Preliminary a Fizzle.

The preliminary between Jack Reilly, of Oakland, and Jim Duff, of Portland, was a fizzle. Relly was far and away the better man of the two, but what was to have been an eight-round go ended ab-ruptly in the second, when Duff declared he had been fouled, and refused to fight further. The contest was awarded to which was the verdict of the crowd

The attendance was considerably lighter than for several contests previous. For some renson the public apparently did not expect the fight would be of much interest, and therefore they refrained from go. ing. The sporting men present were interested because of the showing the men had made with Al Neill, and it was expected that the winner last night would be matched with the Californian, Nelli has beaten both men and has also fought drawn battles with them. Donovan was a slight favorite, not so much because of his ring record as because Thurston was more or less unknown, and because of the further fact that in his last fight with Nelli he was beaten, while Donovan drew his last contest with him.

Fighting Forced From Start. The men were evidently in excellent condition, and fighting was forced from the first. Thurston had a slight diend-vantage in height, but more than a slight advantage in cieverness. As a boxer he is easily Donovan's superior. It was to Donovan's advantage that hitting in clinches with one arm free was allowed by the rules. He is considerably better at this part of the game than is Thurston, and a good part of his effective work was done in the clinches. There was a dispo-sition on the part of both men to fight fair, but Donovan struck several times PLAYERS. Thurston broke eway clean with few exceptions. From the first Thurston forced the trade with the Dark Continent is the short wheat crop in Australia. South Africa generally draws on the Antipodes for wheat and flour supplies, but the crop there is so short this season that wheat and flour can be secured to better advan-tage from the Pacific Northwest. The business has also been helped quite materially by the excellent quality of the wheat and flour shipped from here, North Pacific exporters establishing a reputation that is now proving quite an advantage to them. The wheat and flour has gone forward on 11 vessels, five sailing from Port-iand with 514,550 bushels, and six from Tacoma and Scattle, with 561,772 bushels. Big Liner Indrapura Makes a Slow Passage Across the Pacific.

The Portland & Aslatic liner Indrapura and the O. R. & N. liner Columbia both crossed into the Columbia River about the same time yesterday. The Indraoura was slightly overdue, having been out nearly 19 days, from Yokohoma. Her delay was caused by rough weather. #### Inheritance Tax Law Ruling.

SPOKANE, March 26 .- In the Superior Court today, Judge Belt rendered an im-portant decision in the inheritance tax law. He rules that the law allows but one $10,000 exemption from the tax, and that this exemption must apply only to bequests to near relatives, such as father, wife or daughter. Bequests to dis-tant relatives, or those outside the family, are not exempt. This ruling was made in the case of the estate of James Clark, a wealthy mining man.

fighting, and up to the 10th round it was in his favor. The Dutchman's shifty footwork and his cleverness in landing and getting away before Donovan could get to him won for him the sympathy of a large part of the small crowd. There were those who believed that Donovan was playing a waiting game, and intend-ed to rush Thurston when he was wind-ed from side-stepping and shifting about the ring. But Donovan did not have the punch in him when the time came to hand it out. Along about the 14th round he started to mix things up, and landed some effective blows, but Thurston not only refused to go down and out, but he also sent back some stiff jabs. Both men took a large amount of punish time was there an inclination to avoid fast and furious fighting. WILHELMINA CHARTERED.

Steam Freights Again Command a Premium Over Sail Vessels.

Disengaged tonnage on Puget Sound was cleared up yesterday by the charter of the Dutch steamer Wilhelmina to load wheat at Seattle and Tacoma for the Northwestorn Warehouse Company. The Wilhel-mina was chartered at 37s 6d, which at first glance seems a preity stiff rate, compared with the 25-shilling ships that have been chartered in this port. The rate paid the Wilhelmina is explained ver, through the fact that the foreign market just at present is paying a pre mlum for near-by cargoes, and as steam-ers are always given quick dispatch, and the date of their arrival out can be figured down very close, they are worth more money than sallers. During the short crop in France in 1997, when so many steamers loaded at 'Portland, a premium of 5s to 7s 6d was paid steamers in preference to sallers. The Wilhelmins has been on Puget Sound nearly two months. She came across the Pacific under charter to the Pacific Export Lumber Company, of Portland, but was so long on the way that she lost her charter. She arrived with her machinery disabled, and has been undergoing repairs. Her master was arrested, discharged and rearrested on the charge of permitting Chinese to land in this country, Both ship and master are known along the Portland water front, the Wilbelmina loading here about a year ago. She is an immense carrier, and on her outward trip from Portland carried 214,000 bushels of wheat. The removal of the Wilhelmina from the disengaged list leaves but two ships available for grain-loading in the Pacific Northwest. They are the Brune
