A GREAT CHANCE

We are closing out 500 unclaimed tailor-made suits in worsteds, Scotch chevots, blue and black serges, etc., at one-third their actual value. You may wonder why we sell these garments at such prices. It's no secret, for that is exactly what has built up our business, made it such a wonderful success. When we sell garments of such value at these prices, it absolutely shuts out competition, and pays us. Every pleased customer is a walking and talking advertisement, and we cannot buy newspaper space that can touch this sort of advertising. If you find one exaggerated word in our statements about these unclaimed garments, we will pay for your time and expense in calling, whether you live in the city or out.

After Two Hundred Years

Three years ago an instrument was made to simplify piano-playing, and a new word was coined to give it a name. Today that word is embodied in the language of every civilized people on the globe, and symbolizes to thousands upon thousands of human beings one of the happiest elements of home life.

The splendid success achieved by the Pianola is natural, as the world has been preparing for it for almost two hundred years.

RUN ON A SAVINGS BANK

Institution, However, Is on Easy Street—Cause for Alarm Unknown.

DETROIT, Feb. 24.—A run was started on the Jefferson-avenue branch of the Dime Savings Bank about noon, and soon after 2 o'clock it spread to the bank itself at the corner of Griswold and Fort streets. Depositors were paid as fast as the accounts could be checked and the currency could be counted out. At 3 o'clock, the regular hour for closing the bank, it was crowded with anxious depositors who wanted to close their accounts. Instead of closing the bank the directors decided to hold open until 6 o'clock. At that hour the line of people waiting for admission to the bank extended for almost a block. President Livingston addressed them from the steps of the bank, and said the bank would open at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, and every depositor would be paid in full.

It is impossible to learn what was the direct cause of the run. It is said that a Polish depositor saw a sign on the door Saturday announcing that the bank was closed because of its being Washington's birthday and a legal holiday, and started the report that the bank had closed. Help was offered by the other local banks, but was declined.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.

Prince Henry of Prussia and suite, accompanied by the welcoming delegations from Baltimore and the German Embassy, arrived here at 10:30 this morning, promptly on schedule time. From that hour until his departure at midnight, the sailor brother of the Emperor of Germany was the cynosure of eyes. He was everywhere greeted with applause. The day was one round of ovations. The Prince called on President Roosevelt and met a distinguished company at the White House, immediately after his arrival. He then repaired to the German Embassy, where President Roosevelt returned his call. Later, the Prince called and left his card with all the foreign Ambassadors. These gentlemen, with the Foreign Minister, were afterwards received by the Prince at the German Embassy. This was one of the most notable functions of the day. A most notable and pleasing feature of the day was the visit of the Nation's guest to the halls of Congress, while both bodies were at work. The dinner given by President Roosevelt at the White House tonight closed the honors bestowed on the royal visitor by official Washington today.

A Most Notable Assemblage.

The affair was on an elaborate scale, and brought together a most distinguished company. It was an assemblage such as has rarely, if ever, before gathered in the White House. To accommodate the large number of guests, the dinner table was set in the East room, the decorations of which were on the most magnificent scale ever attempted. An effective and new feature of the decorations was the electric light illumination. Several thousand little electric lights of all colors, and arranged in fanciful designs, supplemented the illumination from the great chandeliers. In the mirrors and windows, the electric light designs were of stars and anchors, emblematic of Prince Henry's duties as a sailor.

The general effect of the decorations in the dining-room was pink and white.

This was especially characteristic of the immense table, which was formed in the shape of a crescent, with the concave side toward the east, where President Roosevelt had his seat. Back of the seats occupied by the President and the royal visitor were draped, from the top of the window, the German and American flags. Music was furnished by the Marine Band, which played a number of German and American patriotic airs.

Prince Henry Arrives.

Shortly before the clock struck 8, Prince Henry arrived with Admiral Evans in an open carriage. As they left the German Embassy, a large crowd had given them a warm greeting, and they were accorded a hearty reception by the large number of people who had assembled around the porte cochere of the White House. The dinner was set for 8 o'clock, and when that hour arrived the guests passed through the Blue room, where the presentations were made, and thence to the dining room. The Prince, with Prince Henry on the right, and Lord Pauncefote, the British Ambassador, on the left of Lord Pauncefote, was the Mexican Ambassador. Opposite the President sat Secretary Hay, while to his right was Dr. von Hollenben, the German Ambassador, and to his left the French Ambassador. To the right of the German Ambassador was the Italian Ambassador, and to the left of the French Ambassador was Chief Justice Fuller. The name of Senator Martin, of Virginia, was originally on the list of those given out as guests at the dinner, but he declined the invitation.

Toasts of President.

During the dinner the President proposed the health of the German Emperor and the German people, saying: "We admire their great past and great present, and we wish them all possible success in the future. May the bonds of friendship between the two peoples ever grow stronger."

President Cancels Tillman's Invitation

TO DINE WITH THE PRINCE

Sensational Sequel to the Decision.

TILLMAN SAYS "NO" TO NOTE

Refuses to Withdraw His Acceptance—Denies That He Is in Contempt, and Proceeds to Abuse Roosevelt.

President Roosevelt recalls his invitation to Senator Tillman to be present at a dinner given to Prince Henry. Before doing this, he had Senator Cockerell see Senator Tillman and ask him to withdraw his acceptance. Tillman said no, and the President canceled the invitation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The President today withdrew his invitation, extended to Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, to attend the dinner to be given tonight in honor of Prince Henry of Prussia at the White House. It is stated that this action on the part of the President was made necessary from the fact that, owing to occurrences on the floor of the Senate last Saturday, the Senator from South Carolina, Senator Martin, of Virginia, a member of the committee on naval affairs, has accepted an invitation in Mr. Tillman's place. The invitation was extended originally to Mr. Tillman, owing to the fact that he is the ranking minority member of the naval affairs committee.

The Letter From the White House.

The following is the letter from the White House, withdrawing Mr. Tillman's invitation to dine there tonight: "White House, Feb. 24.—The President regrets that he is compelled to withdraw the invitation to you to dine tonight at the White House. Very truly yours, "GEORGE B. CROFTLEY, "Secretary to the President."

What Tillman Has to Say.

Commenting upon the letter, Mr. Tillman said: "The President, of course, has the right to invite any one he chooses to dine with him, officially or otherwise, and also has the right to withdraw such invitation. As I am not conscious of having done anything personal or official which gives the President the right to insult me, I am surprised at his action. The invitation to the dinner came to me unsought and unexpectedly, and, so far as the withdrawal is concerned, it is a matter of absolute indifference to me. In the matter of the dinner, it which seems to put me in the condition of unworthiness to meet the President and his guests before final action by the Senate. Prince Henry, the President's guest, comes from a country where custom makes it obligatory upon any man who regards himself a gentleman, to promptly present an insult, and the method is by challenge to a duel. That was once the custom, but it is now obsolete in the United States, and we have been forced as a people here to cling to the old Anglo-Saxon rule of considering the lie as the first blow, and no man could hold up his head in decent society should he, being near enough to answer the lie with a blow, not to give it.

Denies He Is in Contempt.

"As for my being in contempt of the Senate, which I presume is the excuse for this insult at the hands of the President, that I deny. That I have been guilty of a breach of the rules and privileges of the Senate, I admit. The Senate was not sitting as a court, but as a legislative assembly. It has the right to expel me if it sees fit, and I am ready to abide by its judgment and action. It is the right to arrest me and to hold me in custody until it makes disposition of my case, but it has no right to gag me, and the President has no right to judge me guilty of its conduct unless a gentleman unless he believes he would have done just as I did under the circumstances. As to which of us is the gentleman in this matter, in view of the unsought invitation to dinner at the White House, and its independent withdrawal, I am willing to abide by the judgment of all brave and self-respecting men."

Sensational Sequel to Decision.

There was a sensational sequel to the decision of the President to eliminate Senator Tillman from the list of dinner guests. The President sent for Senator Cockerell, of Missouri, and asked him, as his friend and Democratic colleague of Tillman, to suggest to the latter the propriety of withdrawing his acceptance of the dinner invitation. The President explained his attitude in the matter, and said that, in view of the contempt proceedings, Tillman's presence would not only be an affront to the Senate, but a discourtesy to Prince Henry. Cockerell accepted the commission, and later telephoned to the President that Tillman absolutely refused to withdraw his acceptance, in response to the President's suggestion. The President immediately canceled the invitation in a note he dispatched directly to Tillman shortly before noon today. In this note, which was very brief and formal, the President stated he regretted that he was obliged to withdraw the invitation.

Simultaneously, Senator Martin, of Virginia, was invited to take Tillman's place at the dinner, as the next ranking Democratic member of the Senate naval affairs committee.

Palma Formally Elected President.

HAVANA, Feb. 24.—Dr. Tomas Estrada Palma and Senor Esteves were today formally elected by the Electoral College respectively first President and first Vice-President of the Cuban Republic. Senor Esteves was also elected.

Brewery Employes' Strike Falls.

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 24.—The threatened strike of brewery employes, which was expected to become effective this morning, has failed. Only about half of the men went out. The proprietors did not anticipate any serious interruption to business.

Simon's Vote Creates Surprise.

The Foraker amendment to the Philippine bill, which was defeated in the Senate today, was originally the Mitchell amendment, and there is a feeling that Foraker mismanaged matter by trying to secure a still greater reduction. However, the amendment was defeated by Democratic votes. They were against it, with few exceptions, because it would have made the bill better, and that they desired to prevent the division of states on this vote was remarkable, as at least a dozen states split, but the votes of three Pacific Coast Senators, Bard, Perkins and Simon, were a surprise, as the Mitchell amendment was believed to be in the interest of Pacific Coast trade with the Orient. Turner voted against it, for party reasons, as did Dubois and Helfield, but what it offered to Pacific Coast Republicans is not known. Only a few Democrats voted for the reduction, after all the prattling that has been heard. Many promised it support some days ago who voted no when the roll was called.

Simon Leaves for Oregon.

Senator Simon left for Oregon tonight, after casting his vote in support of the Philippine tariff bill. The Senator has concluded, after extended correspondence with his leaders in Portland, that it is advisable for him to be on the field and manage his own campaign. It is not now known when he will return to Washington.

Curious Thing About Democrats.

The Democrats, in their desire to protect McLaughlin and Tillman, today, perhaps had a Constitutional point in view, as the matter has never yet been determined, but the fact remains that they were condoning the offense of Saturday, while the Republicans sought to punish them. The opinion of those who supported President pro tem. Fry was that these Senators must be punished, and
