

TO THE VOTERS OF OREGON

ISSUES BEFORE THE PEOPLE IN THE PRESENT CAMPAIGN.

Republican Holds Democratic Pretenses Up to the Light of Searching Investigation.

OREGON CITY, April 20.—(To the Editor.)—For a long time prior to the meeting of the late Democratic State Convention many people had their suspicions that free silver was nothing but a ruse to conceal the real issue.

It is not only the ruse of the "money power" but the ruse of the "money power" that has been the cause of the present campaign.

We demand the free and unlimited coinage of both silver and gold at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1, without restriction.

Principles are eternal. Are they? Any one having heard and accepted the stereotyped and copyrighted statement that the principles of the Democratic party were "timeless and eternal" would have supposed that the party, having once demanded free silver, would continue to demand free silver on the "eternal" basis.

There has been serious seismic disturbances along the Cordillera, affecting towns and villages between Amatlan and Quetzaltenango.

SEATTLE, April 21.—When the proper amount of revenue derived from certain license fees set apart for educational purposes in Alaska is received, the intention of the United States Bureau of Education is to do much for the betterment of the system in the far North.

But the position of Mr. Furnish has been thoroughly understood since he took his stand in 1896. He is a born leader, and he took that stand upon his own merit, in a locality, and at a time, that offered no temptation to a man with a weak mind.

SALEM, April 20.—The Codling Moth and the Pear and Apple Tree are the subject of a very complete treatise just issued by the Oregon Agricultural Experiment Station at Corvallis.

It is undoubtedly true that there are small spruce sections scattered here and there throughout the entire Pacific Northwest that are still free, or practically free, from the codling moth.

There are still scattered here and there throughout the eastern part of our state communities that indulge in the same hope of immunity from the codling moth and for the same reason.

Professor Cordley then describes an investigation conducted by him in 1909, in the Coos Bay region. He found that the codling moth had not yet attacked the orchards there, provided that the trees were kept free from the ravages for years by a little effort.

ADVANTAGES OF A CANAL

WITH AN ISTHMIAN ROUTE OUR COMMERCE WILL INCREASE.

Such a Waterway Would Greatly Benefit the Oriental Trade of the United States.

NEW YORK, April 17.—"To transport commerce across a great ocean, stretching literally half way round the globe, is no simple undertaking, and to do this in competition with nations lying thousands of miles nearer to that great and exacting market of the Orient would scarcely be undertaken by other than American energy."

The distance across the Pacific from the point at which vessels would enter the Panama Canal to the westernmost point is, Mr. Austin said, about 11,000 miles, more than half way round the earth at that parallel of latitude, and nearly four times the distance from New York to Liverpool.

Nevertheless the proportionate gains of American commerce with the Orient have been much greater, Mr. Austin said, than those of any other country, our exports to Asia and Oceania having grown from $1,000,000 in 1858, the year prior to the opening of the Panama Canal, to $1,000,000,000 in 1901, while those of the United Kingdom, our chief rival, were increasing from $10,000,000 to $42,000,000. Thus, despite our great disadvantage in distance for all routes, our trade with the Orient has been two-thirds as great as that of Great Britain, and its percentage has been many times as great.

It is evident that Bryan does not take the same view of the Jones case as is taken by the Senate.
