AMUSEMENTS TONIGHT.

MARQUAM GRAND THEATER—Commencement exercises of the Gillespie School of Expression.

THE BAKER THEATER (corner Third and Yamhill streets)—Ralph Stuart and Company in "The Silver King."

LAUNDRYMAN INVESTS IN IRONS. — A laundryman was seen yesterday buying a dozen of plain old-fashioned flat-irons. When asked if he had ever tried any of the new inventions in the way of flat-irons, he said he had several gas irons, with an arrangement for heating irons by gas, but he had not tried the electric irons, for the reason that changing cool irons for hot ones gave the girls a little intermission, and although this meant the loss of considerable time, he thought it was better than for them to be ironing continually. He said his old irons were burned out, that is, the faces of them had become checked and rough from long use and, as they weighed 10 pounds each, they were too heavy for the girls to handle with comfort. When asked what kind of starch laundrymen used which makes collars, etc., as stiff as sheet iron, he said some used corn starch, which made goods so stiff that they can hardly be bent without breaking, and a mixture of corn starch and wheat starch made the goods more flexible, and some people insisted on having their shirts, etc., starched with water starch only. Most people liked to have their shirt fronts, cuffs, etc., made very stiff and the laundries, of course, liked to have their work uniform, so, unless special orders were given, everything was starched with the same starch. Collars which have been mangled until the edges are like saws and then starched till they are as stiff as sheet iron are apt to saw people's ears off, and cause much discomfort. For relief, try "water starch."

PLANS FOR STATE TEACHERS' MEETING. —P. L. Campbell, the newly-elected president of the University of Oregon, came down from Monmouth last evening, and will leave this morning for Astoria, where he will address the graduating class of the Astoria High School this evening. He will finish his labors at Monmouth about June 20, and will assume his new position on July 1. Professor Campbell is president of the Western Oregon division of the State Teachers' Association, whose annual session will be held at Eugene on June 25, 26, 27 and 28. He is now making elaborate preparations for the big gathering, which promises to excel anything of the kind ever held in the state. When seen last evening, President Campbell said: "The meeting of the State Teachers' Association will be a big affair this year, and the executive committee is doing everything possible to make the whole conference a grand success. Between 600 and 700 teachers will attend the session, and a splendid programme is being arranged. William I. Crane, a prominent lecturer from Dayton, O., will be with us and will address our meetings on a number of topics. Other lecturers of note will be present, and I believe the affair will be the best on record. Superintendent Ackerman is working hard for the success of the meeting, and the full programme will be completed within a few days."

ANNOYED BY ROSE THIEVES. — Several citizens who have rather fine collections of roses, and who have been losing some of their best ones of late, were consulting with each other yesterday and mourning the wickedness of people who steal roses. One of them said that he had heard that the Rose Club was about to offer a reward of $20 for the arrest and conviction of persons caught stealing roses. Another remarked that the removal of fences around premises created a strong temptation in many to take roses exposed, and some could not resist it. Another said that L. Samuel was the man who set the example of removing fences, and that although he had many fine roses on his premises they were not molested. He even has a hedge of roses along the curb in front of his place outside the sidewalk, and even these were respected. Another said he was always willing to give roses to anyone who asked for them, but it was very annoying to him to have his roses plucked at night, and especially when his bushes were broken or damaged by the thieves. He said some people not only stole roses, but took the bushes also, and told of a man who bought five acres of land in the eastern suburbs, and who actually went about with a wagon and collected, by digging up, stealing and carrying away enough rose bushes and fruit trees to plant the tract.

RECORDER RECEIVES STRANGE REQUEST. —County Recorder Beach yesterday received the following notice, dated at Fernando, Cal., June 2, with a request that it be placed on record in the proper book for the same, and that the bill be sent to ex-Attorney-General Williams, First street, over the Mechanics' Bank, signed James Francis D'Arcy. "This is to certify that I will give $50,000 for the punishment of any man or set of men that are guilty of killing me, and pro rata for any material damage done to my person; ditto for my son Francis and my daughters, Clarissa and Elsie May D'Arcy." The writer is probably demented, and most likely was a resident of this city years ago. The notice will not be placed on record until Mr. Beach knows more about it.

STRIKER MAY BE TURNED OUT. — An agent who called on a working man yesterday to collect the rent of a house was told: "I cannot pay this month; I have been on a strike." The agent reported to the landlord, who said that sort of excuse did not go with him, and if the tenant could not pay his rent he must get out, as there were plenty who wanted the house.

WILL START NO CONDENSED MILK FACTORY.—There is but little prospect of a condensed milk factory being started in this city at present. Prospects were very favorable for procuring the necessary capital, about $50,000, a few weeks ago, but the capitalist who was expected to furnish a large share of the money, when asked about the matter yesterday, said: "No, I will not invest money in any such enterprise at this time. The money might be put up and the factory got in operation, and I believe it would be a paying business, but as soon as it was fairly under way there would be a strike, and we would have the factory on our hands, but no one to run it, and our money would be tied up indefinitely, as there is no way to protect employers of labor. I will not place myself at the mercy of organized labor, and have to let a man run my business and dictate whom I shall employ, how many hours they shall work, and how much wages they shall receive. No, I shall put no money into any manufacturing enterprise at this time."

SPARROWS' NEST IN ELECTRIC LAMPS.—Many persons have seen sparrows carrying straw, string, feathers, etc., into the hoods of the electric lamps on the streets, and have thought the sparrow smart to select such a cosy, sheltered place for a nest. Yesterday a lamp-trimmer was seen tearing the material gathered by a pair of sparrows out of a lamp hood, and at the same time using uncomplimentary language in regard to all sparrows. When asked if he was much bothered by these birds, he said: "Not in the business part of town, but out in the residence portions many sparrows build nests in the lamp hoods. The trimmers tear them out every day or every few days, as they are likely to be set on fire by sparks from the lamp and the hood ruined. The birds are so persistent and 'bull-headed' that they often keep on building for two or three weeks, though, their work is torn down every day. They must think convulsions of nature are numerous in this country."

VAGARY OF A COLORED WOMAN. — A tall, wild-eyed colored woman was roaming about town yesterday hunting for some imaginary person who is supposed to have charged her with sending rats to Vancouver to destroy that town. She threatened to inflict condign punishment on the offender and also to send all the rats in Portland out of the city. She is probably out of her mind, and certainly ought to be off the streets. The number of demented, crippled and deformed people seen on the streets nowadays is larger than desirable. Some of them are so deformed that the sight of them is painful. If these people have friends, they should take care of them, and if they have no friends and are professional beggars they should be cared for in some public institution. If that long-haired, velvet-gowned divine healer is still in town he might try his hand on them, and if he cures them they can travel together and go somewhere else.

OREGON CHEESES IN FAVOR.—The quantity and variety of cheeses furnished Portland from a factory at Salem is something wonderful. The Fromage de Brie and Camembert go to the French residents chiefly; the Gesundheit and Deutsches Gesundheit and the Schloss Karse and Limburger are in favor with the Germans, and the cream brick and Sierra cheese and Russian cheese are liked by Americans, many of whom, however, are becoming very fond of the French and German forms of cheese. A native-born Oregonian who was investing in Fromage de Brie yesterday pronounced it very wholesome, and the cream brick, he said, was also very fine to eat just before going to bed. The odor of these cheeses is not admired by some when they are good and ripe, but when fresh from the factory they do not offend the most delicate olfactories. Lovers of gamy cheese do not find it necessary to send abroad for something to suit them.

NEW CEMENT SIDEWALKS. — The old wooden sidewalk in front of the Ainsworth property, at the northeast corner of Fourth and Oak streets, was torn up yesterday and the ground cleared for a cement sidewalk to cover the 200 feet, full width. This will be a great improvement to the corner, which has been in poor condition for some time. The walks in front of Judge Bellinger's residence and the residence of J. H. Hall, United States District Attorney, are being replaced by cement ones, and at Judge Bellinger's place cement steps and buttresses are to be put in. The more wooden sidewalks that are replaced by cement ones the better for everybody. The cement walks in front of the Northern Pacific Railroad ticket office, which was delayed by the strike, is at last completed and will be opened to travel in a day or two.

BIG MARKET FOR CALIFORNIA BERRIES. —Owing to the lateness of the season in this state, California has done a better business than usual this year in strawberries with Portland. W. B. Glafke figured up over a week ago that $50,000 worth of California berries had been received here, and he thinks that before the season is over this amount will have been increased to nearly $75,000. Of course, only about half the berries are consumed here, the remainder being shipped to all parts of the Northwest. The value of the early vegetables received here from California is also very large. Oregon, however, gets more than even every year on potato and melon shipments to California, which run up into the hundreds of thousands of dollars, to say nothing of vast quantities of hay and oats shipped to California.

TO FINISH WALTER F. BURRELL'S RESIDENCE. — Walter F. Burrell's new residence, on the East Side, the completion of which has been delayed by the strike, is now receiving the finishing touches. The plumbers are, however, still on the strike, and the water pipes have not yet been laid in Mr. Burrell's barn, and until this is done he cannot move into the house. The plumbing contractors have, however, promised that they will bring the water into the barn by Sunday, and he expects to be able to move into the house next week. J. M. Nickum, who has three cottages completed at Willsburg, with the exception of the plumbing, has allowed the tenants to occupy two of them, and they will have to pack water until the plumbers get ready to complete the plumbing in them.

NEW FIRE ENGINE TESTED. — The new steam engine for No. 3's was taken out yesterday for a warming-up and a preliminary trial, and to get the oil out of the valves. It worked like a charm. In a day or two the final test will be made and if all goes well the machine will be accepted and at once housed at Sixteenth and Washington streets.

EASILY SATISFIED. — A voter who cast his ballot for the fusion ticket crossed Third street yesterday and greeted a fellow-sinner, whom he intercepted with: "Vell, we carried the 'initiation' and re-ferendum, anyway."

JAMES MICKEY GOES FREE. — James Mickey, an elderly man, was before Municipal Judge Cameron yesterday, charged with drunkenness. "Let me off this time, Your Honor. I'll give you my sacred word of honor that I'll never touch another drop," said Mickey, fervently. "You have told me so before, and have not kept your promise. This time you were drunk and you broke a window in a man's store," remarked the Judge. "Cost $1.25," spoke up the man whose window had been smashed. "I'll pay it," promised Mickey. "Well, I'll give you one last chance," said the Judge. "I'll sentence you to 15 days in jail, and will suspend sentence until I hear from your wife how you have been behaving to her and your family."

GOLD MEDAL FOR FLAX EXHIBIT.—The Oregon Women's Flax Fiber Association has received official notice from Charleston that it has been awarded a gold medal by the South Carolina and Inter-State and West Indian Exposition for its exhibit of flax products. The exhibit was of table linen, napkins, towels and grain sacks, all from native Oregon flax. This same exhibit has now received a silver, a bronze and a gold medal, besides several diplomas, all of which shows that Oregon flax is all right.

Not easy to believe, yet it is true that Richard Mansfield has produced a disappointing play, a weak, play, loose-jointed in construction; lacking unity and marred by incongruous situations. Such is "The First Violin," presented last night at the Marquam in very fine scenic environment to a packed house. Jessie Fothergill wrote a good love story under that title, and it deserves its popularity. Dramatization of a novel is of necessity patchwork, but this one is frayed in more than one place. Its main fault lies in its lack of action. One scene saves the play from condemnation. In its praise be it said that the musical atmosphere and the plot of the charming story have been preserved; likewise its German flavor, which in spots is too much for one who does not understand the language. Teutonic words are introduced too often. For example, a knock is heard at the door. The occupant calls out "Herein," and then follows a dialogue in straight English. We may forgive the central figure, Eugen Courvoisier, for breaking out into his mother tongue in moments of excitement, but what's the use of lugging German words in by the ear? While the play is a distinct disappointment, the role of Courvoisier is a distinct triumph for Mr. Mansfield. He has done nothing better since Beau Brummell. "The First Violin" fits him. He plays the part of a nobleman, taking upon himself the crime of forgery committed by a young and foolish wife who died, and suffering banishment from his ancestral home. He takes with him his little son, and earns a livelihood playing first violin in the orchestra of the National Conservatory at Elberthal. Here he meets May Wedderburn, an English girl of good birth, educating herself for the concert stage. In his humble lodgings, as only Mansfield can, he shows love for the child, affection for his room-mate, pride, bravery, great suffering, ambition to succeed in his art, manliness and living passion for the auburn-haired girl with a voice. He introduces for his boy's amusement a commonplace tale about a wolf devouring two kids—a masterpiece of story-telling, artistic in the highest. At the close of the third act there is a strikingly dramatic picture. Courvoisier is receiving congratulations in the waiting-room of the conservatory over his magnificent playing of a new composition, when he is confronted with charges of forgery and asked to deny them. Those who saw Mansfield play Arthur Dimmesdale in "The Scarlet Letter" several years ago, and remember the look of pain on his face when he stood on the scaffold, may imagine this great scene. Here he rose to exalted heights.

Out of the excellent supporting company there should be singled for special praise Ernest Warde, the son of Frederick Warde, who played Friedhelm Helfen, the friend of Eugen, with force and delicate finish, and Sheridan Block, who made a great deal out of his part of musical director. Miss Mollison was charming as the English singer.

There was generous applause and the customary curtain-calls. Last night's selections by the orchestra and the style of playing were enough to drive a man to stronger drink than ice-cream soda.

Things That Went Wrong.

Chicago Tribune.

THE LOST NEEDLE.

Twenty-seven years ago Mrs. Semantha Ambergris, a quiet, modest seamstress residing in Walnut Grove, Ill., was sewing a button on her husband's trousers. Having occasion to thread a needle she held it between her lips while she looked for a spool of thread. Just then she sneezed violently, and the needle disappeared, nor could she find it after the most prolonged search.

The incident passed entirely out of her mind. One day last week, however, Mrs. Ambergris, who is now an elderly woman, felt a tingling sensation in the middle finger of her left hand. She looked at the finger and saw something small and sharp protruding from the skin. Applying a pair of tweezers she pulled it out. It proved to be a splinter she had accidentally run into her finger the day before, while cleaning house.

THE OLD SOLDIER.

"Yes, this is the place!" exclaimed the old soldier with the wooden leg, revisiting the battle-field of Gettysburg, after a lapse of 35 years, and looking about him. "I shall never forget this spot!"

"I suppose," said the stranger, observing his emotion, "this is the spot where you lost your leg while fighting for your country."

"No," said the old soldier. "I lost my leg in a saw mill in Kansas on the 11th of May, 1877. This is the place where I got scared and run like the devil."

Oratorio "Elijah" at Taylor-Street M. E. Church.

On Saturday next at 2:30 P. M. Mendelssohn's "Elijah" will be rendered by a chorus of 70 voices and grand orchestra, under the direction of W. H. Boyer. Mrs. Schwab, Miss Hurley, Mr. Hogue and Professor Glen, of Eugene, will be the soloists, with Mrs. W. E. Thomas at the organ. Tickets can be had of Woodard, Clarke & Co., Laue-Davis Company, Graves & Co. and Ellers Piano House. No tickets sold at the door.

Warrant Declared Defective.

VICTORIA, B. C., June 5.—In the Supreme Court today Chief Justice Hunter declared the warrant from Dawson on which Joseph Genelle, of Rossland, was arrested on the charge of conspiring to burn river steamers to defraud the insurance companies was defective, and he ordered that the prisoner be again released on bail, pending the receipt of a new warrant.
