

THEY CHANGED PULPITS

AND CAUSED SOME COMMOTION AMONG SALEM CHURCHMEN.

Dr. Knight, a Congregationalist, and Rev. Mr. Elliot, a Unitarian, Spoke in Each Other's Churches.

SALEM, April 27.—Rev. P. S. Knight, a Congregational minister of this city, today caused some talk among his more orthodox clerical brethren by exchanging pulpits for the day with Rev. W. G. Elliot, Jr., Salem pastor of the Unitarian Church Society. At the present time Rev. Mr. Knight is serving as pastor for the Congregational church at Corvallis, but has no regular Salem congregation. Today, both morning and evening, Rev. Mr. Elliot addressed the Corvallis Congregationalists, while Rev. Mr. Knight delivered two sermons to the Salem Unitarian congregation.

About a year ago, Rev. Mr. Elliot applied for membership in the Salem Ministerial Association and was denied admission to that organization. The incident at the time caused some discussion and resulted in more or less newspaper correspondence.

Rev. Mr. Knight is one of the pioneer Congregational ministers in Oregon and has always been actively engaged in religious work. He founded in this city the Central Congregational church, which now has a large membership and is one of the flourishing religious organizations of Salem. Rev. Mr. Knight is an able speaker and has always been liberal in his views along religious lines. Being questioned on the subject by an Oregonian reporter, Mr. Knight said: "I am surprised that any notice should be taken of what seems to me so reasonable an affair as this exchange of pulpits. I was glad thirty years ago to show a similar courtesy to Rev. T. L. Elliot, father of the present pastor of Unity church in Salem, and I am sure I have never had any reason to regret my action. When I seek or accept an exchange of pulpits I consider the qualities of the man rather than the latitude or longitude of his creed, or the denominational fall to his theological kite. I am sure no one can criticize my judgment on that score in this instance, however it may be with Mr. Elliot."

"Several occasional attendants at my service in Corvallis claim to be Unitarians in belief—cultivated and worthy people—and I thought such an exchange would be but a reasonable courtesy to them."

"Of course, such an exchange implies no yielding of any doctrinal point, any more than it would if I exchanged with a Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist or Christian. It is a long-cherished belief with me that these minor differences between sects should be ignored when earnest Christians confront the real problems of practical work."

"I have given Mr. Elliot the same liberty in my pulpit that I would give to any Christian gentleman, and he has extended a similar courtesy to me; and I am sure that when the day has passed neither his congregation nor mine will dream that anything strange has happened."

Farms in Demand.
The real estate market is more lively in the Willamette valley this season than it has been since 1901. This assertion is confirmed by all dealers. The increased number of sales is directly caused by the large immigration of home-seekers from the Eastern States which is considerably larger this year than for several years past.

"More farms have been sold in this vicinity this Spring than since the good times of 1893," says J. Thompson, of Salem's representative real estate dealer today. "Property valuations are good and the demand is unusually great. Numerous sales involving the largest farms in Marion County have been consummated, the considerations ranging from $4000 to $12,000. Sales are largely cash transactions, little time being asked. The demand is principally for small farms and improved agricultural lands."

Among some of the larger property sales that have recently been made in this county, was one by J. Thompson, of his 20-acre farm near Turner, to M. R. Grimes and sons, of Burlington, Kansas, the consideration being $11,000. Alex. McKinney sold his 50-acre farm near McCoy to a recent arrival from Wisconsin, Mr. Schultz, for $10,000. Mr. Robbins' farm in Polk County was purchased by an Iowa immigrant for $10,000. The Ward farm near the State Reform School was taken by an Oklahoma man for $4500. A newcomer from Idaho bought the Sarah Jones farm of 160 acres, on the Hales Ferry road, south of Salem for $4000.

Direct Nominations.
Governor Clegg, as chairman of the Direct Nominations League meeting, held Saturday, today announced the legislation committee, which consists of E. M. Croisan, W. T. Slater, N. J. Judah, R. J. Hendricks and E. Hofer of Salem. The work of the committee will be the drafting of a bill providing for direct nomination at primaries for consideration of the Legislature. E. M. Croisan is the Republican nominee for State Senator in Marion County, Mr. Slater is candidate for Representative on the Democratic ticket, N. J. Judah is the present Salem City Recorder, and R. J. Hendricks and E. Hofer are editors of the Salem Statesman and Daily Journal, respectively.

Organization of Labor.
The Salem Labor Union held a largely attended mass meeting this afternoon and elected W. E. Miller, president of the union, and Roy Davis delegates to the convention of the State Federation of Labor to be held in Corvallis, at the carpenter's of the city organized last week. Other trades are forming unions and great enthusiasm prevails among wage-earners over the prospect of bettering their condition.

Salem Notes.
George Barker, the hobo who was released from the Marion County jail Saturday morning, has been arrested for furnishing inmates of the county jail the saw with which they almost accomplished their escape late Saturday afternoon.

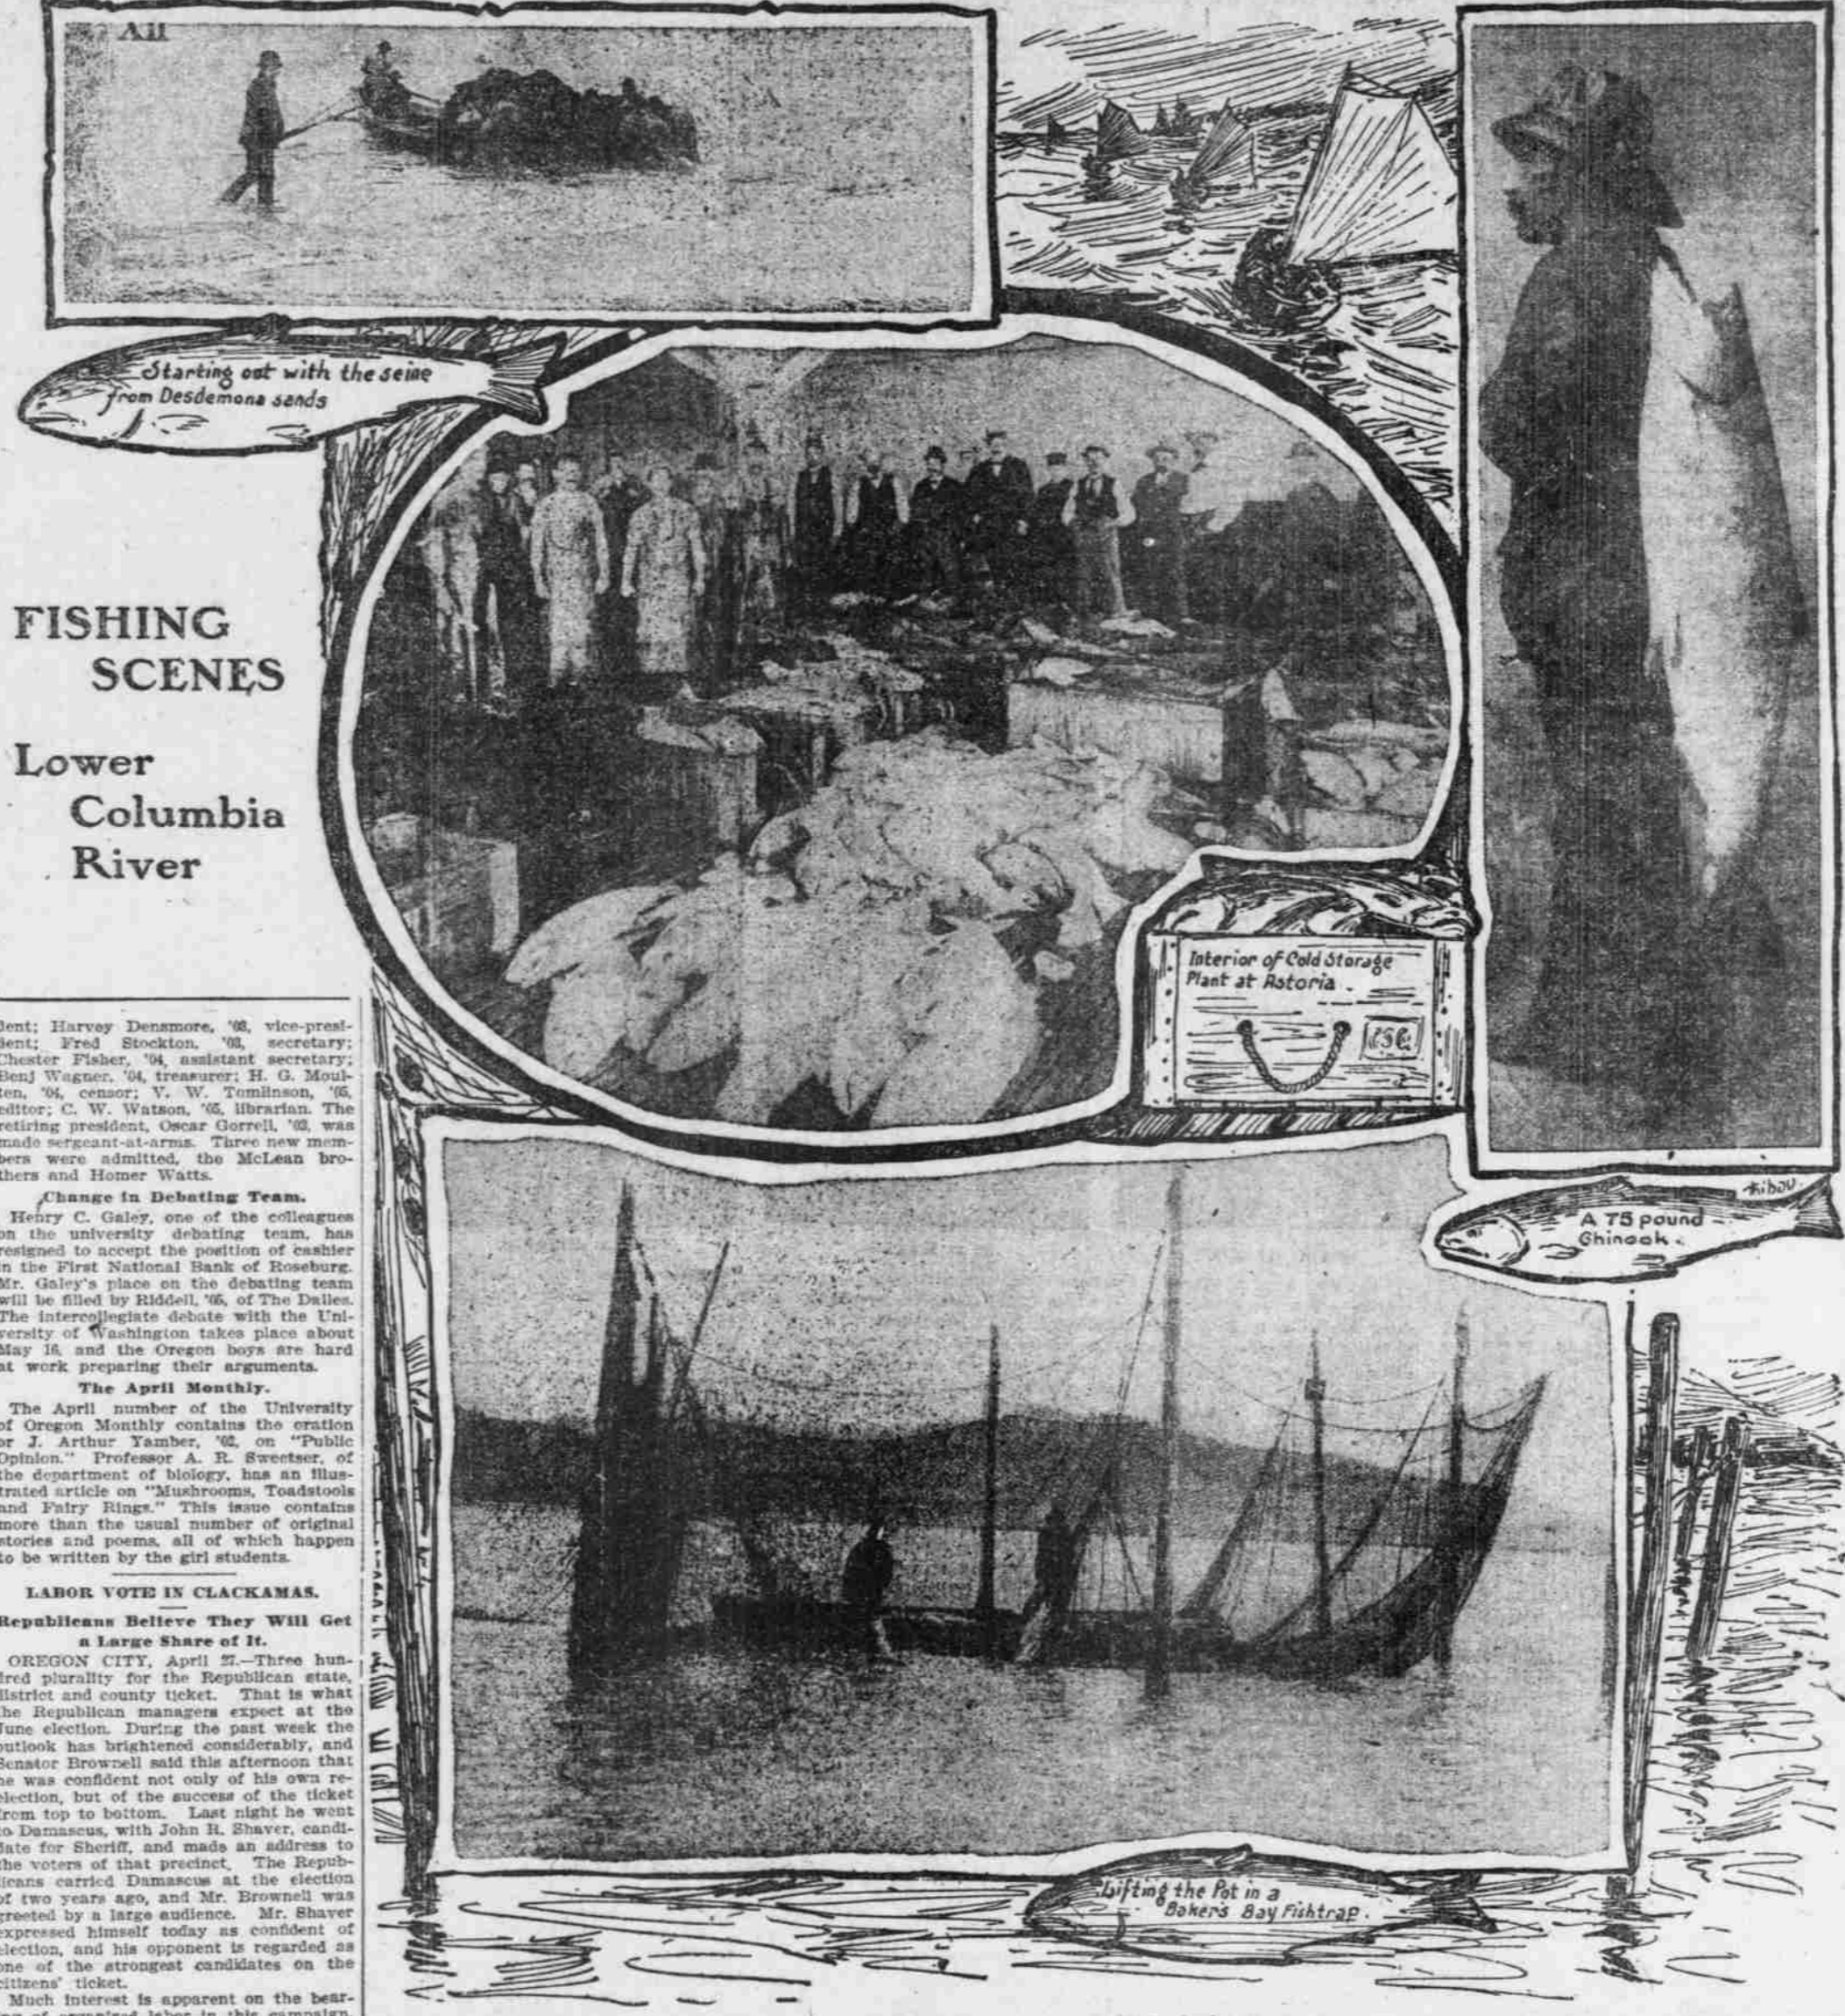

Salem Workmen last night received a fraternal visit from C. C. Hogue, of Albany, Grand Master of the A. O. U. W. state organization. The ladies of the Degree of Honor also entertained Mrs. Wilga Belknap, Grand Chief of Honor of the Workmen auxiliary in Oregon.

College on Debating Team Resigns—Address by Y. W. C. A. UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, April 27.—The University of Y. W. C. A. was visited this week by Miss Bertha Conde, of Chicago, the National student secretary of the organization, and by Miss Mable Stafford, the Pacific Coast secretary, both of whom addressed a number of meetings of the University girls. Both women addressed the students and instructors at assembly Friday evening.

Track Meet With Corvallis Denied.
Manager Goodrich, of the University of Oregon track team, applied to the faculty committee on athletics to hold a track meet with the Oregon Agricultural College, at Corvallis, but his request was refused and the following resolution passed:

"Times intercourse relations have been established between the students of Pacific University, at Forest Grove and the University of Oregon, the committee desires that the already pleasant relations between the universities be strengthened and the original schedule be adhered to."

Society Officers.
The following officers were elected at a meeting of the Philologist Society Friday night: Edward Elythe, '02, president.

Tomlinson, '05, editor; C. W. Watson, '05, librarian. The retiring president, Oscar Gorrell, '02, was made sergeant-at-arms. Three new members were admitted, the McLean brothers and Homer Watts.

Change in Debating Team.
Henry C. Galey, one of the colleagues on the university debating team, has resigned to accept the position of cashier in the First National Bank of Roseburg. Mr. Galey's place on the debating team will be filled by Riddell, '06, of The Dalles. The intercollegiate debate with the University of Washington takes place about May 18, and the Oregon boys are hard at work preparing their arguments.

The April Monthly.
The April number of the University of Oregon Monthly contains the oration of J. Arthur Yamber, '02, on "Public Opinion." Professor A. E. Sweetser, of the department of biology, has an illustrated article on "Mushrooms, Toadstools and Fairy Rings." This issue contains more than the usual number of original stories and poems, all of which happen to be written by the girl students.

Republicans Believe They Will Get a Large Share of It.
OREGON CITY, April 27.—Three hundred plurality for the Republican state, district and county ticket. That is what the Republican managers expect at the June election, judging the past week the outlook has brightened considerably, and Senator Brownell said this afternoon that he was confident not only of his own reelection, but of the success of the ticket to the bottom. Last night he went to Damascus, with John H. Shaver, candidate for Sheriff, and made an address to the voters of that precinct. The Republicans carried Damascus in the election of two years ago, and Mr. Brownell was greeted by a large audience. Mr. Shaver expressed himself today as confident of election, and his opponent is regarded as one of the strongest candidates on the citizens' ticket.

Much interest is apparent on the bearing of organized labor in this campaign. Something over a month ago Federal Labor Union No. 526 was elected in this city, and now has a membership of 525, with every prospect of increasing to 800 before election day. Several candidates, among them County Clerk E. H. Cooper, who up for re-election on the citizens' ticket, have sought admission to the union, but their applications have been promptly rejected. While many individual members of the organization take great interest in politics, and a number of political principles are represented, the officers of the union are wise enough to know that a mixture of unionism and politics will be of no benefit to organized labor, but that the motive for the election of the laboring classes. Deputy County Clerk Elmer Dixon is assistant secretary of the union. When temporary organization was effected he was appointed to the office, and he was afterwards permanently elected to the position. Mr. Dixon has been continuously in office for 10 years. For four years he was Justice of the Peace for one of the Oregon City precincts, and in 1896 was elected County Clerk on the Populist landslide. Two years later he was re-elected by a small plurality over his Republican opponent, who was comparatively unknown throughout the city. The citizens elected him director in 1900 he has served almost continuously as a deputy under Clerk Cooper. Mr. Dixon is now a candidate for County Judge on the citizens' ticket. His opponent will be Arthur from association with the union is impossible to say. His opponent, Judge Ryan, is a candidate for re-election on the Republican ticket, and his record is without a blemish.

The platform adopted by the Republican county convention speaks in no uncertain terms on the labor question, and one clause reads as follows: "We instruct the nominees of this convention to both branches of the Legislature, that, if elected, they will make an earnest effort to obtain legislation constituting eight hours a day's work throughout the state." One of the most prominent men in the union undertook to have a similar clause drafted in the citizens' platform, but without success. The citizens evaded a direct stand on the proposition, and made the following declaration: "We demand that the rights of labor, the producer of wealth, be respected, and to that end we demand that our representatives in the Legislature give an unprejudiced hearing to the claims of organized labor, and grant them whenever based on justice and right." The Republicans think by a comparison of the two platforms on the question that they will have a large proportion of the labor vote.

Alienation of His Wife's Affections.
SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—Andrew W. Lyons, formerly an acrobat, has brought suit in this city against R. W. Crellin, husband of Camille D'Arville, the opera singer, for $50,000 for the alienation of his wife's affections. In his complaint Lyons alleges that he was the former husband of Mrs. Crellin, who in 1890 obtained a divorce in Chicago without Lyons' knowledge and subsequently married Crellin. Mrs. Crellin is now in Brooklyn, appearing in vaudeville.

THE ROYAL CHINOOK

Each day a cannery-tender comes down and relieves the house-boat of the fish that have been picked up during the day on a wheel, which has netted him, cumbersome affairs, and in the big run last year sometimes received such large quantities of fish that the tenders were obliged to make a number of trips to clean up the receipts. McGowan's Chinook receiving station, although located but three miles from the cannery, received in a single day last July over 50,000 pounds of fish.

Methods of Taking Salmon.
Traps, seines and wheels have made great changes in the fishing industry, and many a gill-net man has gone over to the ranks of the enemy and secured a trap or a wheel, which has netted him more money in a single season than he could get out of the river with a gill-net in five seasons. There were 25 seines in operation on the Columbia River last season, a few of them on Sand Island and Desdemona sands, but the greater part of them are on the sandy reaches running out from the numerous small islands above Astoria. These seines are about a mile long, and it is an interesting sight at the finish, when they are hauled ashore by men and horses, with the catch making the water fairly foam. As fishing is conducted in shallow water, the passengers on passing steamers do not secure as good a view of the operations as is afforded them by the traps. The traps are portable, however, and are equally well understood by upriver passengers.

All other methods of taking the Royal Chinook are prosaic, however, compared with that of the gill-net. Whether he is drifting into the breakers with his life staked against his vanishing net, rocking at anchor between tides, beating home with a full boatload or without a fish, the average gill-netter unconsciously displays a picturesque bearing, which invests him with an interest that is missing from the men who pole or paddle out to traps with a broad-beamed, flat-bottomed boat, which could never under any circumstances go dancing over the water like that model of anchor between tides, beating home with a full boatload or without a fish, the average gill-netter unconsciously displays a
