Board of Trade Demands Better System of Repairs.

STREET RAILWAYS CENSURED

Resolution Is Passed Calling Attention of Board of Public Works and City Engineer to Wretched Condition of City Avenues.

The Board of Trade demands better streets and sidewalks and better methods of keeping the avenues of the city in re-pair. At last night's meeting of the board strong resolutions were adopted, condemning the negligence of car companies, which have permitted their roadbeds to deteriorate and ruin the city pavements The attention of the Board of Public Works and the City Engineer were called to the poor methods now in force of lay-ing sidewalks and crossings. The Board of Trade elected 20 delegates to the Oregon and Columbia River Board of Trade, which meets here the last of this month. A resolution in favor of a trans-Pacific cable, laid by public enter-prise, was referred to a special commit-tee. Three members of the Federated Trades were warmly welcomed into the membership of the board, and the event was signalized as marking the beginning of more familiar relations between the mercantile and labor interests of the city. The meeting also indulged in discussion of methods for advertising Portland and ron in the East.

Street Railways Censured.

The committee on street railways, Boise, F. I. McKenna and John Epperly, bmitted the following report, which was

That we, the Board of Trade, in Resolved, That we, the Board of Trade, in the interests of the municipality of Portland hereby consurs the street railway systems, especially those operated on Morrison and Washington streets, for culpable negligence in allowing their roadbeds to deteriorate, and remain permanently out of repair, thus leaving the pavement adjoining the same in the wretched condition, in many places, that now is hereby called, to the lamentable lack of any well devised system in regard to the laying of sidewalks and crossings; by insisting that the same be laid on brick or stone supports, instead of planting them in the mud, as his been the custom for years. Especial attention is called to crossings at all the central street crossings, nearly all of whith are of wooden construction. We are satisfied that stone crossings could be substituted in their stead at a very small additional expense, and at a reduced aggregate cost to property-holders, on account of the greater length of time they would prove serviceable.

Besolved, That we earnestly call the attention of the City Council, the Board of Public Works and the City Engineer to the material heretofore in use for roadbed purposes. It is a well-known and fraquently remarked fact, that said material, consisting of sand and decomposed rock, is not suitable for the purposes to which it is applied, as, within a short time after the rains begin, it disintegrates into mud. The taxpayer is then compelled to pay for carting away the material which property-holders have already been at great expense in placing there. If the streets cannot be made serviceable by the use of the best material to be had, it would be far better to leave the natural surface of the roadbeds undisturbed. Resolved, That all contracts for city work should be backed by genuine bonds, said bonds to be strictly enforce in all cases where work is not done according to contract.

Pacellutions revolved.

Pacific Cable Discussed.

Resolutions protesting against the probable subsidizing by the Government of a trans-Pacific cable were referred to a special committee, composed of N. W. Roun-tree, J. L. Martin and A. H. Breyman. The resolutions cited that a company of private individuals is prepared to lay cable, and that this company be not im-peded by grants to any other that may seek a bounty from the Government. J. Annand, representing the Commercial Pa-cific Cable Company, which proposes to work without subsidy, assured the board work without subsidy, assured the board that Portland would have the same rates on messages as would have the same rates on messages as would San Francisco, the headquarters of the company. He said that the promoters of the project have offered to transmit messages to Honolutu for not more than 50 cents per word, and to the Philippines and China for not more than $1 per word. The latter rate would effect a saving over present charges of not less than $1 35 per word. In two years s company agreed to reduce the rate to Honolulu to $6 cents per word.

Belegates to Greater Board of Trade. A special committee of three members, of which Seneca Smith was chairman, of which beneca smith was chairman, nominated 20 delegates to the Oregon and Columbia Basin Board of Trade. The nominations were approved. They were: F. E. Beach, Seneca Smith, Samuel Connell, F. I. McKenna, William Killingsworth, H. W. Scott, A. L. Mohler, Thomas worth, H. W. Cruthers, F. C. Judson, J. W. Chuthers, J. W. Chuthers, F. C. Judson, J. W. Chuthers, J. W. Chuthers, F. C. Judson, J. W. Chuthers, J. Guinean, J. W. Cruthers, R. C. Judson, Clifford J. Owen, Adolph Dekum, W. L. Boise, L. B. Seely, B. Lee Paget, I. G. Daridson, P. J. Jennings, G. G. McNa-mara, Fred Merrill, L. Y. Kendy. The board voted to become a member of the Civic Improvement Association.

Union Delegates Received.

When the session was about half fin-ished, G. Y. Harry, H. C. Gurr and H. Mc-Connaughey, a committee from the Federated Trades, was received. The board ad requested the Federate Trades to cooperate, and had invited representatives of the labor unions, in their individual functions, to become members. The three members of the committee each made speeches, assuring the board of the good will of the Federated Trades and of the desire of the labor union to enter into any movement for advancing the interests of the city. The organization of the several unions and their amalgamation in the several unions and their amalgamation in the sederated Trades were explained. President Beach responded in words complimentary to the committee and the unions.

How to Advertise Oregon.

In the discussion of best ways of adver-tising Oregon abroad, a letter from Cap-tain H. L. Wells, of San Jose, was read, The board was highly pleased with the suggestions it contained. The letter was as follows:

bensive, too dull, too voluminous. What we need is an attractive art booklet, with scener, and a few views of industries and with and a few views of industries and with a somewhat general description of the state and its advantages and attractions, not so long that it will not be read through, and not so day that it will not be interesting to itself. The object should not be so much to give detailed information as to increase and strengthen the interest aroused by the advertisement. Then I would have separate booklets on the various industries, so that a man interested in the fruit business will not have sent him a book that says a little about fruit and a goo

A separate little booklet for fruit, for mining, A separate little booklet for fruit, for mining, for timber, for general farming, for stock, for dairying, etc., would each do more good when sent to the right party than a more costly booklet embracing everything. The postage would be less and the results greater. In appealing of booklets I cannot urge too strongly that they be highly artistic, the best the engraver and printer can do. Thousands of dollars have been wasted in advertising Oregon in cheap pamphlets. Whatever printed matter goes out does so as the representative of the state. If it is first-class the recipients will be impressed with the idea that the state is first-class also. Just the reverse effect is created by cheap printing. Fine printing and engraving is worth all it costs in advertising. Another matter I would speak of, and that is personal letters. As I said before, the advertisement is not worth so much as the work that is done afterwards to make that advertisement effective. Every inquirer should have a personal letter written him. You cannot invest 2 cents in postage to better advantage. By saving postage of bundles of ill-assorted and cheap boom literature by this system of small booklets, and investing that postage in personal letters, wonderful results can be obtained. Men like to be written to personally, and there

Men like to be written to personally, and there is, in nearly every letter of inquiry, some point that might be made in such a personal letter. A general form might be prepared, to be varied according to direumstances.

Possibly some other citizen in the same town has been cut to Coron. Possibly some other citizen in the same town has been out to Oregon investigating, and you could refer to him. This would require you to keep a register of all inquirers and visitors. This is best done by what is known as the card system. It could be kept in two subdivisions, first by subjects in which the person is interested, and these subdivided by states and towns. Each card should have noted on it anything special about the case and the dates of letters, booklets sent, etc., and final disposition of the case, if known. This means some work and the employment of a competent secretary, with stenographic help, but it also secretary, with stenographic help, but it also means practical results, and that is what you

"THE PRIDE OF JENNICO."

ler melodrama, which keeps moving right along with amazing rapidity, played at the Marquam last night to a smaller house than it deserved, for both play and company are well worth seeing. It was the first time it had been seen here, and naturally those who braved the elements to behold it were somewhat curious as to its plot. That they all appeared amply satisfied, both with the story and its outcome, may be taken as a sincere compliment to the dramatist.

The story hinges on the wedding of an adventurous Princess with a youth whose family pride will permit him to marry only a woman of royal blood, Disliking to be married because she is a Princess she changes places with her maid, and marries him under the guise of the Princess, making him believe all the while that she is still the waiting woman. When he finally begins to exhibit symptoms of dissatisfaction with his low-born bride, she leaves him, and his efforts to win her back, in spite of the opposition of a knavish Prince who wants to marry her himself, afford plenty of opportunity for lively situations.

Frances Neilsen, as the Princess Ottuic, is the star of the support. She is an actress endowed with much natural talent to which she has added by an attrac. tive personality and pretty face, and her acting was really a pleasure. Wallace acting was really a pleasure. Wallace Worsely is a fine figure of a game noble-man as Jennico, and the remainder of the company are all that is necessary. Same bill until Saturday night.

Jack Symonds at the Baker. Jack Symonds, comedian, who will be among the features of next week's vaudeville programme at the Baker, will appear in Portland by special permission of Manager Meyerfeldt, of the Orpheum, San Francisco, where he will appear the week after he is seen in Portland. Symonds is one of the best-known minstrels on the stage, baying heat featured in section who are carpenters, were employed on the work. In one of the rooms stage, having been featured in nearly all of the leading troupes. His work is said to be original, as well as funny. There are many other star features on next week's programme including week's programme, including the great Du Bell, whose act is said to be the greatest of its kind. The programme will begin with the matinee Sunday after-noon. Seats are now on sale.

'The Sultan's Daughter" at Cordray's The Jessie Shirley Company's opening a comedy for laughing purposes only, with funny plot, text incisively witty and recommendation that is fulf of laughable situations.

The story is of a wealthy New York art collector, who purchases a valuable painting entitled, "The Sultan's Daughter." Daniel Sully.

The sale of seats for Daniel Sully in "The Parish Priest" will open this morning at 10 o'clock. Next Monday and Tuesday nights Mr. Sully will be the attraction at the Marquam Grand Theater. The play that Daniel Bully is presenting "The Parish Priest," has earned the regutation of being one of the most delightfully interesting productions of the day. There is no straining after effects, no hidden meaning, no offensive situations or dialogues; but everywhere and ever the interest is held by fascinating pictures that are self-that are self-th that appeal to the heart. Daniel Sully in the title role looks and acts it to per-fection. His sweet niece, Neilie, beloved and troubled, wins everybody's affection while "Big Jim" wins the highest ad-miration for his manly courage. It is a story of life in the Pennsylvania coal regions, and its scenes and incidents are founded on the mistakes of ambition, the struggles of love, and the victory of righteousness. There are no sermons, no interjections of creedal aphorisms nor anything to offend. Daniel L. Hart the author, has sketched with a dainty pen, and the "Parish Priest" is as breezy, and the victory of the state of the priest of the pungent, amusing and charming as a play can be. Leonora Jackson.

A rare treat for Portland music-lovers is announced in the forthcoming appearance at the Marquam Grand Theater next Monday afternoon of Leonora Jackson, one of the world's greatest violinists and undoubtedly the greatest woman violin-ist. Upon the occasion of her appearance here last season Miss Jackson took the big audience which had turned out to hear her by storm, and her fame as a violinist of international reputation was fully sustained. The searching beauty of her tone, the purity of her sentiment, her earnest concentration and fine musical in

FLOOD IN HIS CELLAR

SALOON-KEEPER SAYS BREAKING DAM CAUSED Pr.

He Therefore Asks $1600 Damages Which Owners of Dam Refuse to Pay-News of the Courts.

The question whether the breaking of a dam or excessive rainfall caused a flood is the issue in the suit of George Zil-linger against Alfonso Debendetti, Angelo Sereghino, Lorenzo Simenca and Charles Chilippell to recover $1600 damages. The trial of the case was begun yesterday before Judge George and a jury, and will be concluded today. Zillinger conducts the Seven Corners saloon, at the corner of East Twenty-first and Division streets, and north of his place the defendants have a tract of 45 acres of land leased and used as a vegetable garden. Zil-linger contends that early in the morning of January 13, 1901, a dam put in by the defendants for irrigation purposes broke, and the water rushed down Di-vision street and into the cellar of his house and into the yard. He asks $1300 on account of damage to the house, $250 ecause of wines and liquors destroyed, and $150 by reason of loss occasioned by interruption to his business.

Zillinger testified that he was awakened by hearing loud noises in the saloon and he thought burglars were trying to break in, so he got up, and, taking his revolver, went downstairs to see what was the matter. He discovered that it was a flood that was knocking barrels, boxes and other articles about, and causing all the disturbance. On cross-examination Zillinger admitted that while he sued for $1600 he had offered to settle the case for $150, and afterwards was willing to take as little as $75 in settlement.

The defense will be that the dam did ot give way, but, on account of unprecedented rainfall on that day, and for sev-eral days previous, and also several inches of melted snow, a creek in that vicinity became swollen and overflowed, washed out a culvert and caused the damage complained of. An attempt will also be made to show that the City of Portland has since put in a culvert at Twenty-sixth street to prevent a recurrence of the flood, Mr. Zillinger admitted on the witness-stand that there is considerable water now in the cellar of his house, occasioned by the recent rains. The weather records, it is stated, indicate that more than two inches of rain fell on January 12 and 13, 1901. City Attorney J. M. Long and Alex Sweek appear for the plaintiff, and J. A. Strowbridge, Jr., and Ed Mendenhall for the defendants. The jury will visit the scene this morning.

HENKLE USED HIS GUN.

Valentine Henkle, a brewer employed by the Gambrinus Brewery, was tried yes-terday before Judge Cleland and a jury on a charge of shooting at E. Henderson and W. J. In one of the rooms upstairs they had their tools and some finishing hardware, and as they were about to quit for the day they proceeded to lock the door, which they had only done once or twice previously. Henkle was present, and he resented the action as an imputation that he or some member of his family would steat Henderson and Riley's property, and he grabbed the key out of Henderson's hand. Riley tried to take the key from Henkle, and the latter The Jessie Shirley Company's opening broke away and ran down stairs. The time in Judge Sears' court yester day was taken up with the trial of the suit of William Hearn, administrator of the estate of Harriet Mangan, deceased against Rachael and Robert Louttit, to recover $1500. The complaint sets forth that Mrs. Mangan loaned Mrs. Louttit $1000 in August, 1994, and afterward turned over $500 to her for safekeeping.

Claude Strahan and Waldemar Seton appear as plaintiff's counsel, and R. L. Glisan and A. King Wilson are the de-fendant's attorneys. The deposition of Mrs. R. L. Edwards, taken in Chicago, was read, stating that Mrs. Mangan, while confined in Dr. Coe's Sanitarium, shortly efore her death, informed her that she had lent Mrs, Louttit $1000, and also turned ver $500 to her. This witness also said that, judging from the statements made to her by Mrs. Mangan, the money had not been paid back to Mrs. Louttit. Mrs. Louttit testified that she never borrowed $1000 from Harriet Mangan, but did porrow $700, which she paid. She admitted having received $500 from Mrs. Man-gan, and explained that this amount was to be used to pay for a surgical operation which Mrs. Mangan had performed, and for funeral expenses if Mrs. Mangan died. Mrs. Louttit said that Mrs. Mangan did die, and the operation was paid for, and the funeral bill and other things, as directed. The $60 was all expended. She also stated that Mrs. Mangan worked for her, and had confidence in her. They old friends. The trial will be fin ished today.

PORT OF PORTLAND MAKES DE-MAND OF CONTRACTORS.

Drydock People Must Give Bond That Dock Will Operate Successfully-If Not, No Dock.

Faber, Du Faur & Donnelly, of New York, whose plans for a floating dry-dock were accepted by the Port of Portdock were accepted by the Port of land Commission recently, have be emptorily asked whether they will a bond that the dock as built under their superintendence will operate successfully. If they decline to give such a bond the Commissioners will, inferring from opinions expressed by them at their meeting yesterday, award the contract to any other firm whose plans will meet the wants of the port.
From a letter received from Faber, Du

Faur & Donnelly, in answer to one sent them by the board of February 19, the firm does not appear to be very anxious to give a bond. The letter stated: "Such a bond is entirely out of our experience or that of any engineer we know. We have consulted bonding companies here and they tell us they have never been asked to give such a bond and say there is nothing to base a bond upon our nego-tiations with you, which have so far been confined to the matter of engineering. charges for plans, etc., and charges for patent royalties in case the dock is built. It is impossible for engineers to act under contract, as their services are mainly in the nature of advice and preparation of plans, etc., which are to form the basis for the contracts, and then to see that the contracts when formed are carried out. We and Mr. Lang are the most in-terested parties in the dock, and we, as engineers, consider it a part of our service to devise and suggest such methods as shall insure to Portland a dock that will meet all the requirements of such structures, and if it is necessary for us to become a party to a bond at the proper time, we are prepared to do so. . . . If the negotiations reach a successful conclusion, we will, under the direction of the Port of Portland's engineers, erect the dock which the port has declared to be most suitable." The letter also stated that the license fee must be paid pro rata with the contract payments for the construction of the dock, and the Port of Portland secured from loss by agreements similar to those entered into by the contractors; that any liability for the operation of the dock should take the form of a contract and may be made at the same time or so re-lated to the construction contract as to completely protect the port of Portland; that Mr. Lang would consider it as a necessary qualification for the candidate for the position of dockmaster that the man should have had previously extended experience in the docking of large vessels on floating docks; that he should be of good standing in this calling, and that with these qualifications the time stary for him to become an efficient and reliable dockmaster with the Lang dock from two to three months. Circumstances would determine whether it would be necessary for the prospective dockmaster to go to Hoboken or not.

If the firm were to act as consulting and constructing engineers, they would expect to have as superintendent and in-spector the same man who acted in a similar capacity in the building of the 10,000-ton Lang dock in the East, and who is now "superintending the construction of another dock from our plans." This man has the firm's en-tire confidence and if he fails to do his duty here he will be replaced at the firm's expense. Concluding, the letter stated that the questions raised were such as come up in every large undertaking and such as the engineers and their clients meet and discuss.

The letter was very unsatisfactory to the Commissioners, and after discussing it they concluded that it did not give the information they wanted—the matter of furnishing a suitable bond. Mr. Adams moved that the following telegram be sent to Faber, Du Faur & Donnelly: "Yours of March 1 received. In consideration of the engineering fee to be paid will you, Long, or both together, bind yourselves in the sum of $150,000, surety company bond, that the dock built under your plans, specifications and superintendwill operate successfully? Answer

Of course all the streets, correctly named, are given, and parks, public buildings and other nent features are indicated. The lines in the Willamette are clearly drawn and the depth of water at all points in the harbor are given. These figures do not appear on any other map of the city that has been published. Besides covering all the details with more clearness than any previous map, this one ipcludes a greater area. It takes in the suburban town of St. Johns and shows the new O. R. & N. extension through that burg. All the lakes and sloughs of the Columbia bottoms appear in color and duly named. In the east the map includes the country beyond Mount Tabor Heights, as far as Monticello Addition and East Portland Homestead. It runs to the county boundary on the south including the details plats of many addi tions not previously put on any published map. It even reaches over into Washing ton County, showing the village of Gar-den Home in the extreme southwest corner of the map. A list of the 306 addi tions to the original Portland plat apcrences enabling any one to readily lo cate the desired addition, by the marginal marks, which divide the surface of the map into 199 squares.

The mechanical execution of the map is of exceptional merit. It was compiled by Huber & Maxwell, civil engineers, and the lithographic work was done by the C. H. Crocker Company, in this city. The various additions bear distinctive tints, and land and water are so colored as to be distinguishable without an effort. present corporate limits are accurately A map of the size and accuracy of detail of this one requires unusual skill and facilities in its execution, and this map is a credit to all who have been connected in any way with its produc-It is distinctly the most workmanlike piece of mapmaking ever done in

Sale of Garland Porcelains. NEW YORK March 6 .- A famous collection of Chinese porcelains, gathered from all parts of the world by the late James A. Garland, vice-president of the First National Bank, has been sold by the trustees of the Garland estate. The sale was private and the consideration was not made public. The collection, which is said to be one of the finest of its kind in the world, was valued, however, at $1,000,000. For the past seven years it has been For the past seven years it has been to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, where it is displayed in 17 cases. It comprises nearly 1500 pieces.
