

MONOGRAMS MEET DEFEAT

THEY SCORE ONE RUN TO PROFESSIONALS' FIVE.

Pieman's Pitching the Star Feature - Vignoux's Men Held Down to One Hit.

The Portland baseball team won the second game from the Monograms yesterday afternoon, by a score of 5 to 1. The game was a good one from start to finish, and was evenly contested, except in the second half of the second inning, when Portland bunched in four runs, sending Anderson, Hupp, Weed and Vignoux across the plate in rapid succession. This was caused by error on the part of the Monograms' infield. In the fourth inning Zan made a safe hit, got around the bases and scored on an error by Vignoux, greatly delighting the spectators. Portland scored again in the fifth, but after that it was all off, and Vignoux's men, try as they would, could not run the gauntlet.

Pieman pitched for the Monograms and his work was brilliant. During the entire game his opponents made but one safe hit, many of them fanning out in quick succession, while others threw up the sponge at first. Eagle pitched for Portland until the third inning, when Joe Mahaffey took the box, holding it down until the game was ended. One safe hit was made off Mahaffey, and one off Eagle, Zan doing the stunt in each instance. Van Buren and Hupp, two of Portland's new men, showed up nicely, especially at the bat. Jake Deisel continued his good work at short and Anderson, Muller and the rest of the old guard played consistently.

The sensational feature of the game was a neat double play played by a Bohmer in the sixth, Vignoux and L. Mahaffey being the victims. The day was warm and sunny, and about 1500 spectators enjoyed the sport. Ed Rankin acted as umpire.

It is rather early to form opinions concerning Portland's baseball team, especially the new players. However, the fans who have watched the preliminary games are pleased with the outlook.

The Monogram team contains some very clever players, and, with a little more practice, they will make things lively for everything in their class.

The Fidelity baseball team has been reorganized for the season, and will appear in navy uniforms of navy blue and maroon. The team is open to meet any nine in the state. Monograms and Upchurch preferred. The nine defeated Hillsboro a week ago in a well-played game, by a score of 8 to 7. The team lined up as follows: Brown, catcher; Hoyt, pitcher; Newell, shortstop; Charles Gell, first base; Ed Gell, second base; Patterson, third base; Souner, left field; Jager, center field; and Belt, right field. Games have been arranged with Newburg and Forest Grove.

The Portland Academy baseball team are now turning out regularly, and have already won a victory over the Vancouver High School. The boys are in excellent form, and bid fair to secure the interschool championship of Portland. Litt will captain the team and play second base. Williams will be in the box, and Stott will play his usual position behind the bat. Chalmers, Johnson and Furbush will play shortstop, first base and third base, respectively. The candidates for field positions are Korner, Sutherland, Penlon and Wood. Professor H. J. Heroman will coach. Lewis A. McArthur is manager, with Carleton Harding as assistant. The first game in the city will be next Saturday, with the Portland Business College. On the following Saturday the team will probably go to Corvallis to play the Oregon Agricultural College. After that three games will be played with the Hill Military Academy, and a return game, on P. A. Field, with the Vancouver High School. Other games have not yet been arranged. Bruce Honeyman has been appointed captain of the second team, which is turning out every night for practice with the first team.

Harold Bristol, who was the crack pitcher for Portland Academy two years ago, has succeeded in making the varsity team at Cornell University, where he is taking a course in forestry. Bristol accompanied the Cornell team on its recent Southern trip and played in eight games. Speaking of the game with the University of Georgia, the Cornell Alumni News says: "The feature of the game was the great pitching of Bristol. For five innings he kept the Georgia bats out in one, two, three, four, and allowed only thirty-two men to come to bat. He pitched the entire game, and struck out eight men."

Joe Tinker is a great favorite in the Chicago National League team, and the papers of the Windy City say that he is a wonderful third baseman. It is the opinion among Chicago fans that Tinker will "make good," and that he will play at either third or shortstop. Mike Lynch has an even chance to break into the outfield, and Jimmy St. Vrain is doing great work in the box. Salsburgh has pitched several games for Philadelphia and is doing fair work. Glendon, at Cincinnati, is suffering from a sore arm, but friends say he will be one of the chosen few.

REVIEW OF THE DOG SHOW.

Judge Fred Mansell Praises the Portland Kennel Exhibit.

The recent bench show of the Portland Kennel Club was undoubtedly the finest exhibition of its kind ever held in the Pacific Northwest. If not on the entire Pacific Coast, the exhibition was a thorough one, covering many and varied classes of dogs, and was managed with a degree of accuracy that speaks well for its promoters. Fred Mansell, the English factor, who judged the show, certainly demonstrated his knowledge of dogs, as his awards were just in every instance.

Speaking of the show yesterday, Mr. Mansell said: "I feel that I can hardly allow my first visit to the Pacific Coast in pursuit of my favorite occupation, to pass without some public expression of satisfaction with the treatment which has been accorded me by the members of the Portland Kennel Club. Coming as I did, from the largest and best-ordered exhibitions of dogs in England, and with a familiarity with dogs extending over a period of 40 years, I assure you that I was most agreeably surprised at the order, cleanliness, and thoroughness of the Port-

BUSY ON FIELD AND TRACK

OREGON ATHLETES TRAIN FOR INTERCOLLEGIATE GAMES.

Meets With Pacific and Washington Still in the Air—Ballcoasters Are Active.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, April 20.—Despite the unfavorable weather which has prevailed most of the time during the week, the campus oval has presented a lively scene each afternoon, with men practicing field and track events, under the direction of Trainer Redmond. The men are rapidly developing into form, and everything will be in readiness for the tryout, which will take place next Saturday, on the racing track at Bang's Park. The work of Trainer Redmond is showing up splendidly, and the "varsity" will have a team this year that will make it interesting for all concerned.

Their promises to be some keen competition in some of the events, and it is expected that the tryout Saturday will develop some valuable new material. Captain Payne is, of course, a winner sure in the half and quarter, but there will be new entries in the half-mile run in the persons of Oaks and Riddell, both from The Dalles High School. Oaks will do the half in good time, and will prove a valuable man, Johnson, from the Eugene High School, and Harnes, from the Cottage Grove High School, are the leaders in the pole vault. Johnson does the vault in beautiful form, but has not yet gone over nine feet. Sheldon, Williams and Graham are working at the hurdles. Sheldon has something of the characteristic stride displayed by California's men last year, and ought to do the hurdles in winning time. Fred Lewis is doing splendidly in the 100-yard dash, and is covering 20 feet in the broad jump. Henderson is showing up well in the broad jump, and will also be a prominent man in the weight events. Henderson is one of the best physically built men in college. Grider is doing 36 feet with the discus, which is but four feet less than the championship throw made by Fields of Washington, and now that the champion from the north has quit college, Oregon ought to make a favorable showing in this particular event. Redmond is in good health this spring, and if he succeeds in regaining his old form, he will be a serious factor in the quarter-mile run.

Meet With Pacific Doubtful.

The matter of securing meets seems still to cause considerable trouble for Manager Goodrich. Pacific University asked Oregon early in the season for a meet, but now Manager Goodrich is delaying matters by refusing to meet Eugene unless the relay race is cut out. The Portland people say they cannot find material in 10 men for a relay team, and that, inasmuch as Oregon will have a sure thing in the discus (Forest Grove not having practiced this event before this year), the meet should be held without the relay. Manager Goodrich thinks Pacific University has as good chances for a relay team in 10 men as Oregon will have at Seattle, and that since Pacific was the first to ask for a meet, Oregon is not bound to make the concession of abandoning the relay race. This event appears in all other intercollegiate track meets, and there is no good reason for cutting it out with the team from Pacific University. If the meet with Pacific falls through, Manager Goodrich has the promise of one with Corvallis. It is thought that the Oregon Agricultural College has material for a good team this year, and would make things interesting for their old-time opponents, the boys of old Oregon.

Trouble With Washington.

The trouble with the University of Washington lies in the controversy whether or no Seattle should be permitted to enter men in the track events from the Law and Medical Schools.

The contract between the two universities remains yet unsigned, but things will probably soon be settled in a manner agreeable to both sides.

Ballcoasters at Work.

The baseball men are practicing each night on Kincaid Field. Next Saturday a practice game will be had with a picked team from the faculty, and on the following Saturday a match game will likely be played with Willamette University, at Salem.

Pest Kills Off Pheasants.

Dee Wright, of Molalla, reports a new pest that is killing off Chinese pheasants in his neighborhood. It seems that the birds on the lowlands have been feeding on small slugs, which clog up their throats and cannot be swallowed. Mr. Wright has been clearing land in the Molalla country, and first noticed the fatalities among the pheasants during a warm spell last November. At that time he saw a number of dead and sick birds, but supposed that they had been wounded during the hunting season just closed.

FISHERMEN'S NEW SPORT

SPORTSMEN CAN NOW MAKE CASTS FOR BLACK BASS.

Oregon Streams Have Been Surprisingly Stocked With Game Fish on Earth.

Native Oregonians generally are up to date in all that pertains to trout fishing, but few of them know anything about bass fishing, which is considered superior sport at the East, because it is only lately that there has been any bass fishing in this region. Although it is not definitely known when or where bass were introduced here, as they were, it appears, introduced surreptitiously by several parties, at different times and in different places, it is now generally known that there are a number of pieces of water not far from Portland which are well stocked with bass, and also that there are many places in the Willamette where fair bass fishing can be obtained by those who know how to fish for bass. Willamette Slough, on the Columbia, and Willamette Falls, at Oregon City, are the most accessible points where bass are caught. There are many persons in the state who have learned bass fishing in Eastern, or rather "Western" waters, for the Upper Mississippi and its tributaries and streams emptying into the Great Lakes, furnish the finest bass fishing in the world.

Now many Oregon sportsmen are looking forward to enjoying the sport of bass fishing, of which they have heard so much, and are anxious to learn all of the secrets of the "art," which is quite distinct from that of trout fishing.

There are several varieties of bass, the gamest of which is the red-eyed, small-mouthed, vicious kind, which is the true black bass, and as game a fish as swivel. The next in esteem with sportsmen is the Oregon, or large-mouthed, green bass. Both these varieties of bass are now to be found in the waters of this region, but there are several other and inferior kinds of bass, as the rock bass, striped bass, which have not knowingly been introduced here, which is a good thing, as no one cares to fish for them when the little-mouthed black bass and the big-mouthed green, or Oregon, bass, are available.

It may be added here that in the vast region east of the Rockies, where the streams and lakes are inhabited by all the different sorts of bass, the same fish has different names in different sections, and there is a chance for endless disputes in regard to varieties of bass, but small-mouthed black bass and big-mouthed bass are the species whose acquaintance all fishermen desire most particularly to form.

The baits used in bass fishing are numerous and run from that old stand-by, the "angler" or earthworm, up through live minnows, frogs (small) and crawfish, to a great variety of artificial baits, as spoons of many kinds, phantom minnows, rubber frogs, helgrammites, etc., while at times a bait of salt pork, with a bit of red flannel attached to the pork, is a great killer. The person desirous of enjoying the sport of bass fishing in Oregon will, therefore, see that he has to make himself acquainted with the tastes and likings of the bass for many kinds of baits, both

SECOND GUN CLUB SHOW.

Local Sportsmen Contest in Handicap Trophy Series.

The season shoot of the Multnomah Rod and Gun Club handicap trophy series was held at the Irvington shooting grounds yesterday afternoon. It was an ideal day for shooting, the attendance was large, and some excellent scores were made.

If the clubmen were to show as they did yesterday, Portland can look for a good share of the honors at the Northwest shoot to be held here June 27 and 28.

The contest is at 25 targets at unknown angles, and the following are the scores that were made: Carlson, 24; Remington, 21; Abraham, 21; Powell, 22; Winters, 22; Eubanks, 17; Gullit, 17; Bateman, 13. In the morning practice the results were:

The Sale of Little Rhody.

The syndication of the State of Rhode Island has finally been perfected, and its sale to monopoly for private profit is complete. This is made evident in the hasty passage of a bill by the State Legislature incorporating the "Rhode Island Company."

With power to lease, purchase, acquire, hold, possess, exercise, use, enjoy and dispose of property, rights, contracts, powers, privileges and franchises of any and every kind, company, electric lighting company and street railway company incorporated under the laws of the State of Rhode Island; and with power also to acquire, hold and dispose of the stocks, bonds, securities and obligations of any and every such company, and of any and every corporation, wherever organized, which owns or controls at least a majority of the stock of any such company.

This clears the way for the merging of all the lighting and street railway companies of the state into one great security-holding concern like the Northern Securities Company or the United States Steel Corporation, and a beginning will at once be made of absorbing the gas, electric lighting and railway companies in Providence. The capital stock of the company at the outset is fixed at $2,000,000, but this may be increased to any amount on vote of a majority of the stockholding interest. No limit is placed upon the charges which the company, through its sub-companies, may impose on the public, save that they must not exceed the rates in force at the time of acquiring the sub-companies. Within that limit the company can do as it pleases. It appears to be above public regulation; and while the measure, as at first considered, made the contract between the state and the company specifically perpetual for all practical purposes, it says nothing on this point as finally enacted. Thus incidentally the grant is a perpetual one. In return for these extraordinary privileges the company is to pay into the State Treasury a franchise tax of 1 per cent on gross receipts from the sale of gas and electricity, and of from 1 to 1 1/2 per cent on gross earnings from its street railways up to $60,000, and 2 per cent thereafter.
