THE OREGONIAN'S HANDBOOK.

The Oregonian's Handbook tells all about Portland, the city, the river, the water, the 1902 World's Fair, commemorative of the Lewis and Clark expedition to Oregon. The book contains over 150 handsome illustrations, and it is printed on standard book paper. It will be mailed to any address in the United States or Canada for 7 cents a copy.

REMARKS ON HARES AND POUZZERS.—The Belgian hare, which took the country by storm a short time ago, has about died out. It was said by the boomers of the hare that fortunes could be made on them, as they "bred like rabbits," and there was an unlimited demand for them at 30 cents per pound, and that the skins were worth $1 per dozen. Yesterday a commission man who had received a consignment of hares and hare skins made an effort to get rid of them, and, after much trouble, succeeded in selling the live hares at 6 cents per pound, but could get nothing for the dried skins. They were offered to several dealers in furs, who declined to give even a cent apiece for them. Eastern Oregon jackrabbits which are occasionally sent to this market by the ton, and are now in the ground, bring more than the hares. People who have room for raising hares would do much better to go into the chicken business, as poultry and eggs are always in demand. The proper thing to get some good eggs and have a lot of chickens hatched out. Sell most of the roosters in the spring chicken stage, and have the pullets lay eggs until high pressure during their first season, getting them into harness early, when eggs bring a good price, and when everybody's hens begin to lay, and eggs go down and poultry goes up, market the whole lot, and raise a new crop of pullets for next season's work. This is the plan adopted by those who make money out of poultry.

HARD TIMES WITH SEWER.—There is no end of trouble with sewers, and repairs to them cost the city a great deal of money. On Sunday the sewer in Hood street, in front of the city works, broke and a never-failing fountain of sewage broke out. The trouble was caused by the settling of a fill through which the sewer was laid. In other cases a stoppage of sewers is caused where several hundred feet of sewer are put in a street where there are only a few houses, and where, consequently, there is not enough water flowing in the sewer to keep it flushed. On East Burnside street, between East Twentieth and East Twenty-second, the sewer was recently choked with solid matter for a distance of 150 feet, and the work of getting it cleaned out was no small job, and cost a large sum. The sewer in Northrup street was also choked for a distance of 50 feet or more, where boys having broken the branches. There is much trouble these times for the man who has charge of sewer repairing.

APRIL 1 BOON COMES.—Assessments on street and sewer improvements due from those who took advantage of the Hancock bonding act, amounting in all to about $400, which city Treasurer Wells gave notice were payable February 22, are coming in very slowly. Only about $1000 of the $4000 due has been paid in. Persons owing such assessments will do well to bear in mind that they will be delinquent April 1, after which the property will be advertised for sale for delinquency, under the provisions of the charter. As it is a very short time, the April 1, property-owners will do well to pay their assessments at once and save trouble and expense.

TO TAKE TONTINE COMPANY'S PLACE.—Agents of the defunct Tontine Savings Association, of Minneapolis, who were in charge of Pacific Northwest territory, met in Portland yesterday and organized the Pacific Mercantile Company. The capital stock will be $100,000, and the incorporation will be filed in Salem today by Chamberlain & Thomas, attorneys for the company. The officers of the new concern are as follows: President, Fred C. B. Smith, of Seattle; Secretary, H. D. Nadeau, of Spokane; Treasurer, H. T. Denham, of Tacoma; general manager, John P. Olson, of Portland.

BURGLES AGAIN AT WORK.—An unsuccessful attempt to burglarize the saloon of Amacher & Belch, northwest corner of Fourth and Salmon streets, was made Sunday night. A short time after 10 o'clock a man, who was not identified, made, but persons sleeping in the rear of the place were awakened by the noise made by the burglar and frightened them away.

END DAY AT CLEARING-HOUSE.—Transactions at the Portland clearing-house yesterday aggregated $1,122,000, an unusually large amount. The large total was caused by the checks for tax money delivered by Sheriff Frazier to County Treasurer Brooke. Two checks were drawn, one on the First National Bank for $75,000, and one on Ladd & Tilton for $250,000. About $400,000 has previously been turned over to the County Treasurer, making the total collection of taxes to date in excess of $1,000,000.

HUMAN SOCIETY TONIGHT.—Members of the Oregon Human Society will hear tonight that the annual meeting of the society will be held at the Unitarian Chapel this evening. There will be an election of officers for the ensuing year, and arrangements to make for the summer assembly in May and for distribution of prizes to the children of the public schools. All interested in human matters are invited to be present.

SAME OLD "FRIENDS," SAME OLD SENTENCE.—Accused yesterday in the Municipal Court of having morphine unlawfully in their possession, Archibald Ray and Frank Kenney were each sentenced to 90 days in jail, and ordered to pay a fine of $200.

EARLY FISHER GETS THE TROUT.—A number of fishermen who could not wait for the opening of the trout fishing season—April 1—went over Sunday to fish on the Columbia above Vancouver for salmon trout, which are not protected by law. Over a dozen went out on the first car for Vancouver in the morning, and another gang followed on the second car. They scattered themselves along the bank of the Columbia from three to four miles above the Vancouver ferry, and enjoyed fair sport. Oscar Schieth was high line, having caught 11 fine trout about a foot in length each. The others caught less, and a few of them none at all. The fishermen report seeing a wonderful spectacle in the form of thousands of seagulls, which were following an immense school of smelt, which was slowly making its way up to the Sandy. For about three miles from Government Island down the Columbia, which is broad and not very deep there, was crowded with smelt, which could be seen in thousands along the side of the river, and many dead ones were lodged along the bank. The vast swarm of gulls was feeding on them, and had no difficulty at all in catching the fish. Occasionally a thousand or more of the gulls, which had been resting on the water, would rise in a swarm to resume feeding, and, as they would wheel their snowy breasts, looked like a cloud flecked by the sun. The gulls have been following the smelt for many miles, and will follow them into the Sandy, where, as the stream is narrow, it will not be safe for the gulls to go.

THIS SPORT COSTS MONEY.—Few persons probably, even among sportsmen themselves, have an idea of the vast amount of money, in the aggregate, expended during a season in the Northwest on the harmless amusement of shooting "blue rock" earthenware pigeons. One firm alone in the city has just received 200 barrels of these saucer-shaped imitation pigeons, which cost some $7500, and will all be shot to pieces before the end of June. But the cost of the pigeons is only a small part of the cost of the sport. The cartridges, which will be used in shooting them, these cartridges cost about $2 1/2 per 100, or some $27,500, for about 3000 barrels of blue rocks. Of course this expenditure is divided among the sportsmen of the whole Northwest, and is nothing compared to what is expended by them during the hunting season. To a man who does not know there may not appear to be much sport in shooting at blue rock pigeons, but for sportsmen the sport consists in matching one's skill against that of another, and it is necessary for sportsmen to keep their "hand in" by practicing as it is for a piano-player.

ALAS, POOR LITTLE EGYPT!—Somebody with an eye to the artistic has helped himself to the framed picture of Little Egypt, recently left in front of the Bank of America, Washington street, near Sixth, and the dancer does not know whether to feel pleased or otherwise with this evident appreciation of her charms. Little Egypt has been appearing to audiences at the Fredericksburg, and says that Portland is the first town where one thought enough of her to steal her picture. The first day or two the picture adorned the outside of the saloon, two bold English sparrows pecked at the frame, in evident appreciation of the charms it inclosed, but there are other admirers, it appears. Little Egypt is nearly crying her eyes out at the deed of the vandal, who has thus ruthlessly helped himself to a good thing, and her manager is disposed to reward the person if he will return the picture. The dancer is wondering why her picture was not stolen before in some of the towns where she appeared, where art is supposed to be cherished to an extent not known in Portland.

EVENTFUL BICYCLE RIDE.—E. Ostrander, chief clerk in the Northern Pacific general freight department, has just returned from a short visit to his farm at Washington, Wash. Mr. Ostrander started on his trip Saturday afternoon, and he intended to make the run on his bicycle. But above Vancouver his tires gave out and he had to dismount. He was finally reached his farm, and found everything in good condition, and then started home. He crossed the Columbia and, being a new man at the oars, and he says he would have enjoyed the trip greatly if he had not been in danger of taking a bath in the river two or three times. Reaching the Oregon shore, Mr. Ostrander managed to catch a train, and he arrived on schedule time and ready to take up his morning's work.

LICENSE TIME AGAIN.—Licenses for the present quarter have been fairly well paid up. It has not been necessary to issue warrants for the arrest of any one for the non-payment of license. Generally speaking, the first notice sent to delinquents caused them to pay up, but in some cases it was necessary to send more than one. The amount paid into the city treasury for licenses during the quarter ending December 31 was $44,574.92, and it is thought that the fees for the present quarter, which ends next Monday, will amount to something more. A new quarter will begin April 1, and all who require licenses of the Oregonian will do well to remember this and get the matter off their hands as soon as possible.

ATTRACTIVE SPECIAL NUMBER.—The Pacific Monthly, edited by William Bittle Wells, has just issued a Columbia River edition, which contains a great deal of matter which is of interest to Oregonians and to Eastern people. Among the articles which appear in the number are: "The Great Columbia River," by Captain Cleveland Rockwell; "Speelcia," by F. H. Saylor, and "To the Columbia," a poem by Andrew Franzen. The departments conducted by Mr. Wells present the most interesting literary matter, and the sketches of prominent men and women and the excellent illustrations make the number unusually attractive.

ADVERTISING THEIR FAIR.—Great Falls, Mont., is preparing for an exposition in 1906, to celebrate the centennial anniversary of the discovery of the Falls of the Missouri by Lewis and Clark. The merchants of the city have adopted an advertising plan that could be effectively used in connection with the Portland Exposition. At the bottom of letter paper of Great Falls firms is a neat box, inclosing the inscription "Great Falls 1906 Will Celebrate." The suggestion has been made that local business houses take the cue from the Montana city, and advertise the Lewis and Clark Centennial in a similar manner.

THE CASE OF JAMES GRADY.—James Grady was charged yesterday before Municipal Judge Cameron with defacing a building not his own at 61 North First street, in the company of James Bedford. The latter testified that Grady, while drunk, threw a bottle through a window at his lodging-house. "Don't remember the thing about it," asserted Grady. A. W. Wolf testified that he did not know of a state law on which such a charge could be brought against his client. The case was continued.

FINE VOLUMES FROM NEW YORK.—The Oregonian is in receipt of a copy of the report of the Fisheries, Game and Forest Commission of New York for 1901. It is a work of some 450 pages, elegantly printed and beautifully illustrated. It contains much valuable information in regard to fish, game and forestry. Such a work can only be prepared at a large expenditure of time and money, and it is a credit even to the great and wealthy State of New York.

ANNIVERSARY RECEPTION.—All Spanish-American War Veterans, camps and auxiliaries are cordially invited to attend a reception to be given by Gilbert Camp and Auxiliary, No. 1, S. A. W. V. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McKinney, 82 East Tenth street, corner of Stark, on Tuesday evening, March 25, to observe the anniversary of the battle of Malabo.

MEETS TODAY.—The home department of the Woman's Club will hold its regular meeting this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The study topic is interesting, and the question box will be open for discussion. The subject of a restroom for farmers' wives will be further considered.

EASTER SHOE SALE.—Marks Shoe Co. •

AKALAS FOR THE PARK.—A scheme for beautifying the slope west of the City Park, recently purchased by the water committee, and intended to become eventually a part of the park, has been proposed by George Olsen. The scheme is to procure from Cow Creek Canyon, at the southern end of the Willamette Valley, a large number of aspen bushes, which are so numerous there, and transplant them to the slope. It is not necessary to wait till the slope has been laid out or landscaped to do this. If it were done, the slope would be ablaze with the brilliant flowers, and a wonder to behold. The scheme appears feasible enough, as Cow Creek Canyon for miles is lined with aspens, and is a beautiful spectacle when they are in bloom. The bushes would cost nothing, probably, but the expense of digging them, and the Southern Pacific Company would doubtless furnish a car for transporting them here. If the matter were taken in hand promptly, there is time yet this Spring to have the scheme carried out.

POET FINED $20.—A love spat between Alice Sibley and J. L. Post was investigated yesterday by Municipal Judge Cameron, when the woman charged Post with slapping her face. "I have known Post for three weeks," she testified. "He thought he owned me, and when another fellow came along he got jealous, and slapped me with his open hand, real hard. He's a mean thing." "It was all because of my jealous disposition. Let me go this time, Judge, and I'll never go near him," pleaded Post, who was very much obliged. "I'm sure, if you would," retorted the girl. Post, who was defended by Attorney A. Wolf, was fined $20.

DEATH OF MRS. WHITEWATER.—Hattie T. Whittemore, wife of Chester A. Whittemore, president of the Irwin-Hodson Company, died at her home, 372 Fourteenth street, Friday last, after a lingering illness, which was caused by pneumonia. She was a native of Ohio. She was a sister of the late Ben C. Irwin. She leaves a mother, a sister, and a brother, J. B. Irwin, who is with the Irwin-Hodson Company, to mourn her loss.

THIS CHILD A FORGER?

Signed His Parents' Name to a School Excuse.

The legality of a child's note was brought before the Board of Education at its meeting last night in a manner that was amusing were it not for its serious features. A boy, following the lead of his father, had signed his name to a school excuse, and the board was called upon to decide whether or not to accept it. The boy's father, who is a well-known merchant in the city, had signed the excuse for his son, who was absent from school. The board decided to accept the excuse, but the father's name was not on it. The board decided to accept the excuse, but the father's name was not on it.

THE BOY, WHOSE NAME WAS SMITH, was about 8 years old, and was a pupil in the Thompson School. Director Williams, who had looked into the matter, did not think the youngster should be suspended. "No child who is of the age of understanding would commit such an act," said Mr. Williams. "This child might have written a note and signed the name of his parents. He did not know as he was a pupil of the school, and he signed a pupil of that age should be suspended himself."

City School Superintendent Rigler spoke of the habit of boys playing marbles on their way to school and being reported tardy. Mr. Williams did not approve of the marble game, but he would not be in favor of suspending children for it. The board of the school charged Professor Rigler suggested that such guilty children be switched.

"That might be right, but they should not be suspended," said Mr. Williams. The boy was reinstated in his class, after a general discussion of the case.

The board received notice that the monthly rental of the room added to the Albion Central School would be increased from $10 to $25. As no neighboring rooms could be obtained Director Warren suggested that a portable schoolhouse be constructed. The board favored the erection of one portable schoolhouse, but no action was taken further than to refer it to Mr. Williams for inquiry.

Superintendent Rigler stated that the five months' term of the night schools was nearing an end, and he asked when they should be closed. He was instructed to close them Friday night, if in his judgment they should be closed at that time.

A communication was received from M. E. Thompson, asking whether the district would send a block of 100 lots in Multnomah for $150. An offer of $100 for the south half of the block was made, and both propositions were referred to Directors Williams and Warren for investigation.

The application of Principal Jarvis, of the Harrison-Street School, for additional chairs, was referred to Director Williams. The salaries of the janitors of the Holaday and Clinton Kelly Schools were increased $3 a month.

BOERS MAY COME HERE.
 Looking for Admissible Lands for Permanent Homes.

William Reid, at the instance of Commissioner Hermann, has been investigating the possible openings for colonies of Boers in Oregon. It appears from the information received by Secretary Hay from the United States Consul at Bombay that the Boer prisoners now confined in Ahmednagar expect to be given their liberty in the near future, and that when they return to their native country, are looking to the Pacific Coast to find homes in the future. For those who have not any money, information concerning the public land is asked, and this has already been furnished by the Land Office. There are, however, among the prisoners, many men of means, burghers who did not leave everything behind them when they accompanied a guard of British soldiers to India. These men desire to buy small farms which they can cultivate, and Mr. Reid is looking for lands that will suit them. They are said to be sober, industrious and frugal, and Mr. Reid, who has lived among them, thinks they would make a valuable class of settlers.

The climate of Oregon, in his opinion, will be well suited to the Boers, who could hardly endure the rigors of an Eastern winter. Although there is less rainfall here than in the Transvaal, the temperature is much the same, and the absence of extremes of either heat or cold would make the burghers feel thoroughly at home.

Mr. Reid is puzzled by the statement that the Boers soon expect their liberty, as he had read everything that has come out of London in the shape of Boer news, and has discovered no indication of any intention of the part of the British to free their captives. If it is the intention to free them, however, there can be no question of offending England by allowing them to settle on American soil, as they would be entitled to the same privileges as any other class of immigrants.

Mr. Reid has already replied to Secretary Hermann's letter, giving such information as he had at hand, and is making further investigations. He was for five years president of the State Board of Immigration, and is thus well qualified to attend to the matter.

MAY BE STRIKE IN MAY

MILLWORKERS GENERALLY ARE DISSATISFIED.

Sawmill Employes Follow Sash and Door Men in Making Demands on Their Employers.

There are few new developments in the trouble, or threatened trouble, between the planing mill proprietors and their employes, although the men in some of the mills talk openly of going into a strike in May, unless their demands for a nine-hour day are conceded to. In other mills, where a good rate of wages prevails, the employes are well satisfied, and will probably remain at work, even in the event of a union-ordered strike. The Federated Trades has given its support to the union, and has thus far been the only body to deal officially with the mills. A member of the union said yesterday:

"What we want is higher wages. Our endeavor has been so far to secure a basic rate of $2 a day, for unskilled labor—that is, for men employed about the yards and in the mills who do not require any special knowledge to perform their duties. This, as far as we can learn, has not been granted. We shall adopt measures to bring about our ends, but just what we intend to do in the matter we do not care to say at present."

The scale to be paid we have not yet taken any action, and it will be a difficult matter to settle. There are so many different occupations in a mill, and the scale of wages paid by the different concerns varies so widely that we are not ready to make any formal demand. Our only object is to see that better wages are paid all along, and that the men get the first benefit of it. The president of the union is J. A. Bushman, and the secretary F. C. Smith. It is in flourishing condition, and daily adding members to its forces. One mill, Inman, Poulsen & Co., has acceded in advance to its demands. The others are yet to be heard from.

FAVORS THE UNION.

Lewiston Indorses the Commercial Bodies' Federation.

Secretary Moore, of the Portland Board of Trade, has received a letter from President Lewis of the Lewiston Commercial Club, stating that the organization which he represents is in favor of the proposed federation of commercial associations in the Columbia River Basin. In his letter he says: "This association is favorably inclined to the plan of the Portland Board of Trade for the federation or other equitable combination of the commercial organizations of the Columbia River Basin, so far as we are informed on the subject of your plan. 'Something over a year ago we submitted the different commercial associations of that portion of the Columbia River Basin, lying east of the Cascade Mountains, on a proposed plan for the federation of such associations, the object being to organize for concerted effort in such matters as the opening of the rivers to navigation, advertising of the resources of the inland Empire, promotion of immigration and development of our resources. We received a general expression of interest in such a movement, but the time seemed not to be ripe for its consummation. 'Perhaps your greater resources which enable you to send efficient deputies from town to town will result in more effectual agitation, and a consequent perfecting of the proposed organization.'"
