to the public high school grade. Also, that only a little over 2 per cent of the population were being educated in private schools, universities, colleges, professional, and normal schools. This minority of the population are, therefore, mainly the recipients of public and private educational benefits, for which the United States is so noted. Now, let us take a general glance at the present scope of public education in the State of Oregon for its population of 412,502.

BLOOD HUMORS

BUT FOR THEM MOST PEOPLE WOULD BE WELL AND STRONG

—not merely free from pimples and other eruption, but from internal derangements that more and more imperil the whole system.

These vitiated or morbid fluids affect all the organs and functions, membranes and tissues.

Hood's Sarsaparilla removes all humors, cures all their inward and outward effects, makes the blood pure, vigorous and rich. Try Hood's.

"I had sores on one of my limbs and was nearly crippled. The medicine prescribed did not do me any good, and I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. I am now well and strong."—Benjamin Fisher, Beaver Creek, Or.

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for the last five years, and think we could not get along without it. We always keep it in the house. It is an excellent blood purifier, and has saved me from a number of serious ailments."—Fred F. Vernon, Canton, S. D.

"We find there is no better blood purifier than Hood's Sarsaparilla. Last Spring the glands of my brother's neck were swollen. He took two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and was cured."—Miss Mary Laviolette, box 138, Fairhaven, Wash.

"I have been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for eruptions, and two bottles of the medicine have benefited me more than any other prescription I have ever taken."—Carric Cormana, Harrington, Wash.

"For many years I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier, and while using it for that purpose have found it very beneficial for catarrh. It is an excellent medicine for all blood diseases. My husband has been cured of a very distressing case of eczema, by the use of two bottles."—Mrs. W. T. Glaze, E. 14 Cataldo avenue, Spokane, Wash.

RAPE FOR THE DAIRY.

Good Also for Poultry, Hogs and Sheep, and is Very Hardy.

GREENLEAF, Feb. 20.—(To the Editor.)—I have found Dwarf Essex rape such a valuable feed for milk cows that I would like to correct through the Oregonian an impression which prevails to some extent that it cannot be fed to cows in quantity without giving an offensive odor to their milk. As Dr. Mithy counts has explained at farmers' meetings, the plant contains a volatile oil, which causes it to give an unpleasant odor to the cow's breath, as her milk, but this is so only immediately after she has eaten it. For a year or two I have fed large quantities of rape to a couple of cows, giving them their ration of it after each milking. Long before the next milking time the volatile oil has been given off by way of the lungs, and there is no trace of it in the milk. I have always cut it and fed it in the stall. Where cattle can be turned into the field to feed it off, which is a far more economical method, an hour immediately after milking should suffice for the feeding, for were it fed off too closely, so that it would take the animal longer than that to get her ration, it would be available for a long time. After that hour there would be ample time for the odor to disappear before another milking time.

The great advantage of the rape plant is that it is a good grower in the Fall, if sown after some early crop, and will stand in the field all Winter, ready for use when wanted, whereas the Fall growth of clover and the grasses must be cut and stored before they are available in mid-Winter, and in Western Oregon there is no weather in the late Fall that will permit the curing of hay. Where there is a silo, the largest crop of feed from an acre would be a crop of rape, and with this some feed strong in protein must be combined for profitable milk production. Rape, though belonging to the cruciferous family with the turnip—a poor dairy food—is entirely different from the turnip, and thus a good milk producer. Moreover, a crop of it can be grown between two successive crops of ensilage corn, furnishing the same family with a good growth when the days begin to grow warmer, and supplies another crop that can be fed in March or April, in time to plow the ground for succeeding Spring crop.

The rape plant is a good feeder and responds well to a heavy dressing of stable manure. Furthermore, thorough cultivation will double its yield, so that, though I have had good success with it broadcast, I find it pays to sow it in drills 30 inches apart and stir the soil after with the cultivator. It is a very hardy plant, and has succeeded well here sowed every month in the year, though if caught by heavy frosts just after the seed has sprouted and before well rooted, the young plants may be killed. Mowing too near the ground, or feeding too close, will kill many of the plants. I avoid plowing too close to the ground, and get two or three crops of feed and a crop of seed in 12 months.

Hogs are fond of rape, and grow rapidly if they have all they want of it. Chickens grow fatter or lay well on rape pasture, with little or no grain. A large percentage of the mutton of England is fattened on rape pasture alone.

Cures Colds at Once

During the last year more sufferers from colds, whether in the head or lungs, have been cured by Halpruner's Wonderful Medicine than all the other medicines combined.

What is the use of wasting words and suffering with a cold when you can get relief within two minutes time after taking Halpruner's?

People who know the value of Halpruner's Wonderful Medicine never have colds any more—they keep this remarkable medicine in their homes, where they can get at it quickly as soon as they feel the first symptoms of cold.

For a cold in the head they inhale the vapor by pouring a few drops of the medicine in their hands and holding them beneath the nostrils—also taking a teaspoonful every hour or so. The inhalations give immediate relief and the internal dose drives out the cold and the cause of it.

If the cold is in the throat or lungs they rub the medicine in until they know it has penetrated deeply and is doing the work it was intended to do. Internal doses are also good for a cold in the throat and lungs, for Halpruner's seeks the seat of the trouble and removes the cause quickly and permanently.

All druggists sell Halpruner's Wonderful Medicine—50c and $1 a bottle. If you find one who does not ask him to get it for you. If he will not get it and tries to talk you out of it go to the next drug store and demand the genuine Halpruner's.
