

W. J. FURNISH WINS IT

BUNCHGRASSER NAMED FOR GOVERNOR, 248 TO 92. J. R. Whitney, State Printer—A. M. Crawford Captures Attorney-Generalship.

Professor J. H. Ackerman, who now exercises general charge of the young idea throughout what in convention parlance is the magnificent commonwealth of the Pacific Northwest, had arranged to have his nomination seconded by about two-thirds of the delegates on the floor. One of his champions, G. W. Denman, of Benton, observed in clarion accents that Mr. Ackerman's nomination would bring a smile to the lips and a flush of pleasure to the cheeks of every old maid schoolmarm, every old bachelor schoolmaster, and every toddling school child from Harney to Clatsop, from Willowa to Curry. Other Ackerman men made oration in like vein, and so moving was their eloquence that

Gov. Furnish's Predecessor.

W. C. Alderson, Mr. Ackerman's opponent, was still in the back stretch when the distance flag dropped. The ensuing unofficial order of business was an unbroken snore. Mr. Glass was on the side-lines, looking pleasant. Percy Kelly, of Linn County, was whispering hoarsely to his constituents. Hon. George C. Brownell was sitting in the ranks of the Clackamas legion of 18 votes, mapping out with knitted brow the burst of applause with which he was soon to electrify the convention. The Gervais Star was by no means in total eclipse, and there was something doing elsewhere. All of which meant that the contest for State Printer, the fight which has torn asunder gubernatorial booms and wrecked the hopes of aspirants for every office from top to bottom in many other conventions, was about to be fought. Chairman Booth broke the spell by announcing that the convention's next duty was to ballot for this coveted office. Nominations were in order, and they followed in disorder. They came with such rapidity, with such a storm of oratory, and such a burst of enthusiasm, that it began to look for a time as if every man on the floor would be named, but after presenting seven candidates for consideration, and seconding them from all sides, the lists were closed.

George C. Brownell, the bell-tongued orator of Clackamas, was early on his feet. He had scarcely got the recognition of the chair, however, before he was spotted by his admirers in all parts of the hall, and immediately the shout went up for him to take the platform. He took it. "Gentlemen," he said, in concluding an address which caused the aisle to beat its golden wings against the glass vault overhead in an effort to soar to the starlit dome beyond, "why can't you look George C. square in the face, and say that you'll turn your eyes in the direction of poor, neglected, forsaken old Clackamas, and give her the nomination she seeks—that of L. L. Porter for State Printer?"

Other nominations made were W. S. Dunaway, W. J. Clarke, Graham Glass, Jr. This in a whisper by Charles A. Monell, of Multnomah; S. C. Beach and J. R. Whitney. The vote was taken. It resulted in no election, with Graham Glass, Jr., who had been looked upon as seated away in the rear, pulling down the surprising number of votes, the next candidate to Whitney, who was something on the safe side of 100. There was another surprise in the vote, and that was that 248 votes had been cast out of a possible 344. Some one had been doing effective campaigning. The chair casually remarked in calling for the next ballot that it might be just as well if the delegates would not fold their ballots. Multnomah went into caucus, and the candidates went into action.

This vote nominated Mr. Whitney, who had revealed the strength of Multnomah to a man, and drew 186 votes. Mr. Glass had 77. But the vote was still 246 out of a possible 344.

This settled the more important work of the day. The district delegations had already decided on their nominations and read them docilely to the chair when they were called for. Harrison Allen, the efficient secretary from Astoria, marshaled his assistants together, put the last touches on the archives of the convention, folded them up and bore them away to repose for another four years. The crowd, which had been in the morning what is popularly known as a concourse of people, and had remained patiently through the afternoon, had dwindled to small proportions, and it was soon out of the hall, followed by the tired delegates. One of them, as he was going out, picked up a scrap of white paper, which bore the legend:

Vote for W. J. FURNISH For Governor.

"Huh!" he said, "it's got a union label on it." Even in matters of this kind was the East Oregonian's campaign complete.

STORY OF THE CONVENTION.

Morning Session Devoted to Preliminary Organization.

The Republican state convention was called to order in the Armory at 11:10 o'clock yesterday by Willis Dunaway, secretary of the Republican State Central Committee. Mr. Dunaway explained that he had just received a telegram from Chairman George A. Steel, stating that the latter could not be present at the convention until late in the afternoon, and asking Mr. Dunaway to act in his stead. Mr. Dunaway made a few brief remarks, expressing his pleasure at seeing such a large representation of delegates present. He reviewed the great national events of the last four years, which have placed the United States in a leading position among the nations of the world, and said that the American people will satisfactorily settle such questions as may be presented in the future as a result of the larger governmental responsibilities. He predicted that the United States will deal with the Philippines on the principle of "Charity for all and malice toward none," so that a few years hence the Filipinos will celebrate the anniversary of the day on which the American flag was thrown around them.

L. T. Harris, of Lane County, presented the name of Senator R. A. Booth, of Lane, Douglas and Josephine, for temporary chairman. On motion of J. W. Knowles, of Union, Mr. Booth was elected by acclamation. Mr. Booth was greeted with prolonged applause as he mounted the rostrum and received the gavel. In a short address he expressed his gratitude for the honor thus bestowed upon him. He alluded briefly to some of the economic problems that confront the American people, and said that the Republican party is brave enough and big enough to meet and handle the questions that will arise. He pictured the great opportunities that lie before Oregon in consequence of the large attention now attracted by the Pacific Coast, and hoped that, as we have a great America, we will also have a greater Oregon.

C. W. Fulton, of Washington, nominated Harrison Allen, of Clatsop, for temporary secretary, and, on motion of Senator Masters, of Douglas, the election was made by acclamation.

Whitney Boise, of Multnomah, moved the appointment of a committee of seven on credentials, and the chair appointed: W. L. Boise, of Multnomah; W. H. Hampton, of Josephine; N. Merrill, of Columbia; E. Yates, Benton; G. C. Brownell, Clackamas; J. A. Campbell, of Clackamas, and Edwin Stone, of Linn.

The following were appointed a committee on permanent organization and order of business: B. L. Eddy, of Tillamook; D. L. Keyt, of Polk; J. A. Fee, of Umatilla; W. F. Arrant, of Klamath, and S. B. Huston, of Washington.

On motion of Kuykendall of Lane the following delegates, one from each county, were appointed a committee on platform and resolutions: F. L. Moore, Baker; W. E. Yates, Benton; G. C. Brownell, Clackamas; W. H. Barker, Clatsop; H. R. Cliff, Columbia; J. S. Coker, Coos; W. P. Keady, Crook; Edward Hughes, Curry; J. H. Cochran, Douglas; B. A. Denneman, Gilliam; C. C. Belknap, Grant; A. W. Gowan, Harney; F. D. Wagner, Jackson; L. V. Stewart, Josephine; C. D. De Lap, Klamath; E. M. Brattain, Laker; S. M. Yoran, Linn; R. S. Van Cleve, Lincoln; P. R. Kelly, Linn; O. H. Byland, Malheur; P. L. Willis, Multnomah; G. G. Hingham, Marion; G. W. Phelps, Morrow; R. E. Williams, Polk; W. H. Moore, Sherman; A. W. Severance, Tillamook; J. J. Balle-ray, Umatilla; J. W. Scriber, Union; George Mack, Willowa; Max Lueddeman, Wasco; F. T. Kane, Washington; R. S. Donnelly, Wheeler; W. A. Howe, Yamhill. Adjournment was then taken until 2 o'clock P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Platform Adopted and Part of Ticket Nominated.

At 2 P. M. the convention was called to order. During a lull in the proceedings speeches were called for, and the audience made a demand for an address by C. W. Fulton, of Astoria. In response to the call, Mr. Fulton arose and made a few remarks. He suggested that an address be made by a man who had given his heart to the Republican party, who had been a bulwark in every party convention, "the Grand Old Man of Oregon, George H. Williams." Amid a deafening uproar, Mr. Williams arose to speak. He asked that he be excused from an address, as the committee on credentials would report in a few minutes, and there would be no time to waste in speechmaking. Judge Williams' excuse was accepted, and he was given a round of applause.

E. L. Smith, who was also called upon, made a stirring address. The report of the committee on credentials was then adopted. It follows:

During the afternoon session of the convention, the committee on credentials reported as follows: To the Republican State Convention: We, the credentials committee reported as follows: To the Republican State Convention: We, the credentials committee reported as follows:

He graduated from Christian College, Monmouth, in 1878, after which he began the study of law in the office of the late Judge J. M. Thompson, at Eugene City. In 1876 he was admitted to the bar, after which he began the practice of law, at the same time pursuing a course at the University of Oregon, graduating in 1878. In 1882 he was elected as Judge of the Second Judicial District, and re-elected in 1884. In 1890 he was elected a member of the Supreme bench, and was re-elected six years later. He is now Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and his unanimous endorsement in yesterday's convention shows the high esteem in which he is held by the entire state.

CHARLES S. MOORE.

Charles S. Moore, of Klamath Falls, nominated for State Treasurer, was for many years one of the leading business men and lawyers of Southern Oregon. He has always taken an active interest in politics, and has attended many of the county and state conventions of the Republican party. Prior to his election as State Treasurer, in 1898, Mr. Moore was County Judge of Klamath County, where he is very popular with all classes of people. His administration has been an excellent one, and his re-nomination is a tribute well deserved.

A. M. CRAWFORD.

A. M. Crawford, candidate for Attorney-General, was born in New York City in 1864, and came to Oregon in 1880. He first settled in Marshfield, where he practiced law until 1890, when he moved to Roseburg, where he took charge of the United States Land Office, having been appointed Receiver by President Harrison. Upon his retirement from the Land Office Mr. Crawford resumed the practice of law in Roseburg. Mr. Crawford was a member of the hold-up Legislature in 1897.

FRANK I. DUNBAR.

Frank I. Dunbar, recommended for Secretary of State, who is a native of Massachusetts, was born on September 14, 1860. He was educated in New York City, where he was in business for a number of years prior to his coming to Oregon, in 1882. Upon his arrival in this state he settled at Astoria, where he became head book-keeper for the firm of A. V. Allen & Co. In 1886, and again in 1892, he was elected by the Republicans as Recorder of Clatsop County. In 1894 he was chosen County Clerk, and re-elected two years later.

J. R. WHITNEY.

J. R. Whitney, candidate for State Printer, and editor of the Albany Herald, was born in Marion County in 1850. His boyhood was passed in Eugene, and at the age of 16 he entered the University of Oregon, graduating with honors in 1869. He has been engaged in the newspaper business ever since, and has edited the Albany Herald for 17 years. Mr. Whitney has always been identified with the Republican party, and has played no small part in its councils. As a newspaper man and a practical printer, Mr. Whitney is well and favorably known throughout the entire state.

J. H. ACKERMAN.

J. H. Ackerman, recommended for Superintendent of Public Instruction, is a native of Ohio, and is 47 years old. He came to Oregon in 1870, and has been engaged in school work since that date, as well as for several years prior to his arrival here. He served for two terms as County Superintendent for Multnomah County, and was principal of the Harrison-street School for a number of years. In 1888 he was elected Superintendent of Public Instruction, and has proved an able and efficient public servant. Throughout the state he is regarded as a valuable friend of the public schools, and is immensely popular with both teachers and pupils.

The report of the committee on permanent organization and order of business made the following report, which was adopted: Portland, April 2.—To the Chairman and Members of the Republican State Convention: We, your committee on permanent organization and order of business, beg leave to report as follows: We recommend that the temporary organization of the convention be made permanent, and that the chair appoint two assistant secretaries. We recommend the following order of business: 1. Receiving report of committee on credentials. 2. Election of a state central committee, by the delegation from each county, choosing one member thereof. 3. That all votes on candidates be taken by ballot and that the chair appoint six tellers for that purpose. 4. Receiving report of committee on platform and resolutions. 5. Nomination of candidates in the following order, to wit: Governor, Supreme Judge, Secretary of State, State Treasurer, Attorney-General, Superintendent of Public Instruction, State Printer. Upon completion of the foregoing business we recommend that the convention take a recess of 20 minutes for the purpose of permitting district nominations to be made. 6. Ratification of district nominations. 7. Adjournment. We recommend that all resolutions be referred to the committee on platform and resolutions, without debate. Respectfully submitted, B. L. EDDY, Chairman.

On motion of P. L. Willis, of Multnomah, the report of the committee on platform and resolutions was adopted. On motion of A. C. Marsters, of Douglas, the following resolutions were adopted: We, the Republicans of the State of Oregon, in convention assembled, realize that the time has come when every citizen of Oregon should demand that the Congress of the United States should at once recognize our old pioneer war veterans as volunteer veterans of their Republic. Why should they be treated with silent indifference until the great majority of them have been carried to their graves, it humiliating to us and to the entire State of Oregon, they battled for the territorial rights of the Nation; suffered as many hardships; sacrificed as many lives in proportion to population; were paid $16 per month, as were the other volunteers, for their services; and now, when any reasonable or just man can question their right to be recognized as United States volunteers, and placed on the Nation's roll of honor, is a profound mystery we cannot understand. We do not wish to be unreasonable; forbearance has ceased to be a virtue, and when we affirm that the citizens of Oregon and Washington are indignant at the treatment these veterans have received, we only voice the united sentiment of the people of the entire Coast. We favor the establishment of a National Park, to include Crater Lake and its environs; and that it be forever maintained for the benefit of the American people. Chairman Booth appointed W. G. Gillingham, of Lane, and C. E. Lockwood, of Multnomah, as assistant secretaries, and tellers as follows: F. W. Benson, Douglas; J. H. Pearce, Union; M. E. Brink, Crook; J. H. Rowland, Marion; S. A. Burford, Clackamas; and E. D. Briggs, Jackson. Nominations for Governor were called

State Senator Steiwer.

R. A. BOOTH, CHAIRMAN OF THE CONVENTION.

H. E. ANKENY, WHO DIDN'T GET THERE, AND W. J. FURNISH, WHO DID.
