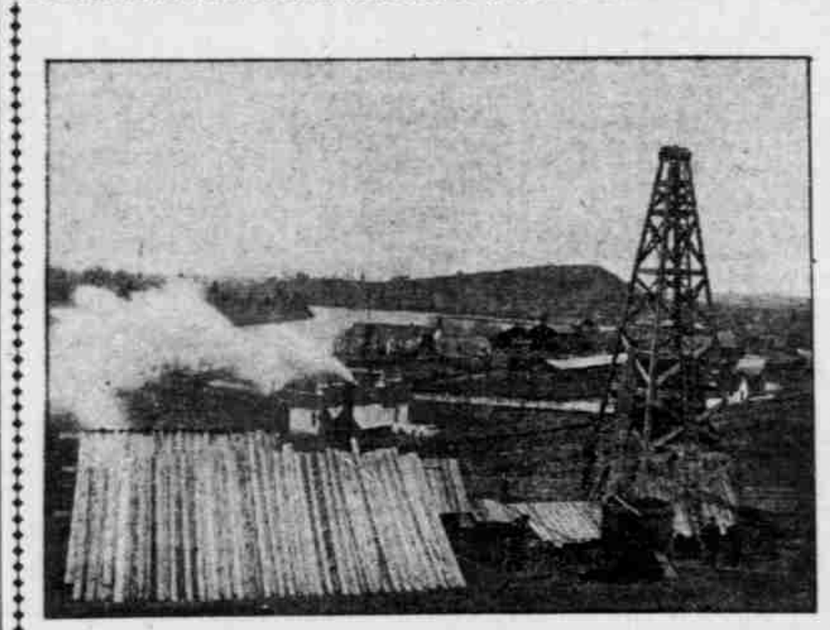
Fred Muller, who is well known in Portland, writes from San Francisco that he would like to meet any 135-pound man before the Pastime Club, and is willing to place a $250 weight forfeit, and will make a side bet of the same amount.

Ed Martin, Henry Lewis, Jack McMaster and George Baker are all corresponding with the Pastime Club for matches. They cannot be accommodated at present, as the dates are filled for January and February, and the management does not believe in booking any contests too far in advance.

Two good preliminaries have been arranged for the Neill-Smith contest of January 23. The first bout will be a four-round go between "Banty" Barrett, of South Portland, and "Kid" Doherty, of Oregon City. The other will be a six-rounder between "Kid" Swanson, of Albina, and Collie Druhol. The boys have met before in a 10-round bout and the result was a draw.

"Mysterious" Billy Smith has been training faithfully for the past three weeks and is rapidly rounding into perfect form for his match with Neill. Neill is expected back from San Francisco shortly and has already commenced training. Sporting men are jubilant over the prospects of a lively "mill," and some lively betting is promised.

The Seattle sporting fraternity are much stirred up over the contest of January 10 between Perry Queenan, of Milwaukee, and Dal Hawkins, the San Francisco light-weight. Both men have international reputations as boxers. While Hawkins is a favorite in the betting, Queenan ought to win out.



DRILLING PLANT OF GREAT WEST OIL & COAL COMPANY, SPRINGFIELD, OR.

Oil indications at Springfield, three miles south of Eugene, Or., are said to be promising, and a drilling plant has just been erected there, and has begun sinking a hole to test the mineral value of the locality. The promoters expect to discover both coal and oil there.

Weltse Challenged Young Corbett.

DENVER, Jan. 5.—Young Corbett, the feather-weight champion, who opened a week's engagement at the Tabor Grand Opera House today in P. J. Kelly's theatrical company, has received a challenge from Eddie Cook, at one time manager of Jim Jeffries, for a match with George Weltse, the Australian bantam. "Young Corbett is only too eager to meet all comers," said Mr. Kennedy, today, "but Terry McGovern will get the first chance. For the next 50 weeks the champion is under my personal direction and he will give exhibitions in St. Louis, Louisville, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati, Pittsburg, Toledo, Indianapolis, Buffalo, New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington."

Jim Hall Sick.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 5.—Jim Hall, the well-known Australian pugilist, was taken to the City Hospital today, suffering from lung trouble. While conversing with a group of friends he was seized with a violent hemorrhage. A carriage was immediately called and the once-famous pugilist was taken to the city hospital. The physicians said there was no immediate danger, but Hall only smiled and said: "I know better, I know when the referee is counting 10."

SHELDON WON THE LONG WALK.

Finished Twenty-six Miles Ahead of the Second Man.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 5.—Harry Sheldon, the New York pedestrian, won the go-as-you-please race today, leading George Tracy, of Kinderhook, N. Y., by 26 miles, Tracy being 11 miles ahead of Noremac, of Philadelphia. The match did not go 100 hours, as scheduled, but was finished at 11 P. M., 97 hours after it began. The final score:

	Miles.
Harry Sheldon, New York	361
George Tracy, Kinderhook	335
George Noremac, Philadelphia	324
George Cartwright, England	320
Frank Hart, Boston	312
Tony Loeslein, Erie, Pa.	310
Pat Cavanaugh, Ireland	275
Peter Hegelman, New York	257
Kid West, Brooklyn	232
George Richardson, New York	231
Gus Guerrero, Mexico	200
Ed Fleming, Milwaukee	200

GET OUT OF A. A. U.

Northwest Athletes Favor Pacific Coast Association.

The proposition of doing away with the Amateur Athletic Union seems to meet with general favor in the Northwest. The Spokane Chronicle and Seattle Times are both supporting the movement, and the athletes in those cities are willing to go into another organization if the proper attention is given to the matter.

The Spokane Chronicle credits Al Ware, president of the Spokane Amateur Athletic Club, as saying that he is in favor of forming a Pacific Coast or Western union, governing itself independently of the A. A. U. In that case the Western athletes would receive due notice, there would be no long waits to settle difficulties, and there would be an object in belonging to the association. The same paper also says:

In all probability, the Inland Empire Amateur Athletic Association, which is expected to be formed here this Spring, will be brought together in utter disregard to the A. A. U. This means that the institutions will put their money when they can use it, and that they will be the judge of the amateur standing of the athletes.

Without doubt a new association will be formed in time. It is not a matter that the athletes can go into in a hap-hazard fashion and make any improvement on the present form. It will require time and a considerable amount of study. A meeting of the representatives from the different athletic clubs and colleges should be had as soon as possible and a plan for the future outlined.

WON BY SECOND BATTALION.

Indoor Baseball Team Defeats Soldiers of the First.

The Second Battalion indoor baseball team defeated the team from the First Battalion last Saturday evening at the Armory, by a score of 21 to 13. The series is fast drawing to a close, but two more games remain to be played. Next Saturday the Naval Reserve and the Second Battalion teams cross bats. On the following Saturday, January 18, Light Battery A and the First Battalion meet in the final game. The battery boys have not been defeated so far and are determined to finish the series with a clean average. On the night of the last game the cup will be presented to the winning team.

Saturday night's score was:

Y. M. C. A. ATHLETIC NOTES.

Local Indoor Baseball Team Will Play With Oregon City.

The Y. M. C. A. indoor baseball team has scheduled a game with the team from the Oregon City Y. M. C. A., to be played at the latter place on January 17. The local team is hard at work, getting into trim for the match, which promises to be a hard-fought one.

Next Friday evening, the noon and evening classes will try conclusions in a basket-ball game, each team having won a previous game. The Y. M. C. A. is devoting a great deal of attention to basket-ball, and every game played between the classes is an exhibition of good sport.

Water polo is a very popular amusement in the swimming tank just now, and all classes are forming teams.

The annual handball tournament, for which there are some 60 entries, begins this evening, and will continue for about three weeks.

The all-around indoor contest of the seniors will begin about January 15, and some excellent sport is promised.

Director Ringler, is busy with his gymnasium classes, and a great number of the association members are going in for the regular class work. There are 24 classes altogether, some working three times a week, and others twice.

Director Ringler's report for 1901 shows that the total number of individuals taking work in the various classes was 814, of which 678 were men and boys and 136 were women and girls. The average attendance at each class was 24. The total number of individuals reporting for work during the year 1900 was 546, the increase during the year 1901 being something like 30 per cent.

Multnomah Club Tournaments.

Two tournaments will most likely be held at the Multnomah Club this month. The handball committee intends to give another handball tournament about January 20. Mr. Duniway, of the billiard committee, is getting ready to pull off the annual billiard and pool tourney before the month closes. After the regular club tournament a team of three players will be selected to go against a like team from the Commercial Club.

Annual Meeting of Kennel Club.

The Portland Kennel Club will hold its annual meeting sometime within the next two weeks, for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year. The proposition of giving another bench show will most likely be taken up at the same meeting, and the preliminiry work taken up immediately after. The bench show was held in April last year, and the same month of this year will most likely again see the dogs on exhibition.

Cricket in Australia.

In a letter just received from England by a Portland cricketer, the following interesting extract is given concerning the first of the five great cricket test matches played at Sydney, Australia, between a picked team of eleven English players and a picked team of eleven of the best Australian players, begun December 13: "Thirty thousand people were present to witness the finish. The scores were: England, one inning, 464 runs, and Australia, two innings, 340; England winning the game by one inning and 124 runs. Captain Maclaren, of the English team—the owner of a Scotch name—made the top score with 116 runs. When will the Portland team invite the Australians to play on the Pacific Coast, and give them a taste of American cricket?"

Ann Arbor Celebrated.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 5.—Even Sunday could not prevent a football celebration over the return of the Michigan team from the Pacific Coast, with an unparalleled season of victories and scores. A band followed by 2000 citizens and students, including Mayor Copeland and all city officials, were at the depot. A procession to the campus was followed by speech-making.

University Club Billiards.

The annual handicap billiard tournament at the University Club will begin this evening. There are 24 entries, and the schedule of games has been posted on the bulletin board at the club. Some of the college men are experts at the game and an interesting contest is looked for.

Thirteen Thousand for a Colt.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 5.—Enoch Wishard, acting for John A. Drake, of Chicago, today bought from T. P. Hayes, the three-year-old colt Runnels, by Charade, dam Singara II, for $13,000.

COFFEE IMPORTATIONS.

This Year They Will Be the Largest in the History of Our Trade.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The coffee importations of the United States will in the calendar year 1901 be the largest in the history of our import trade. Eleven months' figures of the Treasury Bureau of Statistics show that the importations of coffee amounted to 967,969,585 pounds in the 11 months ending with November, against 707,496,152 in the corresponding months in 1900; 817,223,877 in the corresponding months of 1899; 744,910,179 in the corresponding months of 1898; 726,119,996 in the same months of 1897, and 587,929,817 in the 11 months of 1896.

These figures indicate not only that the coffee importations of 1901 will be larger than those of any preceding year, but that they will for the first time exceed 1,000,000,000 pounds. The value of the coffee imports of the year will reach about $70,000,000. While the quantity imported will exceed by more than 200,000,000 pounds that of any preceding year, the cost will be less than the average during the years from 1890 to 1897, when the cost per pound was materially higher than at present.

Brazil furnishes, of course, by far the largest proportion of the coffee importations of the United States. In the 11 months ending with November, the coffee imports from Brazil amounted, according to the Treasury Bureau of Statistics, to 763,148,514 pounds, while the next quantity came from other South American countries, 91,297,714 pounds; Central America, 64,554,400; Mexico, 21,594,432. Thus, of this largest single importation in the entire list of our imports, sugar excepted, nearly all comes from American countries south of the United States, and this is equally true of sugar excepting that share which is drawn from the Hawaiian Islands.

The United States is by far the largest coffee-consuming country in the world, as will be seen by the following table, which shows the importations of coffee into the principal countries of Europe and into the United States in 1899:

	Consumption.	Per capita.
Russia	18,396,000	.....
United Kingdom	29,120,000	.72
Italy	31,222,000	.98
Austria-Hungary	92,180,000	2.04
France	179,120,000	4.62
German Empire	343,501,000	6.12
United States	801,757,000	10.79

The following table shows the total imports of coffee into the United States by fiscal years from 1893 to 1901, also estimate for the calendar year 1901:

Year.	Imported, pounds.	Price, cents.	Consumption, per capita, pounds.
1893	563,469,068	14.0	8.31
1894	550,934,337	16.4	8.30
1895	652,208,976	14.7	9.33
1896	580,597,915	14.6	8.11
1897	737,645,670	11.0	10.12
1898	870,514,455	7.4	11.68
1899	831,827,063	6.5	10.79
1900	787,991,911	6.5	9.81
1901	854,871,310	7.3	10.60
1901*	1,060,000,000	....	.....

"FRAUD AND FAILURE"

BISHOP POTTER'S CRITICISM OF PROHIBITION.

Dr. Rainsford Also Talks Out Plainly on Law for the Rich and the Poor.

At New York, last Monday evening, before the Church Club Bishop Potter, in an address on the subject of opening Sunday saloons, said:

"The Governor has changed his ground because he satisfied himself that the country vote in the Legislature would be overwhelmingly against submitting the question of local option to vote in this city. It has been decreed by the powers that be that there is to be no modification of the excise law in its relation to Sunday opening in this city, so the question has become an academic one and not worth while for us to debate. But there are some points in the history of temperance legislation to which attention might be profitably directed. Our temperance legislation has been singularly infelicitous.

"I am told that a drunken man, for instance, is not responsible as a sane man is, under the law, for the commission of a crime. We have been educated in America along the line of moral fallacy. The attitude of the law to the drunkard is wrong, for the drunkard reached his condition by his own act.

"The next blunder was in the nature of vicious sentiment. In John B. Gough's pictures in his temperance agitation the drunkard was always a victim, a victim of the rumseller, always a victim—almost a martyr. That is false sentiment, as the other is false law. The drunkard, is not to be regarded with the compassion meted to the man who commits an act under the influence of temporary emotion. The whole theory of Gough's teaching was false and rotten.

"The next error is prohibition. Wherever it has triumphed it has educated a race of frauds and hypocrites. In Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont today by actual statistics the consumption of certain preparations is larger than anywhere else in the country. One of these is a sarsaparilla which has 17 per cent of alcohol, another is a compound with 27 per cent of alcohol, another is a bitters with 61 per cent of alcohol. A good claret has 10 per cent of alcohol, and a great number of the advocates of prohibition in those states which have enacted it into law are large consumers of these and similar preparations. In prohibition states of the West it has become a grotesque failure. These things eat out the foundations of morals.

"Well, we are going to persist in this course here in New York; screw up the front doors on Sunday; open the back gate, nurse hypocrites, open the way to the continuance of police blackmail; and we're going to call this manliness and Christian!

"Yet there are other policies, although no one representing the other side has spoken of them. In England public-spirited men have undertaken to acquire the properties where liquors are sold. Suppose as much time had been put into the acquisition of the breweries in and about this island as into some other properties, and that the men doing this had put their activities into establishing wholesome and innocent beverages, wholesome and innocent recreations and wholesome and innocent social intercourse. Suppose that they had tried to uderstand the science behind the whole drink problem, as the temperance workers have never tried to do. We are told that nations are stupefying themselves with drink and that the only remedy is to cut off the beverage. These people have not tried to find out what the beverage stands for. The man whom we buried at Yonkers today, Mr. William Cochran, has done more for temperance than any 10 men here by building a great inn. There are 1000 members in a club there now. There is the line along which the church must learn to move.

"Prohibition is an impudent fraud. It is an impudent failure. Education, transformation, these are the notes the church has got to learn to strike."

Dr. Rainsford said: "It is only another instance of sacrificing the City of New York to the State of New York. If an election had not been pending, Governor Odell would unquestionably have given us a chance to say something on the question of local option. The question of the saloon is 'up to us' in a sense few people of the Episcopal Church appreciate. You very seldom go into saloons. It would be an excellent thing if you did. They are splendid places in which to study human nature and get an idea of the life of New York. The man who says that we have got to wipe out the saloons in New York—I can't talk with him. I must insist on sanity, and I hold that he is not sane. To begin with, the saloon fills a real need in this city of half-homeless people. Many very respectable persons here are homeless parts of the year. You don't realize, again, the enormous number of half-homed people here.

"I can't conceive of a man well informed saying that we are going to turn our day into the continental Sunday. The working people are not going to let their Sunday go. Would to God we could get the rich people of New York to keep the day as the working people do. The American Sunday is not going down. You can't give the people rest by closing the shops that open Sunday, because poor people cannot keep food over night in stinking tenements. If I had my way I would do all I could to stop the evil saloons, but I would do all I could to establish all the games possible on Sunday afternoons. The saloons of New York are not going to be closed. Mr. Low can't close them. No police force is going to be able to close them. You can't suppress gambling in New York. Do you suppose that when people read about rich men laying odds on their horses and reaping fortunes, you can stop children making petty bets? What nonsense! How queer that we are afraid to have things come out; that there is so much English in us that we blink at facts."

SEVERE WINTER IN NORTH

Fifty Degrees Below Zero at Dawson—Stormy at Skagway.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 5.—The steamer Amur, arriving this afternoon from Skagway, brought 14 passengers from Dawson. They report that the weather in the North is at the present time very severe, having been 50 degrees below zero last Tuesday morning in Dawson. Two persons are said to have died from exposure near Dawson two weeks ago. Around Skagway the weather has been very stormy. The steamer City of Topeka was caught in a gale and a small amount of damage was done to her.

Funeral of J. R. Leisy.

The funeral of J. R. Leisy, who died at his home on the corner of East Ninth and East Clay streets Friday night, was held yesterday afternoon from the First United Evangelical Church, East Tenth and East Sherman streets. Rev. H. L. Pratt, pastor, conducted the services. Lone Fir cemetery was the place of interment. Mr. Leisy and family came from Wheatland about two years ago, and had been employed at the Pennoyer saw mill. He was about 45 years old. A wife and two children survive him.

Pears'

To keep the skin clean is to wash the excretions from it off; the skin takes care of itself inside, if not blocked outside.

To wash it often and clean, without doing any sort of violence to it requires a most gentle soap, a soap with no free alkali in it.

Pears', the soap that clears but not excoriates.

Sold all over the world.
